Now, this is not about parsing words. It is Mr. Kay saying: Look, the intelligence was wrong.

I say to my colleague from Arizona, my point is not about the President, it is not about the Vice President, it is not about Condoleezza Rice or Secretary Powell or Mr. Tenet. It is about whether this country is well served by the current intelligence community. Do they have it right or not? If they got it wrong, as many suggest they have, and it is pretty hard to make the case they got it right, then what do we do about it?

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, will my colleague yield for two quick questions?

Mr. DORGAN. I would be happy to yield for one question and then another.

Mr. BOND. Well, the most important question and I know this is a very important debate—the Senator from Maine was hoping to speak on the bill and I wondered how much longer the Senator from North Dakota was going to speak.

Mr. DORGAN. Well, I do not have a gauge on the tank. In fact, I barely came to the Senate expecting to speak for 5 minutes and then the Senator from Arizona piqued my interest and I decided I had to go find some quotes and respond to his presentation. I know the Senator from Maine has been here awhile, and I will not be much longer.

Mr. BOND. If the Senator will yield for one additional question.

Mr. DORGAN. I would be happy to yield.

Mr. BOND. Does the Senator realize all the rest of the Intelligence Committee is in S-407 receiving a 300-page report compiled over 8 months by the entire staff of the Intelligence Committee, after over a couple of hundred interviews and reviewing tens of thousands of documents, which goes right to this question and which we in the committee will be working on and trying to present either in classified or we hope mostly unclassified material so we can carry on this debate? Is the Senator aware that the reason there are not members of the Intelligence Committee here is that they are getting that information right now? Is the Senator aware of that?

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I am aware of that. I might say I have high hopes that that study, which has been underway for some long while, will be helpful to us. I must say also that there is a portion of the study that is a black hole. The study that is going on up there and will be released deals only with the gathering of intelligence, which I think shortchanges this Senate and the American people, because it does not deal with the use of that intelligence. But we can deal with the issue of the use of intelligence at another time. I wish it had been done in the same report.

Again, this issue of intelligence is critical to this country's protection and security interests. I believe that is something on which we would agree. We share that understanding, and my hope is that up in 407—the Senator from Missouri refers to a room in the Capitol Building that is a room where the Intelligence Committee meets. It is a room where top secret briefings are given. One of the things that persuaded me to come to the floor this afternoon is I have sat in that room. I have sat in that room with a neon sign that says "top secret" up on top flashing, and I have had the very people who developed this intelligence assessment look me in the eye and give me information that I now know to be wrong. That bothers me a lot.

I do not know how that happened. I do not know whether it was just bad collection of data, bad interpretation of data, or misuse of data. I do not have the foggiest idea, but I am saying this, that as one Senator I have been sitting in that room, I have asked direct questions, and I have had people look me in the eye and give me an answer that I now know to be wrong. I think most Senators who have had that experience are concerned about it.

I say to the Senator from Missouri, because I do not know whether he heard me say it, I have great admiration for those who serve on the Intelligence Committee. I do not serve there. I do not profess to be an expert in intelligence or foreign policy, but all of us have an obligation to be as informed as possible about all of these issues.

I expect the most aggressive Members of this Senate, following the trail of where this leads, to be those who serve on the Intelligence Committee. If Mr. Kay truly believes we got it all wrong, quote, unquote, then I would expect the Intelligence Committee to lead the way in finding out why that happened and how we get to a point where we never have that assessment again when it comes to this country's vital national interests.

Again, my colleague from Maine has been patient and I would not have spoken at this length except that I was intrigued and interested by my colleague from Arizona.

So I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I will take less than 1 minute, because I do not want to excite my friend any further, to say that all of us on the Intelligence Committee not only share the commitment to getting to the bottom of what went on, but we also know that David Kay said it was absolutely right and prudent to go into Iraq because it was more dangerous than we knew in certain areas. I hope the report we issue will answer questions that I and the other members of the Intelligence Committee have raised and that all Members of this body ought to be raising, and that we will provide some recommendations for curing the problems we find.

I hope now we can turn back to the SAFETEA bill, S. 1072, which is very important. I appreciate the patience of the Senator from Maine.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, as the Senate begins consideration of the transportation legislation, let me first commend the distinguished managers of this bill, Senator INHOFE, Senator BOND, Senator JEFFORDS, and Senator REID for their efforts to bring this vital 6-year reauthorization bill to the Senate floor. I particularly wish to recognize the efforts of Senator BOND. He has been a tireless champion of improving the transportation infrastructure in this country. He has worked night and day to craft a well-balanced bill. I hope we can move forward in considering this bill without undue delay.

This legislation would be very beneficial for the people of Maine and for our national economy. Nationwide, our transportation system is the lifeblood of economic development, the catalyst for the creation of thousands of jobs. Our transportation system affects our competitiveness, both within the United States and competing internationally.

For our economy to prosper, we need an integrated modern transportation system that realizes our goal of cost-effective and efficient modes of transportation while also recognizing the need for continued progress in improving the quality of our air. That is why I have not only supported funding for our highways and our bridges, but also I have advocated increased Federal funding for mass transit, for passenger rail initiatives, and alternative means of transportation as well.

In a large rural State such as Maine, an effective transportation network is absolutely essential. Maine has 1.3 million people spread out across roughly 34,000 square miles. Our State has by far the lowest population density in all of New England. Consequently, continuing to upgrade and improve our roads, highways, and bridges is essential to Maine's future prosperity. It is also a vital part of the economic strategies in our State that are aimed at increasing job opportunities for all of our citizens.

It is my hope that the Federal funding that is included in this legislation will support a strong partnership with the States that will allow us to build, repair, and maintain our surface transportation system into the 21st century.

The bill would also allow us to pursue some high priority transportation projects over the next 6 years. For example, as a native of Aroostook County in northern Maine, I understand how important it is to construct a north-south highway, a modern limited access highway through Aroostook County. This project has been in the works for more than 20 years. The interstate, when it was first constructed, for some reason stopped at Houlton, ME, rather than going through Aroostook County to the Canadian border. For that reason there have been economic development projects underway for some time, calling on us to construct a north-south highway to the Canadian border.

This project has been funded through the preconstruction stages and is currently undergoing the necessary review to complete the required environmental impact statement.

Northern Maine desperately needs the transportation and safety improvements such a highway would bring. For this reason I have made it my top transportation priority since being elected to the Senate in 1996. I hope the higher funding levels authorized by this legislation will enable the State of Maine to continue moving this vitally important project forward to the construction phase.

Just as I believe that the Aroostook highway project is critical for the transportation system and the economy of northern Maine, I also believe that an east-west highway, potentially running from the maritime provinces in Canada through eastern, central, and western Maine, to Quebec and northern New York State would significantly boost economic growth, job creation, and development throughout the entire region. This is an important transportation project, not only for that region of Maine but also for our Canadian neighbors.

Maine, like many other States in the Northeast, is facing an aging transportation infrastructure. It requires maintenance, rehabilitation, and in some cases outright replacement. The most urgent example of this problem is the Waldo-Hancock Bridge, a major suspension bridge that carries U.S. Route 1 over the Penobscot River, south of Bangor, and acts as a gateway to downeast Maine, one of the State's most widely visited regions.

The nearest alternative for crossing the Penobscot River is some 20 miles away in Bangor, and any interruption in the service would thus require a detour of at least 40 miles.

Unfortunately, due to safety concerns, last summer the State Department of Transportation had to lower the weight limits for vehicles using this bridge. The condition of the bridge has been declining steadily for a number of years, and despite efforts by the State to rehabilitate the existing structure, it has now become evident that the bridge must be replaced as soon as possible.

While providing States with adequate funding to move forward with high priority projects such as the east-west highway, the Hancock-Waldo bridge, and the Aroostook highway, as well as the funding of other more routine highway and transit projects as a major focus of this legislation, I also see this bill as an opportunity to address some important transportation safety issues. The most pressing transportation safety issue in my State has to do with Federal truck weight limits.

Under current law, trucks weighing as much as 100,000 pounds are allowed to travel on Interstate 95 from the border of Maine with New Hampshire, to Augusta, our capital city. At that point, right before Augusta, trucks weighing more than 80,000 pounds are forced off Interstate 95, which proceeds north to Houlton. Heavy trucks are forced onto smaller, secondary roads that pass through our cities, our towns, and our villages.

Augusta is an example of the problems this creates. When the trucks leave the interstate, they frequently travel down Western Avenue to encounter two heavily traveled traffic circles. These traffic circles have some of the highest accident rates in our State, and having these large, heavy trucks travel through the congestion of Western Avenue, around these two traffic circles and then continue on secondary roads poses a serious safety threat.

A uniform truck weight of 100,000 pounds on all of Interstate 95 in Maine would reduce highway miles and travel times necessary to economically and efficiently transport freight throughout Maine that would result in both economic and environmental benefits.

Moreover, Maine's extensive network of State and local roads would be better preserved without the wear and tear of heavy truck traffic. But most importantly, as I indicated with my example of the traffic circles in Augusta, ME, a uniform truck weight limit on the interstate would keep trucks on the interstate, which is designed to handle heavy trucks. That is where they belong rather than on the roads and highways that pass through Maine's cities, towns, and neighborhoods.

Maine's citizens and motorists are needlessly at risk because too many heavy trucks are diverted from the interstate and onto local roads.

Senator SNOWE and I have an initiative to deal with this issue. We hope to work closely with the managers of the bill to address this very important traffic safety issue.

With 3,400 miles of coastline and 14 inhabited islands, there is another very important feature of transportation that affects my constituents. The Federal Highway Administration's Ferry Boat Discretionary Program is vitally important to the Maine State Ferry Service and the Casco Bay Island's Transit District, which provide critical transportation services to Maine's island communities. I have joined with my colleague, Senator MURRAY, and a bipartisan group of Senators in sponsoring the Ferry Transportation Enhancement Act, which would significantly increase funding that is available for ferry projects. We hope to pursue this proposal as the debate on this important legislation continues.

While this highway reauthorization legislation includes funding for traditional transportation programs, I am also pleased that it includes increased funding for both transportation enhancements and the Recreational Trails Program. Both have allowed States to greatly expand their bicycle path systems.

I also believe that it is in our national interest to pursue and strengthen passenger rail services in the United States and to help maintain the solvency of Amtrak, even as we put reforms in place. Currently, there is no long-term stable funding source for passenger rail in the United States. Since 1971, when Amtrak was created, $25 billion has been spent on passenger rail. This contrasts sharply with the $750 billion that has been invested in our highways and aviation.

As the Senate moves forward in considering a wide range of transportation issues and funding questions in this vital bill, I look forward to working with all of my colleagues to make sure we pursue the goal of ensuring that our roads, our highways, and bridges are able to meet the needs of our citizens and commerce as we move forward in the 21st century.

Thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise in support of the transit amendment to the highway funding bill.

As a member of the Banking Committee, I commend Chairman SHELBY, Senator SARBANES, and their staffs for their hard work and their willingness to reach consensus on this important measure.

I also commend members of the Finance Committee for also discharging their duty to fully finance the transit spending authorized in the budget. Our Democratic leader, who also sits as a member of that committee, was particularly helpful in that regard.

The legislation passed yesterday by the Banking Committee was no easy achievement. The members of the Banking Committee have different transit needs for their States. There are some Senators on the Banking Committee from mostly rural States, others from States with largely urban centers, and others whose States have a combination of both.

The transit title, which was unanimously approved yesterday in the Banking Committee, goes a long way toward balancing these needs. Although this legislation is not perfect, it does come close to achieving a national transit policy, which is a goal I believe was not achieved in the highway funding portion of the bill.

The transit bill has a number of important provisions:

It provides $56.5 billion for mass transit over the next six years. This amount is a significant investment for the future. I am hopeful that more progress can be made to increase assistance for those regions that rely heavily on mass transit but whose aging infrastructure needs repair and modernization.

If anybody were to deny that a problem exists in this regard, I would urge them to read an article which appeared in yesterday's Stamford Advocate entitled "Metro-North Struggles To Keep Cars in Service." It describes how a combination of cold weather and aging railcars has knocked one-third of the aging New Haven Line out of service for several weeks.

In fact, about 37 percent of the New Haven Line is out of service for maintenance. The Metro-North Line has lost 230 out of its 800-car fleet for repairs. Thousands of commuters in Connecticut rely on this service to get to and from work, travel to and from school, and to see their families.

The legislation devotes significant resources to the Job Access as well as the Elderly and Disabled transit programs, which have been successful in providing transportation services to many of the most vulnerable members of society. Such transportation services enable low-income individuals, as well as senior citizens and the disabled, to have access to jobs, education, and training, which ultimately fosters self-sufficiency and improves their quality of life.

The transit title also includes funds to small communities with significant transit infrastructure that currently do not qualify under existing formula programs. Many cities in Connecticut and throughout the region could benefit from this program.

Finally, I am pleased that the transit amendment includes language I authorized to promote the establishment of medical access programs. Many Americans lack transportation services to take them to the hospital to see a doctor, get medication, or undergo dialysis.

Often their only choice is to call an ambulance, even if it is not truly a medical emergency, because such services are reimbursed under Medicare. By encouraging community transit systems to establish medical access programs, we can reduce costs to Medicare while serving as a lifeline to those Americans in need of health care.

I am hopeful that more progress can be made to increase our investments in mass transit. I am grateful to Chairman SHELBY and Senator SARBANES for listening to other Senator's concerns throughout this process, and I look forward to working with them as this legislation moves forward.

I as unanimous consent to print the article to which I referred in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Stamford Advocate, Feb. 4, 2004.]

METRO-NORTH STRUGGLES TO KEEP CARS IN SERVICE

(By Katherine Didriksen)

Metro-North Railroad is bracing for another bout of wintry weather today while it struggles to fix widespread equipment problems caused by recent bitter cold and drifting snow.

The railroad has been unable to run a regular schedule during peak morning and evening hours for several weeks as more than one-third of its aging New Haven Line fleet has been knocked out of service.

"(The railcars) are just dying faster than we can fix them," Metro-North spokeswoman Marjorie Anders said. "It's cumulative."

Heavy electrical components, including traction motors and motor alternators, are particularly hard-hit by extreme cold and dusty snow, she said.

Trains have had decent on-time performance despite the car shortages, but customers will face standing-room-only conditions all week, Anders said.

Metro-North has lost 230 railcars out of its 800-car fleet to repairs. The railroad reached a high of 217 disabled railcars on Jan. 21. On the New Haven Line, 126 of 342 railcars, or about 37 percent, are out of service for maintenance.

On an average day, 50 to 60 cars are out of service for maintenance, Federal Railroad Administration-mandated inspections or major repairs, said Harry Harris, chief of the Connecticut Department of Transportation's bureau of public transportation.

"You never run 100 percent of your fleet. You can expect to have about 18 percent out for one reason or another," he said. "When you start reaching 80, 90, 100 cars, you are cutting in substantially to the fleet."

Today's forecasted wintry mix offers the railroad little time for repairs and presents other challenges. Cold and freezing rain causes problems with equipment on the ground, including track switches, Anders said.

Trains on the New Haven Line will continue to run under a speed restriction overnight to reduce stress on the overhead catenary wires that become brittle and taut in the cold, she said.

"It's getting pretty bleak," said Jim Cameron, vice chairman of the Metro-North-Shoreline East Rail Commuter Council. "They absolutely are desperate for capacity now."

Commuters are getting increasingly angry and upset, he said.

"My frustration is that they still don't understand the enormity of the situation or who's at fault," Cameron said. "Commuters don't like being kept in the dark, and they don't like being lied to."

The lack of communication lies on Hartford's shoulders, rather than on the railroad or the state DOT, he said.

Extreme weather is exacerbated by the state's aging equipment. The bulk of the New Haven Line fleet was commissioned in 1973—an average train lifespan is about 20 years—and the catenary wire system was built in the early 1900s.

"It's a real challenge to keep all this equipment going," Harris said. Repairs are complicated by a lack of maintenance space and replacement parts, he said.

Connecticut also hosts the only commuter railroad service that runs a dual-powered system of third-rail and overhead catenary wires, Harris said. A new car that fits the dual-powered system has a price tag of $1.5 million, he said.

"There is no quick solution, barring some kind of an economic miracle," Harris said. Commuters are not likely to see funds for new railcars until 2006, he said.

In the meantime, Metro-North and the state DOT are merely looking to survive the winter.

"The worst-case scenario is no service," Anders said. "We're not even close to that."

The railroad alerted passengers to the following timetable alterations through Monday: In the morning rush hour, the 6:42 a.m. train from New Haven, due in Stamford at 7:30 a.m. and arriving at Grand Central at 8:18 a.m.; and the 7:37 a.m. train out of Port Chester, N.Y., due in Grand Central at 8:20 a.m., are canceled.

During the evening rush hour, many trains departing Grand Central will be combined or canceled:

The 4:11 p.m. train from Grand Central to South Norwalk and the 4:16 p.m. train to New Haven are combined, departing at 4:16 p.m.

The 4:49 p.m. train from Grand Central to New Haven will terminate at Stamford. Customers for stations east of Stamford must take the 5:01 p.m. train. Darien passengers must take the 5:04 p.m. train to Danbury.

The 5:09 p.m. train from Stamford to New Canaan and the 5:26 p.m. train to New Canaan are combined, departing at 5:26 p.m.

The 5:23 p.m. train from Grand Central to Bridgeport and the 5:28 p.m. train to South Norwalk are combined, departing at 5:28 p.m.

The 5:44 p.m. train from Grand Central to Bridgeport and the 5:49 p.m. train to South Norwalk are combined, departing at 5:49 p.m.

The 6:37 p.m. train from Grand Central to Harrison, N.Y., and the 6:40 p.m. train to Stamford are combined, departing at 6:40 p.m.

The 7:07 p.m. train from Grand Central to Harrison and the 7:10 p.m. train to Stamford are combined, departing at 7:10 p.m.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I appreciate the opportunity to say a few words about the highway bill. This legislation is of immense importance not only to my State of Alaska, but to the Nation as a whole. It is unlikely that this Congress will do anything of greater importance for our economy.

We all know that if our economy is our strength, transportation is our circulatory system. Without it, we cannot function. And make no mistake, we are not keeping up with the task.

Thirty-two percent of our major roads are in poor condition. Twenty-nine percent of our bridges need replacement or repair. Urban rail and bus systems are in equally poor shape.

According to the Department of Transportation, we should be spending over $100 billion per year on highways and over $20 billion per year on transit. But we cannot do that. We are constrained by reality. The components of the Senate bill will approximate only half that amount.

That is deeply disappointing to the Nation's 12,500 road construction contractors, and it is deeply disappointing to all our States and to their municipal governments, and to all our constituents.

We do not live in a perfect world. And given that reality, our job is to pass the best bill we can possibly pass.

It was no easy task to develop the bill before us today. We owe a tremendous debt of gratitude to the leaders of the Environment and Public Works Committee for their efforts, and to the leaders of the other committees necessary to make this bill a reality. No one could have worked harder and longer than Senator INHOFE, Senator JEFFORDS, Senator BOND and Senator REID.

Is this a perfect bill? No, indeed. There are many things I would like to see changed. For example, I strongly agree with the comments made by Senator VOINOVICH about the need for additional streamlining so that projects can get off the ground faster.

For my own State, I would like to see greater flexibility in a number of areas. I would also like to see greater recognition given to the fact that my State is far behind all the others in road miles, and that lack is holding back not only our economy but limiting our ability to contribute to the Nation as a whole. This bill does not address that fact to satisfaction.

By the same token, I understand that many of the donor States want to see more of their highway fuel tax dollars returned to them, and returned faster. I cannot blame them. At the same time, I want to remind my colleagues of this very important fact: This bill is not about my roads or your roads. This bill is about our roads.

We are all in this together. Let's not forget that fact.

The bill before us will increase every State's minimum guarantee to the 95 percent level they have long sought. And it will ensure that every State will see a significant increase in real dollars, an average increase of over 35 percent.

We cannot afford not to move forward.

In the last decade, travel on the Nation's highways increased almost 30 percent. By 2020, projections indicate travel will increase by another 50 percent. Those number don't just indicate a need; they demand a response. They demand that we move forward on this bill.

I yield the floor.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CORNYN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, what is the pending business?

AMENDMENT NO. 2269 WITHDRAWN

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I think I have an amendment pending.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SHELBY. Thank you.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I understand that if I ask that the amendments be set aside so I can send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration, there is an objection to that; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There has not yet been an objection.

Mr. VOINOVICH. I did not hear the Chair.

Mr. INHOFE. If the Senator will yield, it is my understanding that there will be an objection.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, it is unfortunate that we have an objection to further amendments so that we can't set aside some of those that have been here and we are not making the kind of progress I think we should be making on this bill and that some in this body will not allow us to make progress and consider a germane amendment that has broad support. What I am going to do is file the amendment and hopefully get to it in due course.

Two days ago, I came to the floor to express my support for this bill. I praised the managers for their work in putting this compromise together. I said that the bipartisan spirit of this bill led me to believe we could actually get something accomplished, which is contrary to the predictions of many people for this session of Congress. I even borrowed from one of my models when I was Governor: Together we can do it. And together we can. We can get this bill passed if we have enough folks who are willing to compromise and understand there is an enormous need to deal with the infrastructure problems and challenges of our country and also understand the need for the jobs this bill will create in our respective States.

Today and yesterday we have seen, however, that some do not want to work in a bipartisan manner and pass this bill which will put hard-working Americans back to work and jumpstart our sluggish economy, particularly in States such as Ohio. This is the case even though 75 Members voted to invoke cloture and proceed to the bill. Sadly, until this logjam is broken, we can't even make progress on issues of broad agreement.

Regardless of these difficulties, I am pleased to announce that this amendment represents an agreement reached by the transportation community and the historic preservation community. I greatly appreciate the work of the many groups that worked on this amendment, including the National Trust for Historic Preservation, Preservation Action, the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials. I commend the Ohio Department of Transportation, especially Gordon Proctor, Tim Hill, and Michelle Holdgreve, for their tireless effort. They have worked very hard with us on this amendment. The hard work by all these interested groups have led to this carefully crafted compromise amendment that I believe will go a long way in expediting the time and decreasing the cost of transportation construction projects.

This amendment addresses section 4(f). Section 4(f) of the Department of Transportation Act of 1966 prohibits the Department of Transportation from approving any highway project that uses publicly owned land or a historic site of national, State, or local significance, unless, one, there is no prudent and feasible alternative that avoids such resources or causes less harm to them, and, two, the project includes all possible planning to minimize harm to those resources.

If publicly owned land or a historic site is chosen for use in the project, an evaluation must demonstrate that the use of other alternatives would have resulted in unique problems. "Unique problems" are present when there are truly unusual factors, or when the costs to the community's disruption reach "extraordinary magnitude." This test was introduced in Citizens to Preserve Overton Park v. Volpe, referred to as the "Overton Park criteria."

Section 4(f) was developed in the late 1960s to address a real problem. Construction of the Interstate Highway System was at its peak, and these projects took the path of least resistance, which, in many cases, was parkland because it was easy to acquire and cheap to build through.

The passage of section 4(f) was intended to protect parks and historic sites that could be adversely impacted by construction of the Interstate System. We all understand that. That makes sense.

Today, however, highway projects are more likely to involve maintenance and modernization of the current system. The problem is that section 4(f), which basically prohibits all use of protected resources, is difficult to apply to projects that would have some, but not significant, impact on a protected resource. Yet this law has never been amended since its creation almost 40 years ago. We need to address our attention to that.

When highway projects have resulted in litigation, section 4(f) has been a frequent cause. Moreover, inconsistent interpretation of the Overton criteria has been identified as one need for changes in section 4(f) to allow for a more balanced interpretation of its requirements. One of the reasons for this litigation is the subjective terms used in the law: "prudent and feasible," "all possible planning to minimize harm," "unique problems," and "extraordinary magnitude."

I will tell you, these provisions are a lawyer's dream and a nightmare for the courts that have to interpret it and the States and U.S. Department of Transportation, which has to enforce the law. The result has been needless confusion, significant delays, and high cost for issues that defy common sense. What we are talking about here is common sense.

In my State of Ohio, for example, a privately owned barn was considered eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. It was in the path of a needed road improvement. Let me clarify that the barn was eligible because it was more than 50 years old. Soon, we won't be able to do any improvements because sidewalks will be 50 years old in this country. After considerable delay, needless studies, and significantly increased costs, a decision was made to avoid the barn. The road improvement was rerouted and the barn protected. This is the barn in this photo that we were protecting because it was over 50 years old. Look at that.

The cost to reroute this was $100,000 and 4 months of delay. Anybody who knows about highway projects knows that for every day of delay, it costs money. Time is money. However, the barn fell down due to owner neglect a few years later.

The point is that, while transportation planners have to do all they can to protect something that is "eligible" for the register, the private owner of the place, or even another Federal agency, can destroy it without sanction. That just doesn't make any sense.

Section 4(f) was enacted in 1966, 37 years ago. It only applies to the U.S. Department of Transportation, not any other Federal agencies. It is an extremely stringent law that has been interpreted by the courts, as they say, in vastly different ways.

While it was created with good intentions and at a time when the law was arguably needed, U.S. DOT and State departments of transportation have become good stewards of the environment.

One of the things that happens in Washington is we give no credit at all to State organizations or local organizations, in terms of their concern about the environment. So often, we think we are the only ones who really care about the environment.

Section 4(f) requirements have been identified by State departments of transportation as a significant deterrent to timely environmental reviews of transportation projects. The requirements to avoid section 4(f) resources applies in all cases, even when the impact is minor, resulting in situations in which a minor historic property is protected at the expense of other more sensitive environmental resources or communities.

In April of 2003, the General Accounting Office reported the transportation stakeholders consider section 4(f) reviews as burdensome and inflexible and that alternative approaches could protect historic properties and take less time to reach resolution.

In that report, a large majority of the stakeholders indicated that historic property protections under section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 offered a more flexible mediation process. This law requires that Federal agencies consider the effect of properties either in or eligible to be in the National Register of Historic Places. It brings all parties into the discussion and allows for better outcomes that preserve the goals of the transportation project, while protecting historic properties. This concept is included in this compromise amendment.

We are using something with which people are familiar. It worked in other places and it can work in terms of highway construction.

Currently, section 4(f) does not provide exceptions for impacts with no adverse affect or even a beneficial effect. For example, in Ohio, a new highway project adjacent to a publicly owned golf course was being constructed, and the golf course asked if work could be performed to alleviate persistent flooding. However, the work would have required a section 4(f) study. As a result, the work wasn't performed and the golf course still floods to this day just because of this 4(f).

In more extreme cases, projects with very minor impacts on protected sites have had to be realigned at high social, environmental, and economic costs. The peculiarities of the law led to well-documented, unintended consequences.

The confusion over existing law and problems with delays has led to several attempts at remedies. AASHTO, the organization that represents all 50 State transportation departments, voted unanimously to reform section 4(f).

Section 4(f) is also one of the highest priorities of our own U.S. Department of Transportation, which proposed changes to section 4(f) in its surface transportation reauthorization proposal, SAFETEA, which is what we worked off when this bill was being put together.

This amendment remedies many of the problems with section 4(f). While many groups would have preferred greater reform, the final text is a compromise that satisfies major stakeholders in this debate. Again, this was a compromise between a lot of groups, including transportation, environmental, and historic preservation groups.

Specifically, the amendment states that section 4(f) requirements are satisfied if the Secretary makes a finding of de minimis impact to a protected site. For historic sites, such a finding occurs if the project has no adverse effect on a historic site and there is written concurrence from the State or tribal historic preservation officer.

So we go through this process, and it is looked at as de minimis and has to be signed off by the people who care.

For parks, recreation areas, and wildlife and waterfowl refuges, such a finding only occurs if the project will not adversely affect the activities, features, or attributes of the resource, and there is written concurrence from the officials with jurisdiction over the resource. The amendment also requires public notice—the public knows all about this; there is nothing under the table—and public comment on the process. So we vet this decision so everybody knows what is going on.

What is good about this amendment is it allows for better community outcomes. This amendment would require the Secretary, when making a finding of de minimis impact, to consider all "avoidance, minimization, mitigation, and enhancement measures" that have been incorporated into the project. The language serves an important function: It builds in an incentive for projects' sponsors to incorporate environmentally protective measures into a project from the beginning, in order to support a finding of de minimis impact. Otherwise, the resource would be avoided and the project would move forward without providing any of the associated benefits to the community.

In addition, the amendment requires the Secretary to promulgate new regulations to determine standards to define whether avoiding a protected resource is prudent and feasible.

The purpose of this amendment is to achieve greater clarity and consistency with regard to the application of the Overton Park standard in a variety of circumstances. Let me provide some examples of problems with the section 4(f). I have already done one. Let's look at others.

In Pennsylvania, the State department of transportation had to make a highway improvement. This project required that one of two farms near each other be sacrificed. One of them was an inactive farm eligible for the registry that was barely maintained and its owner lived out of State. The second was a working farm owned by a man and his two sons who were actively working the land.

The owner of the second farm intended to pass the land down to the family to continue the farming operation. Section 4(f) forced the State department of transportation to demolish the nonhistoric farm, even though it was actively being farmed and planned to be part of the family's livelihood for years to come. In the end, the historic farm was bought and developed.

This is ridiculous. Section 4(f) led to the destruction of both farms. It forced the officials to go against a hard-working family for a rundown farm that happened to be 50 years old. And then this law couldn't even protect it from being developed.

This amendment would at least have allowed the State preservation officer to make a balanced decision considering all of the information and alternatives.

Another good example comes from our neighboring State of Kentucky. A farmhouse and a farm was deemed historic. As a result of the project development process, the best alignment for a four-lane highway was found to be through the property and would separate the historic house from the rest of the farmstead. However, through coordination with historic preservation groups, the highway was realigned so that it would cross in front of the house, impacting only a small strip of land at the front edge of the property.

Everyone involved thought it was great. Then came section 4(f). Section 4(f) required total avoidance of this historic farmhouse. The result was less desirable, more costly, and required the acquisition and removal of a home that was not historic.

In the end, the family whose home was to be relocated bought the historic house from the contractor, tore down the old house, and relocated their modern house where the historic house had stood.

Let's think about this. This is a picture of the historic house. What happened was, they wanted to take a little piece of this property, but oh, no, under section 4(f), you can't do that. Oh, no. So they went across the street to a house more modern and said: We are going to take your property. These people had to relocate their house. They relocated their house. Do you know where they relocated it? They tore the old house down and relocated the modern house to where the old house was located.

That is the kind of result we get from section 4(f). It is understandable that this needs to be changed.

This is a compromise amendment that has broad support and will correct a problem that has plagued State and local officials for nearly 40 years. It is time for this inflexible and outdated law to be fixed.

I congratulate all involved on this work. Again, historic preservation groups came together and said: This is crazy; let's see if we can work something out. And they did it.

I think it is unfortunate this amendment will not be considered today. As I said, it has broad support.

I wish to say one other thing about the highway bill. There is no question that there is an overwhelming need for this legislation. In fact, if you look at the needs that have been projected by the Department of Transportation, the amount of money we are spending doesn't meet the need, but it is a reasonable compromise to start to address forthrightly some of the problems I have in Ohio, you may have in Texas, Mr. President, or the chief sponsor may have in Oklahoma, and around this country.

It also provides needed jobs for people in our respective States. To my knowledge, this is going to be the only jobs bill to come out of this Congress at this time. Those jobs are needed.

I was talking with some of my colleagues the other day and they said: It is not needed and there are no projects out there ready to go. I would like to say that in my State we have $164 million of work that, if the money were there, could start tomorrow. It could start tomorrow.

The economy in my State is not doing too well. We are getting killed because of manufacturing. We need this bill. There was a great conservative President of the United States named Ronald Reagan. He is on the altar and worshipped by conservatives all across America. He was a real conservative, a real fiscal conservative. In 1983, unemployment was up. I remember because I was mayor of the city of Cleveland. People needed work. Ronald Reagan, in his wisdom, saw a need out in the country. He went to Congress and asked for the emergency jobs bill. That bill extended unemployment benefits. That bill provided moneys to cities and counties.

When I was mayor, we were really hurting. It provided us $12 million for public works so I could put people to work. It provided $6 million to Cuyahoga County. That was Ronald Reagan, a fiscal conservative, a man of compassion. He reached out, saw these people on the unemployment line, saw that jobs were needed. He also understood that we had some real infrastructure needs in this country, and on April 1 of 1983, Ronald Reagan said: I don't want to borrow the money; I don't want to borrow the money to provide more money for highways, and suggested and got the Congress to agree to increase the gas tax by 5 cents.

It seems to me that some of my colleagues—and I consider myself a conservative—ought to look at the reality of all of this. I suggest to our administration, our President, who is compassionate, and his advisers, that they ought to also look at the needs we have.

I went along with a grant to Iraq because I wanted to rebuild their infrastructure, and we are borrowing that money. We are borrowing a lot of money for a lot of purposes. I think Senator GRASSLEY and the Finance Committee have tried to come up with some reasonable ways of paying for this bill and some offsets. Some people may nitpick it, but the fact is, they did genuinely try to do something about it.

Everyone who is concerned about it ought to look at this realistically. This is a very modest, responsible proposal that deals with great infrastructure needs in this country.

I come from a just-in-time State, and our roads and bridges are in bad shape. I come from a State where we have thousands of people who lose their lives because our roads are not what we want them to be—route 24, particularly. So we have these needs. This is not porkbarrel. We have real needs.

On top of that, the frosting on the cake is we need the jobs. I am hoping that the Holy Spirit will enlighten our President and his advisers and Members on my side of the aisle and on the other side of the aisle to do something good for America and get on with this bill, get it passed, and get the money on the street so we can put some people to work and get on with our infrastructure needs.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I have some remarks in conjunction with the statement of Senator VOINOVICH. I will yield to the Senator from Florida as soon as I make a couple of comments.

Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment offered by my colleague from Ohio, Senate VOINOVICH. First, I thank him for working so hard on this very important issue. I know this issue has been controversial, and I appreciate his dedication to working out a compromise. Senate VOINOVICH's amendment adds much-needed reforms to a provision in current law commonly referred to as section 4(f) review.

Section 4(f) was approved by Congress as part of the Department of Transportation Act of 1966 to protect public parks, recreation areas, wildlife and waterfowl refuges, and public and private historic sites.

It is important to protect our historic treasures and environmental and recreational resources. Our Government has invested money in establishing and maintaining these resources for the public's use. We should not allow another department to turn around and diminish those investments without good reason.

Unfortunately, court decisions have led to an interpretation of "avoid at all costs." In addition to adding significant time delays caused by extensive study of alternatives, this interpretation has led to some really bad public policy decisions—decisions that defy common sense.

For instance, does it make sense to spend a hundred thousand dollars to shift an alignment in order to avoid an old, abandoned, dilapidated barn? I don't think so, but it has happened. Should private citizens lose parts of their front yards to road expansion so that we can save the supposed parkland between the current road and the ditch that runs alongside it? I don't think so, but it has happened.

Those are just a couple of examples of where section 4(f) is obviously broken and desperately needs to be fixed. I am pleased that Senator VOINOVICH has brought us such a fix.

The State of Oklahoma DOT is pleased with this language. Our folks who actually deal with this issue on a regular basis believe this will help them make better decisions with less delay.

I think this amendment represents good policy all the way around—transportation officials will be able to make commonsense decisions, particularly when it comes to projects that will have minimal impacts, and we can all be assured that these important environmental and cultural resources are protected.

It is my understanding that this language was developed by a wide range of stakeholders, including Ohio DOT, AASHTO, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, Defenders of Wildlife, Environmental Defense and the Natural Resources Defense Council. I commend Senator VOINOVICH for bringing forward this section 4(f) amendment, and I am happy to add my support to it. I regret that we cannot consider his amendment today, but I assure the Senator that I will work to have his amendment adopted.

Mr. President, what my friend from Ohio is saying is what we have been saying since Monday morning.

The Senator is exactly right. I do not know how many times I have stood on this floor and said those of us who are conservatives historically have to stop and look at what is Government here for. Conservatives are generally big spenders when it comes to defense, when it comes to infrastructure. We need to defend America and we need infrastructure. Right now, I am sure there are some States that are not as sensitive as the Senator from Ohio and I are because they do not have the problems, but when we look at what this bill is doing to try to correct the problem of, just as an example, our deteriorating bridges, my State of Oklahoma ranks dead first in terms of the deteriorated condition of bridges, and I chair the committee.

We are going to have to get a bill through. There has been some recent suggestion that it be pared down a little bit. I can assure my colleagues the figure we are talking about right now is a figure that is not acceptable to those on the other side of the Capitol, and this is the only way we can get one.

I thought we were making some headway. We have all of these little procedural hurdles. We are not able to send the amendment of the Senator to the desk, but I will tell the Senator right now I am going to do what I can about it.

First, I do agree with the Senator's amendment and I know how hard he has been working on it. A lot of people do not realize this section was approved by the Congress as part of the Department of Transportation Act of 1966. It is obvious it is not working now and we need to do something about it. Certainly the Senator is as enthusiastic about protecting any of our historical sites as we are, but we need to have something that is workable.

I know there is someone else who wants to speak, but let me give the Senator my assurance, as chairman of the committee, I will do everything I can to make sure he gets his amendment in, which I support. More important than his amendment, we want to get this bill passed so we can get America back to work again.

Remember, not long ago one of the publications in the Capitol had a "men working" sign on it, and they put a "not" right in the middle: Men not working. That is exactly what is happening right now. If we play around with the reductions, with the temporary extensions and all of that, we are not going to be able to get people back to work.

We have the infrastructure needs. We have the needs for jobs, and I will be there beside the Senator from Ohio doing what I can to make that a reality.

Before I yield the floor, let me ask my good friend with whom I was privileged to share this morning's chairmanship at the National Prayer Breakfast—one of the truly great moments of my life with my good friend. We are trying to stay on the highway bill. We have others who are going to be coming down. Could I inquire as to how much time the Senator from Florida would like to have?

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Probably no more than 8 or 10 minutes.

Mr. INHOFE. I ask unanimous consent that he be given 15 minutes and then after I be recognized as having the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Florida.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I commend the Senator from Oklahoma. It has been a pleasure working with him as the cochairman of our Senate prayer breakfast, and now having the opportunity this morning with 4,000 people assembled at the Washington Hilton to cochair the National Prayer Breakfast with him—which really is a misnomer because it is an international prayer breakfast. We had people from 150 nations. We had five heads of state there. Of course, we had dual speakers this morning in the persons of former Congressman J.C. Watts and Congressman JOHN LEWIS. They were both riveting. I appreciate his collegiality and considerable cooperation as we entered into this delightful once-a-year event that occurs in Washington.

I say to the Senator from Ohio, though, before he walks out the door, that as he was talking about the transportation bill providing jobs, we have a saying in the south: "Amen, brother." We need the jobs in Florida, too. Indeed, they are needed all over the country and that is why I will support this bill, and that is why I did.

I congratulate the chairman and the ranking member of the committee in how they have fashioned this bill. There are parts of this bill I would like to see improved. For years, my State of Florida has given a dollar in in tax and only gotten back about 80 cents. Over the years, my senior colleague, Senator GRAHAM of Florida, has been working on that. Since I have been in the Senate the last 4 years, I have been working with him to improve that. We have got that ratio up to 90.5 percent that we get back for every dollar we send.

In the bill the chairman and the ranking member have crafted, over the 6-year period that will rise to 95 percent. Floridians will be very grateful for that. I wish it could rise 1 percent a year over those 6 years instead of the way it is crafted, which is that it stays at a 90.5 percent return on Florida's tax dollar and then it jumps in the sixth year to 95 percent return on the dollar, but that was part of the give and take.

I would certainly like to improve it, but I am grateful for it, because finally this battle Florida has had for ages in getting a return on its tax dollar, particularly a gas tax dollar it sends to the Federal Government, is going to get some equalization, particularly with other States that have in the past gotten in excess of a dollar's worth when they send in a dollar to the Federal gas tax trust fund. I have lots of good things to say about it, but, oh, does it make it tough in this environment in which we are, a highly charged partisan environment in an election year in which the deficit that was just announced 3 days ago is over a half a trillion dollars.

Now, deficit is a fancy word, but let me say to my colleagues simply what I think it means. It means if we are spending this much in this coming fiscal year, but we only have this much coming in in tax revenues, the difference, since we are spending more than we have coming in in revenue, is the deficit. That has been estimated, in the President's budget, at $525 billion. That is over a half trillion dollars.

Well, what does one do? Where does it come from? If spending is going to be here, but the tax revenues are only here in a given year, what is to be done? The difference is borrowed, and that difference then, when borrowed, is added to the national debt.

We can see if we are borrowing to the extent of over half a trillion dollars a year, it does not take too long to see the national debt just continue to go out of sight, and then on that debt we have to pay interest. When the interest rates go up after this year, then that is another big slug out of the Federal budget we will have to pay, interest on the national debt.

Goodness gracious. And think what we could be doing with money: $200 billion a year in interest. Think what that would buy in the programs that are being cut under this President's budget. These are programs such as law enforcement assistance from the Federal Government such as the COPS program, putting police on the beat, on the street. That is being cut. Education expenditures are being cut. Children's health programs are being cut. Environmental programs are being cut. I could go on.

Yet that creates the environment, the fiscal reality, that in times of huge budget deficits, if you are going to get that figure from here to match your revenues, you either have to cut spending or raise taxes or, in the alternative, stop tax cuts that are projected to go into effect in the future and don't let them go into effect, or both, in order to get your Federal budget into balance.

We had a chance 3 years ago. We were in a surplus situation with so much surplus projected over 10 years. We could have paid off the national debt if we had been wise and conservative in our approach. But we didn't. We went and blew it. We were like drunken sailors, spending and enacting tax cuts that were targeted to the more well off among us. The result is what the President's budget just said. In the budget that was just released, the deficit spending this next fiscal year is going to be over half a trillion dollars.

This is not conservative fiscal policy. This is wild and reckless policy. When you give a continued tax cut to the rich to be financed by out and out borrowing, that is not conservative fiscal policy. That is out of control fiscal policy.

By the way, guess where we borrow that money. We borrow it from Social Security recipients, because we are taking it out of the Social Security trust fund. Guess where else we borrow it. We borrow it from other countries and their companies and their investors. You think it is just you and I who buy U.S. Treasury bills? Some of us do. And we borrow it from us. But you would be shocked to know how much of the Nation's debt and the new borrowing that will occur is being bought up by corporations and governments in China and Japan. If they end up having a good bit of our debt that is owed to them, what does that do toward putting us in a vulnerable position in the future with regard to our foreign policy with those countries, China and Japan? If they own a lot of our debt or, put another way, if we owe them a lot of money, that is not a position in which I think America ought to be.

There are some clever little tricks in this budget, too. They are very technical. For example, one provision is that people are encouraged, if the President's proposal is enacted, to take money out of their individual retirement accounts, IRAs, or their 401(k) plans and put them over into basically a privatizing of Social Security accounts. But the little fiscal sleight of hand is that when you take it out of an IRA, you are going to have to pay taxes on it. Lo and behold, that gins up an additional $15 billion over this 5-year projection in the budget of new tax revenue, to make it appear as if there is going to be more revenue coming in than there is.

This is really not an economic document. It is a political document. Unfortunately, it is a political document that is not a conservative political document. So I am looking forward to us getting our fingers into this budget and beginning to pick it apart. But what it does when you have a budget this much out of control is it makes it so much more difficult for very important programs such as this transportation bill that will provide so many jobs, that will cause dollars to be spent and circulated and restore the economy—it causes it to be a very difficult time in which to enact this kind of legislation, particularly at the level that some of us would like.

Mr. President, I wanted to share my thoughts on this subject.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. I appreciate the statement of my friend from Florida.

I would say, in terms of who the villain is in the deficit we are facing right now, there are two big villains. One is the war, and then the economy. As we started losing economic ground, a downturn back in March of 2000, people didn't realize for every 1 percent change in economic activity it translated into $45 billion in revenue. In other words, as the economy is rebounding now, the revenue is coming back up. Even continuing in the effort, the war effort—which I am afraid is going to last for quite a while—we are going to be facing end strength problems and that will have to go on.

I believe the best thing we can do is do it through the economy. At the same time there are certain things that have to happen in America. We have to do something about roads in America. I probably have as many townhall meetings as anyone. I suggest the Senator from Florida does, too. I can't remember one I have had where they haven't said something about roads.

In Oklahoma what they say is, we can always tell when we are around Thanksgiving time, when we have family coming in, we have friends coming in, we can always know when we get to Oklahoma because of the roads. I add to the Presiding Officer, when they come from Texas they make that comment about Oklahoma roads. So we do have a very serious problem. It seems to be more serious in my State.

Part of that is due to the donor status we have had for quite some time. Of course, we have not had the money with which to do it. I feel an obligation, and believe it is very appropriate for conservatives, to get out and vote in favor of this type of an infrastructure program. This translates directly into jobs, translates directly into the economy, translates directly into increasing economic activity and additional revenue that will come into Government.

With that, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CHAMBLISS). The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2003

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the need for hate crimes legislation. On May 1, 2003, Senator KENNEDY and I introduced the Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act, a bill that would add new categories to current hate crimes law, sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

One such crime occurred in Greenwich Village, NY. There, a 36-year-old man was assaulted by a group of 15 men on his way to a gay bar. Another man on the street yelled an anti-gay slur, and when the victim turned to see who had yelled at him, he was punched in the back of the head.

I believe that government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act is a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.

TAIWAN'S PEACE REFERENDUM

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, for the past 54 years, Taiwan and the United States have been allies in the international arena, democratic partners and friends. In times of need and turmoil, both countries have always come to each other's aid. In the aftermath of the September 11 terrorist attacks, Taiwan immediately offered help to Americans through the U.S. Government. In recent months, Taiwan has offered humanitarian aid to post-war Iraq.

Today Taiwan is being threatened. Taiwan's planned referendum on March 20, 2004 has been called a move toward Taiwan independence. Some say it will push Taiwan to the "abyss of war." Such rhetoric is a distortion of Taiwan's true intentions. In the face of an overwhelming military threat against Taiwan, Taiwan President Chen Shui-bian's peace referendum asks Taiwan voters whether they should buy more anti-missile weapons if the People's Republic of China refuses to withdraw its 496 missiles targeted at Taiwan and whether Taiwan should open up talks with the People's Republic of China about issues of peace.

Taiwan's democratically elected president, President Chen, has made it clear that he continues to hold to the "five no's" of his inauguration speech, including the promise not to hold a plebiscite on the issue of Taiwanese independence. The referendum merely aims to avoid war, free its people from fear and maintain the status quo.

Taiwan, our ally and friend, is a democracy. Its people have every right to hold their referendum this March 20. Taiwan's referendum law is a basic democratic right that the United States should support rather than denigrate. The future of Taiwan must be determined peacefully, with the express consent of the people of Taiwan. Since its establishment, the United States has been the foremost champion of liberty and democracy in the world. We can, therefore, not afford to tell the people of Taiwan not to hold a referendum. There can be no double standard when it comes to exercising democracy.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO RONALD C. FOSTER

• Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I pay tribute to Ronald C. Foster who will soon be retiring after an illustrious 33-year career with one of America's leading companies, the Atlanta-based United Parcel Service, UPS. First hired in October of 1966, Ron's 33-year corporate career led him from Kentucky to Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, New York, Pennsylvania, and ultimately to Washington, DC.

Ron started his career as a non-management hourly employee unloading UPS tractor-trailers in Lexington, KY. Promoted to the ranks of management 2 years later, Ron worked in UPS operations while attending the University of Kentucky, where he earned a Bachelor's Degree in Economics in 1972.

Ron held a series of managerial positions of increasing responsibility within the UPS Human Resources department which led him to become one of the company's senior Human Resources officials. In 1996, Ron Foster transferred to UPS' Washington, DC, Public Affairs office, where he represented the company on Capitol Hill and focused on labor relations, safety and human resources related public policy issues. At the time of his retirement Ron served as one of the company's most senior Public Affairs executives, as he coordinated the legislative and political activities of UPS Public Affairs managers both in Washington and in select state capitals.

Ron Foster's accomplished business career has been most noted for his unwavering loyalty to UPS and to his uncompromised dedication to integrity regarding business ethics and values. Ron will be remembered for the respectful and professional manner in which he treated all UPS colleagues. Ron's ability to deal fairly and equitably with people from all walks of life, a trait that is all too uncommon in today's society, was legendary among the UPS family.

Ron has been a very good friend to this Senator and I am happy that he will be spending his retirement years at Reynolds Plantation in Greensboro, GA. I congratulate Ron for a lengthy and highly successful business career, and more importantly, to wish Ron and Jo Foster a healthy and happy retirement.•

HERB BROOKS

• Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I am proud to recognize and pay tribute to my good friend, a great Minnesotan, and a real American hero, the late Herb Brooks, whose memory, accomplishments, and contributions are being memorialized today for all time in St. Paul.

Herb Brooks and I cam from two different worlds. I am so glad I got to know him in this place. Like a lot of sports fans, he gave me the greatest spectator moment of my life in Lake Placid. But what he has taught me about life is so much more significant.

Herb was a son of the East Side of Saint Paul. It's neighborhood that has produced mayors, Governors, and two Supreme Court justices. I wonder if there is a neighborhood that has touched more lives for good than the East Side.

Herb had a lot to say, and not all of it would go in a PG movie. He told his hockey team, "Gentlemen, we're not talented enough to win on talent alone." That was pretty autobiological, I think.

Tonight, we in Minnesota, Herb's home State that loved him so much, have the honor to unveil a permanent tribune to Herb's remarkable career, a career devoted not only to athletic excellence, but character and integrity. Then, we get to relive and relish the moment that reminded all Americans to start believing in miracles again at a screening of the new Hollywood feature film "The Miracle," based on the USA hockey team's shining moment in Lake Placid under Herb Brooks.

I learned a great deal about leadership from Herb Brooks. He was not a man of many words, but when Herb spoke, people listened, because what he had to say was always profound.

More importantly than what Herb said was what he did. He was the kind of leader we need more of, the kind that leads by example. Herb Brooks lived an amazing, remarkable life. He is a hero of mine, and was to millions of other Americans.

But what summed Herb Brooks up for me was this Brooksism: "Everybody is important, but not too important." That was how he articulated his team concept.

If we could all go through life seeing every person we meet as important and not seeing ourselves as too important—who knows, maybe there would be a lot more miracles.

Herb will always be remembered in the hearts and minds of my fellow Minnesotans. But tonight we unveil a statue—in a city that Herb loved and loved him back—that will forever immortalize Herb Brooks's image in Minnesota history. This is a wonderful tribute, and one I am deeply honored to be a part of.•

FIGHTIN' BLUE HENS CELEBRATE NATIONAL FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

• Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, in my 33 years as a U.S. Senator from Delaware, I have had the opportunity to give hundreds of speeches on the Senate floor, but today is a first. It gives me tremendous pride today to officially congratulate my alma mater, the University of Delaware, on winning its first-ever NCAA Division I-AA National Football Championship.

Players, fans, and students will celebrate this milestone in the University of Delaware's history at a rally on Tuesday, February 10, 2004, at the Bob Carpenter Center. And we have much more than the national championship to celebrate. The Fightin' Blue Hens played one of the most outstanding seasons in college football history, with a record of 15 and 1 and setting a school record for victories in a season.

After clinching their seventh Atlantic 10 Football Conference championship, the 2003 squad sailed through the Division I-AA playoff, outscoring opponents by a combined score of 149 to 23. In fact, they won the championship game by shutting down Colgate 42 to 0. You can be sure I attended every playoff game, along with tens of thousands of other devoted Blue Hen fans.

As I said earlier, this marks the University of Delaware's first Division I-AA title crown, but we earned six other football titles as a Division II school. The last Division II title in 1979 was significant because our current coach, K.C. Keeler, played on that 1979 championship team as a linebacker.

In just his second year at the helm of UD football, K.C. Keeler took his team to the national championship; but, K.C. is the first to give his predecessor, legendary Hall of Fame coach Tubby Raymond, all the credit for recruiting and building this team. Tubby, this championship is yours, too.

To be sure, UD football has come a long way since the 1960s when I was at the University. But at a time when we all need some good news, the 2003 University of Delaware football team has given our State plenty to cheer about. My warmest congratulations to the coaches, players, parents, school officials, cheerleaders, marching band members, students, and, of course, the diehard fans, as we celebrate being national football champions.•

By Ms. CANTWELL:

S. 2051. A bill to promote food safety and to protect the animal feed supply from bovine spongiform encephalopathy; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2051

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

SEC. 2. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) BSE.—The term "BSE" means bovine spongiform encephalopathy.

(2) COVERED ARTICLE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term "covered article" means—

(i) feed for an animal;

(ii) a nutritional supplement for an animal;

(iii) medicine for an animal; and

(iv) any other article of a kind that is ordinarily ingested, implanted, or otherwise taken into an animal.

(B) EXCLUSIONS.—The term "covered article" does not include—

(i) an unprocessed agricultural commodity that is readily identifiable as nonanimal in origin, such as a vegetable, grain, or nut;

(ii) an article described in subparagraph (A) that, based on compelling scientific evidence, the Secretary determines does not pose a risk of transmitting prion disease; or

(iii) an article regulated by the Secretary that, as determined by the Secretary—

(I) poses a minimal risk of carrying prion disease; and

(II) is necessary to protect animal health or public health.

(3) SPECIFIED RISK MATERIAL.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term "specified risk material" means—

(i) the skull, brain, trigeminal ganglia, eyes, tonsils, spinal cord, vertebral column, or dorsal root ganglia of—

(I) cattle and bison 30 months of age and older; or

(II) sheep, goats, deer, and elk 12 months of age and older;

(ii) the intestinal tract of a ruminant of any age; and

(iii) any other material of a ruminant that may carry a prion disease, as determined by the Secretary, based on scientifically credible research.

(B) MODIFICATION.—The Secretary shall conduct an annual review of scientific research and may modify the definition of specified risk material based on scientifically credible research (including the conduct of ante-mortem and post-mortem tests certified by the Secretary of Agriculture).

(4) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

SEC. 3. PROTECTION OF ANIMAL FEED AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

It shall be unlawful for any person to introduce into interstate or foreign commerce a covered article if the covered article contains—

(1)(A) specified risk material from a ruminant; or

(B) any material from a ruminant that—

(i) was in any foreign country at a time at which there was a risk of transmission of BSE in the country, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture; and

(ii) may contain specified risk material from a ruminant; or

(2) any material from a ruminant exhibiting signs of a neurological disease.

SEC. 4. ENFORCEMENT.

(a) COOPERATION.—The Secretary and the heads of other Federal agencies, as appropriate, shall cooperate with the Attorney General in enforcing this Act.

(b) DUE PROCESS.—Any person subject to enforcement action under this section shall have the opportunity for an informal hearing on the enforcement action as soon as practicable after, but not later than 10 days after, the enforcement action is taken.

(c) REMEDIES.—In addition to any remedies available under other provisions of law, the head of a Federal agency may enforce this Act by—

(1) seizing and destroying an article that is introduced into interstate or foreign commerce in violation of this Act; or

(2) issuing an order requiring any person that introduces an article into interstate or foreign commerce in violation of this Act—

(A) to cease the violation;

(B)(i) to recall any article that is sold; and

(ii) to refund the purchase price to the purchaser;

(C) to destroy the article or forfeit the article to the United States for destruction; or

(D) to cease operations at the facility at which the article is produced until the head of the appropriate Federal agency determines that the operations are no longer in violation of this Act.

(d) CIVIL AND MONETARY PENALTIES.—The Secretary is directed to promulgate regulations on the appropriate level of civil and monetary penalties necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, within 180 days following enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5. TRAINING STANDARDS.

The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture, shall issue training standards to industry for the removal of specified risk materials.

SEC. 6. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated $5,000,000 to carry out this Act.

SEC. 7. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This Act takes effect on the date that is 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

By Mrs. HUTCHISON:

S. 2052. A bill to amend the National Trails System Act to designate El Camino Real de Los Tejas as a National Historic Trail; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation to recognize the oldest highway in Texas and establish the El Camino Real de Los Tejas National Historic Trail.

This bill will preserve a vital piece of Texas history for generations to come. The El Camino Real trail established a key corridor for settlers, immigrants and militaries helping lay the groundwork for our state's future. It also served as a path for such Texas heroes as Davy Crockett and Sam Houston who both fought in the struggle for Texas independence from Mexico.

The 300-year-old corridor also served as a critical trade route, a post road, cattle trail and a military highway. The trail opened America to Texas and Texas to the world. Still today the trail collectively represents a series of roads and paths extending more than 2,500 miles in length from the Rio Grande River near Eagle Pass and Laredo through San Antonio, Bastrop, and Nacogdoches, Texas to Natchitoches, Louisiana. While 2,500 miles of the trail are in 40 Texas counties, the last 80 miles are in Louisiana.

The El Camino Real served as a strategic corridor during Texas' struggle for independence. Critical supplies made their way via the El Camino Real for the Republic of Texas Army as they victoriously forged ahead to defeat the Mexican Army in the Texas Revolution.

This legislation will recognize the significance of the El Camino Real and preserve its historic importance, as well as direct the National Park Service to establish the El Camino Real trail as a National Historic Trail. It will also allow our state agencies such as the Texas Historical Commission to participate in the establishment and designation of the trail, while protecting the private property of landowners along its route. This legislation will allow Texans and the thousands who visit our state each year to learn more of the rich history that forged the Lone Star State.

I am proud to offer this legislation to pay homage to an important piece of Texas and U.S. History, and I urge my colleagues to support the El Camino Real de Los Tejas National Historic Trail Act.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2052

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "El Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail Act of 2004".

SEC. 2. AUTHORIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Section 5(a) of the National Trails System Act (16 U.S.C. 1244(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(23) EL CAMINO REAL DE LOS TEJAS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), El Camino Real de los Tejas (The Royal Road of historic Tejas) National Historic Trail, a combination of historic routes totaling 2,580 miles in length from the Rio Grande near Eagle Pass and Laredo, Texas, to Natchitoches, Louisiana, and including the Old San Antonio Road, as generally depicted on the maps entitled 'El Camino Real de los Tejas', contained in the report prepared pursuant to subsection (b) entitled 'National Historic Trail Feasibility Study and Environmental Assessment: El Camino Real de los Tejas, Texas-Louisiana', dated July 1998. The National Park Service is authorized to administer designated portions of this trail system as a national historic trail as set forth in this paragraph.

"(B) Establishment.—

"(i) Publicly owned lands.—Congress authorizes the establishment of El Camino Real de los Tejas national historic trail and the respective administration on those portions of the historic trail routes and related historic sites within publicly owned lands when such trail related resources meet the purposes of this Act or certification criteria set by the Secretary of the Interior per section 3(a)(3) of this Act.

"(ii) Privately owned lands.—Congress authorizes the establishment of El Camino Real de los Tejas national historic trail and the respective administration on those portions of the historic trail routes and related historic sites within privately owned lands only through the voluntary and expressed consent of the owner and when such trails and sites qualify for certification as officially established components of the national historic trail. The owner's approval of a certification agreement satisfies the consent requirement. Certification agreements are not legally binding and may be terminated at any time. Should land ownership change at a certified site, the certification will cease to be valid unless the new owner consents to a new agreement.

"(C) Private property rights protection.—Nothing in this Act or in the establishment of any portion of the national historic trail authorizes any person to enter private property without the consent of the owner. Nothing in this Act or in the establishment of any portion of the national historic trail will authorize the Federal Government to restrict private property owner's use or enjoyment of their property subject to other laws or regulations. Authorization of El Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail under this Act does not itself confer any additional authority to apply other Federal laws and regulations on non-Federal lands along the trail. Laws or regulations requiring public entities and agencies to take into consideration a national historic trail shall continue to apply notwithstanding the foregoing. Notwithstanding section 7(g) of this Act, the United States is authorized to acquire privately owned real property or an interest in such property for purposes of the national historic trail only with the consent of the owner of such property and shall have no authority to condemn or otherwise appropriate privately owned real property or an interest in such property for the purposes of El Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail.

"(D) Coordination of activities.—The Secretary of the Interior may coordinate with United States and Mexican public and nongovernmental organizations, academic institutions, and, in consultation with the Secretary of State, the Government of Mexico and its political subdivisions, for the purpose of exchanging trail information and research, fostering trail preservation and educational programs, providing technical assistance, and working to establish an international historic trail with complementary preservation and education programs in each nation.

"(E) Consultation.—The Secretary of the Interior shall consult with appropriate State agencies in the the planning, development, and maintenance of El Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail.".

"(16) URBANIZED AREA.—The term 'urbanized area' means an area encompassing a population of not less than 50,000 people that has been defined and designated in the most recent decennial census as an 'urbanized area' by the Secretary of Commerce.''.

SEC. 3005. METROPOLITAN TRANSPORTATION PLANNING.

Section 5303 is amended to read as follows:

"§5303. Metropolitan transportation planning

"(1) CONSULTATION.—A 'consultation' occurs when 1 party—

"(A) confers with another identified party in accordance with an established process;

"(B) prior to taking action, considers that party's views; and

"(C) periodically informs that party about action taken.

"(2) METROPOLITAN PLANNING AREA.—The term 'metropolitan planning area' means the geographic area determined by agreement between the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor under subsection (d).

"(3) METROPOLITAN PLANNING ORGANIZATION.—The term 'metropolitan planning organization' means the Policy Board of the organization designated under subsection (c).

"(4) NON-METROPOLITAN AREA.—The term 'non-metropolitan area' means any geographic area outside all designated metropolitan planning areas.

"(5) NON-METROPOLITAN LOCAL OFFICIAL.—The term 'non-metropolitan local official' means any elected or appointed official of general purpose local government located in a non-metropolitan area who is responsible for transportation services for such local government.

"(b) GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.—

"(1) DEVELOPMENT OF PLANS.—To accomplish the objectives described in section 5301(a), each metropolitan planning organization, in cooperation with the State and public transportation operators, shall develop transportation plans for metropolitan planning areas of the State in which it is located.

"(2) CONTENTS.—The plans developed under paragraph (1) for each metropolitan planning area shall provide for the development and integrated management and operation of transportation systems and facilities (including pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities) that will function as an intermodal transportation system for the metropolitan planning area and as an integral part of an intermodal transportation system for the State and the United States.

"(3) PROCESS OF DEVELOPMENT.—The process for developing the plans shall provide for consideration of all modes of transportation and shall be continuing, cooperative, and comprehensive to the degree appropriate, based on the complexity of the transportation problems to be addressed.

"(4) PLANNING AND PROJECT DEVELOPMENT.—The metropolitan planning organization, the State Department of Transportation, and the appropriate public transportation provider shall agree upon the approaches that will be used to evaluate alternatives and identify transportation improvements that address the most complex problems and pressing transportation needs in the metropolitan area.

"(c) DESIGNATION OF METROPOLITAN PLANNING ORGANIZATIONS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—To carry out the transportation planning process under this section, a metropolitan planning organization shall be designated for each urbanized area with a population of more than 50,000 residents—

"(A) by agreement between the Governor and units of general purpose local government that combined represent not less than 75 percent of the affected population (including the incorporated city or cities named by the Bureau of the Census in designating the urbanized area); or

"(B) in accordance with procedures established by applicable State or local law.

"(2) STRUCTURE.—Each metropolitan planning organization designated under paragraph (1) that serves an area identified as a transportation management area shall consist of—

"(A) local elected officials;

"(B) officials of public agencies that administer or operate major modes of transportation in the metropolitan area; and

"(C) appropriate State officials.

"(3) LIMITATION ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to interfere with the authority, under any State law in effect on December 18, 1991, of a public agency with multimodal transportation responsibilities—

"(A) to develop plans and programs for adoption by a metropolitan planning organization; and

"(B) to develop long-range capital plans, coordinate transit services and projects, and carry out other activities pursuant to State law.

"(4) CONTINUING DESIGNATION.—The designation of a metropolitan planning organization under this subsection or any other provision of law shall remain in effect until the metropolitan planning organization is redesignated under paragraph (5).

"(5) REDESIGNATION PROCEDURES.—A metropolitan planning organization may be redesignated by agreement between the Governor and units of general purpose local government that combined represent not less than 75 percent of the existing planning area population (including the incorporated city or cities named by the Bureau of the Census in designating the urbanized area) as appropriate to carry out this section.

"(6) DESIGNATION OF MORE THAN 1 METROPOLITAN PLANNING ORGANIZATION.—More than 1 metropolitan planning organization may be designated within an existing metropolitan planning area only if the Governor and the existing metropolitan planning organization determine that the size and complexity of the existing metropolitan planning area make designation of more than 1 metropolitan planning organization for the area appropriate.

"(d) METROPOLITAN PLANNING AREA BOUNDARIES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—For the purposes of this section, the boundaries of a metropolitan planning area shall be determined by agreement between the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor.

"(2) INCLUDED AREA.—Each metropolitan planning area—

"(A) shall encompass at least the existing urbanized area and the contiguous area expected to become urbanized within a 20-year forecast period for the transportation plan; and

"(B) may encompass the entire metropolitan statistical area or consolidated metropolitan statistical area, as defined by the Office of Management and Budget.

"(3) IDENTIFICATION OF NEW URBANIZED AREAS WITHIN EXISTING PLANNING AREA BOUNDARIES.—The designation by the Bureau of the Census of new urbanized areas within an existing metropolitan planning area shall not require the redesignation of the existing metropolitan planning organization.

"(4) EXISTING METROPOLITAN PLANNING AREAS IN NONATTAINMENT.—Notwithstanding paragraph (2), in the case of an urbanized area designated as a nonattainment area for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.), the boundaries of the metropolitan planning area in existence as of the date of enactment of this paragraph shall be retained, except that the boundaries may be adjusted by agreement of the Governor and affected metropolitan planning organizations in accordance with paragraph (5).

"(5) NEW METROPOLITAN PLANNING AREAS IN NONATTAINMENT.—If an urbanized area is designated after the date of enactment of this paragraph in a nonattainment area for ozone or carbon monoxide, the boundaries of the metropolitan planning area—

"(A) shall be established in accordance with subsection (c)(1);

"(B) shall encompass the areas described in paragraph (2)(A);

"(C) may encompass the areas described in paragraph (2)(B); and

"(D) may address any nonattainment identified under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.) for ozone or carbon monoxide.

"(e) COORDINATION IN MULTISTATE AREAS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall encourage each Governor with responsibility for a portion of a multistate metropolitan area and the appropriate metropolitan planning organizations to provide coordinated transportation planning for the entire metropolitan area.

"(2) INTERSTATE COMPACTS.—States are authorized—

"(A) to enter into agreements or compacts with other States, which are not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in support of activities authorized under this section as the activities pertain to interstate areas and localities within the States; and

"(B) to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as the States may determine desirable for making the agreements and compacts effective.

"(3) LAKE TAHOE REGION.—

"(A) DEFINITION.—In this paragraph, the term 'Lake Tahoe region' has the meaning given the term 'region' in subdivision (a) of article II of the Tahoe Regional Planning Compact, as set forth in the first section of Public Law 96-551 (94 Stat. 3234).

"(B) TRANSPORTATION PLANNING PROCESS.—The Secretary shall—

"(i) establish with the Federal land management agencies that have jurisdiction over land in the Lake Tahoe region a transportation planning process for the region; and

"(ii) coordinate the transportation planning process with the planning process required of State and local governments under this section and section 5304.

"(C) INTERSTATE COMPACT.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii) and notwithstanding subsection (c), to carry out the transportation planning process required by this section, California and Nevada may designate a metropolitan planning organization for the Lake Tahoe region, by agreement between the Governors of the States of California and Nevada and units of general purpose local government that combined represent not less than 75 percent of the affected population (including the incorporated city or cities named by the Bureau of the Census in designating the urbanized area), or in accordance with procedures established by applicable State or local law.

"(ii) INVOLVEMENT OF FEDERAL LAND MANAGEMENT AGENCIES.—

"(I) REPRESENTATION.—The policy board of a metropolitan planning organization designated under clause (i) shall include a representative of each Federal land management agency that has jurisdiction over land in the Lake Tahoe region.

"(II) FUNDING.—In addition to funds made available to the metropolitan planning organization under other provisions of title 23 and this chapter, not more than 1 percent of the funds allocated under section 202 of title 23 may be used to carry out the transportation planning process for the Lake Tahoe region under this subparagraph.

"(D) ACTIVITIES.—Highway projects included in transportation plans developed under this paragraph—

"(i) shall be selected for funding in a manner that facilitates the participation of the Federal land management agencies that have jurisdiction over land in the Lake Tahoe region; and

"(ii) may, in accordance with chapter 2 of title 23, be funded using funds allocated under section 202 of title 23.

"(f) COORDINATION OF METROPOLITAN PLANNING ORGANIZATIONS.—

"(1) NONATTAINMENT AREAS.—If more than 1 metropolitan planning organization has authority within a metropolitan area or an area which is designated as a nonattainment area for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.), each metropolitan planning organization shall consult with the other metropolitan planning organizations designated for such area and the State in the coordination of plans required by this section.

"(2) TRANSPORTATION IMPROVEMENTS LOCATED IN MULTIPLE METROPOLITAN PLANNING AREAS.—If a transportation improvement funded from the highway trust fund is located within the boundaries of more than 1 metropolitan planning area, the metropolitan planning organizations shall coordinate plans regarding the transportation improvement.

"(3) INTERREGIONAL AND INTERSTATE PROJECT IMPACTS.—Planning for National Highway System, commuter rail projects, or other projects with substantial impacts outside a single metropolitan planning area or State shall be coordinated directly with the affected, contiguous metropolitan planning organizations and States.

"(4) COORDINATION WITH OTHER PLANNING PROCESSES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall encourage each metropolitan planning organization to coordinate its planning process, to the maximum extent practicable, with those officials responsible for other types of planning activities that are affected by transportation, including State and local land use planning, economic development, environmental protection, airport operations, housing, and freight.

"(B) OTHER CONSIDERATIONS.—The metropolitan planning process shall develop transportation plans with due consideration of, and in coordination with, other related planning activities within the metropolitan area. This should include the design and delivery of transportation services within the metropolitan area that are provided by—

"(i) recipients of assistance under this chapter;

"(ii) governmental agencies and nonprofit organizations (including representatives of the agencies and organizations) that receive Federal assistance from a source other than the Department of Transportation to provide nonemergency transportation services; and

"(iii) recipients of assistance under section 204 of title 23.

"(g) SCOPE OF PLANNING PROCESS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The goals and objectives developed through the metropolitan planning process for a metropolitan planning area under this section shall address, in relation to the performance of the metropolitan area transportation systems—

"(A) supporting the economic vitality of the metropolitan area, especially by enabling global competitiveness, productivity, and efficiency, including through services provided by public and private operators;

"(B) increasing the safety of the transportation system for motorized and nonmotorized users;

"(C) increasing the security of the transportation system for motorized and nonmotorized users;

"(D) increasing the accessibility and mobility of people and for freight, including through services provided by public and private operators;

"(E) protecting and enhancing the environment, promoting energy conservation, and promoting consistency between transportation improvements and State and local land use planning and economic development patterns;

"(F) enhancing the integration and connectivity of the transportation system, across and between modes, for people and freight, including through services provided by public and private operators;

"(G) promoting efficient system management and operation; and

"(H) emphasizing the preservation of the existing transportation system, including services provided by public and private operators.

"(2) FAILURE TO CONSIDER FACTORS.—The failure to consider any factor specified in paragraph (1) shall not be reviewable by any court under title 23 or this title, subchapter II of chapter 5 of title 5, or chapter 7 of title 5 in any matter affecting a transportation plan, a transportation improvement plan, a project or strategy, or the certification of a planning process.

"(h) DEVELOPMENT OF TRANSPORTATION PLAN.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Each metropolitan planning organization shall develop, and update not less frequently than every 3 years, a transportation plan for its metropolitan planning area in accordance with this subsection. In developing the transportation plan under this section, each metropolitan planning organization shall consider the factors described in subsection (f) over a 20-year forecast period. For the purpose of developing the transportation plan, the metropolitan planning organization, transit operator, and State shall cooperatively develop estimates of funds that will be available to support plan implementation.

"(2) CONTENTS.—A transportation plan under this subsection shall be in a form that the Secretary determines to be appropriate and shall contain—

"(A) an identification of transportation facilities, including major roadways, public transportation, multimodal and intermodal facilities, and intermodal connectors, that should function as an integrated metropolitan transportation system, emphasizing those facilities that serve important national and regional transportation functions;

"(B) a financial plan that—

"(i) demonstrates how the adopted transportation plan can be implemented;

"(ii) indicates resources from public and private sources that are reasonably expected to be made available to carry out the plan;

"(iii) recommends any additional financing strategies for needed projects and programs; and

"(iv) may include, for illustrative purposes, additional projects that would be included in the adopted transportation plan if approved by the Secretary and reasonable additional resources beyond those identified in the financial plan were available;

"(C) operational and management strategies to improve the performance of existing transportation facilities to relieve vehicular congestion and maximize the safety and mobility of people and goods;

"(D) capital investment and other strategies to preserve the existing metropolitan transportation infrastructure and provide for multimodal capacity increases based on regional priorities and needs; and

"(E) proposed transportation and transit enhancement activities.

"(3) COORDINATION WITH CLEAN AIR ACT AGENCIES.—In metropolitan areas in nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.), the metropolitan planning organization shall coordinate the development of a transportation plan with the process for development of the transportation control measures of the State implementation plan required by the Clean Air Act.

"(4) PARTICIPATION BY INTERESTED PARTIES.—

"(A) DEVELOPMENT OF PARTICIPATION PLAN.—Not less frequently than every 3 years, each metropolitan planning organization shall develop and adopt a plan for participation in the process for developing the metropolitan transportation plan by—

"(i) citizens;

"(ii) affected public agencies;

"(iii) representatives of public transportation employees;

"(iv) freight shippers;

"(v) providers of freight transportation services;

"(vi) private providers of transportation;

"(vii) representatives of users of public transit;

"(viii) representatives of users of pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities; and

"(ix) other interested parties.

"(B) CONTENTS OF PARTICIPATION PLAN.—The participation plan—

"(i) shall be developed in a manner the Secretary determines to be appropriate;

"(ii) shall be developed in consultation with all interested parties; and

"(iii) shall provide that all interested parties have reasonable opportunities to comment on—

"(I) the process for developing the transportation plan; and

"(II) the contents of the transportation plan.

"(C) CERTIFICATION.—Before the approval of a transportation plan by the Governor and metropolitan planning organizations, each metropolitan planning organization shall certify that it has complied with the requirements of the participation plan it has adopted.

"(5) APPROVAL OF THE TRANSPORTATION PLAN.—

‘‘(A) IN GENERAL.—Each transportation plan prepared by a metropolitan planning organization shall be—

‘‘(i) approved by the Metropolitan Planning Organization; and

‘‘(ii) submitted to the Governor for approval of the first 5 years of the plan.

‘‘(B) PROJECT ADVANCEMENT.—The projects listed in the first 5 years of the plan may be selected for advancement consistent with the project selection requirements.

‘‘(C) MAJOR AMENDMENTS.—Major amendments to the list described in subparagraph (B), including the addition, deletion, or concept and scope change of a regionally significant project, may not be advanced without—

‘‘(i) appropriate public involvement;

‘‘(ii) financial planning;

‘‘(iii) transportation conformity analyses; and

‘‘(iv) a finding by the Federal Highway Administration and Federal Transit Administration that the amended plan was produced in a manner consistent with this section.

‘‘(6) INCLUDED PROJECTS.—

‘‘(A) PROJECTS UNDER CHAPTER 1 OF TITLE 23 AND THIS CHAPTER.—A transportation plan developed under this section for a metropolitan area shall include the projects and strategies within the metropolitan area that are proposed for funding under chapter 1 of title 23 and this chapter.

‘‘(B) PROJECTS UNDER CHAPTER 2 OF TITLE 23.—

‘‘(i) REGIONALLY SIGNIFICANT PROJECTS.—Regionally significant projects proposed for funding under chapter 2 of title 23 shall be identified individually in the metropolitan transportation plan.

‘‘(ii) OTHER PROJECTS.—Projects proposed for funding under chapter 2 of title 23 that are not regionally significant shall be grouped in 1 line item or identified individually in the metropolitan transportation plan.

‘‘(7) SELECTION OF PROJECTS.—

‘‘(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in subsection (i)(4), the selection of federally funded projects in metropolitan planning areas shall be carried out, from the approved transportation plan—

‘‘(i) by the State, in the case of projects under chapter 1 of title 23 or section 5308, 5310, 5311, or 5317 of this title;

‘‘(ii) by the designated recipient, in the case of projects under section 5307; and

‘‘(iii) in cooperation with the metropolitan planning organization.

‘‘(B) MODIFICATIONS TO PROJECT PRIORITY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, action by the Secretary shall not be required to advance a project from the first 5 years of the approved transportation plan in place of another project in the same 5-year period.

‘‘(8) PUBLICATION REQUIREMENTS.—

‘‘(A) PUBLICATION OF TRANSPORTATION PLAN.—A transportation plan involving Federal participation shall be published or otherwise made readily available by the metropolitan planning organization for public review.

‘‘(B) PUBLICATION OF ANNUAL LISTINGS OF PROJECTS.—An annual listing of projects, including investments in pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities, for which Federal funds have been obligated in the preceding 5 years shall be published or otherwise made available for public review by the cooperative effort of the State, transit operator, and the metropolitan planning organization. This listing shall be consistent with the funding categories identified in the first 5 years of the transportation plan.

‘‘(C) RULEMAKING.—Not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Secretary shall issue regulations specifying—

‘‘(i) the types of data to be included in the list described in subparagraph (B), including—

‘‘(I) the name, type, purpose, and location (geocoded) of each project;

‘‘(II) the Federal, State, and local identification numbers assigned to each project;

‘‘(III) amounts obligated and expended on each project, sorted by funding source and transportation mode, and including the date on which each obligation was made; and

‘‘(IV) the status of each project; and

‘‘(ii) the media through which the list described in subparagraph (B) will be made available to the public, including written and visual components for each of the projects listed.

‘‘(i) TRANSPORTATION MANAGEMENT AREAS.—

‘‘(1) REQUIRED IDENTIFICATION.—The Secretary shall identify as a transportation management area each urbanized area with a population of more than 200,000 individuals.

‘‘(2) TRANSPORTATION PLANS.—Transportation plans for a metropolitan planning area serving a transportation management area shall be based on a continuing and comprehensive transportation planning process carried out by the metropolitan planning organization in cooperation with the State and transit operators.

‘‘(3) CONGESTION MANAGEMENT SYSTEM.—

‘‘(A) IN GENERAL.—The transportation planning process under this section shall address congestion management through a process that provides for effective management and operation, based on a cooperatively developed and implemented metropolitan-wide strategy, of new and existing transportation facilities eligible for funding under title 23 and this chapter through the use of travel demand reduction and operational management strategies.

‘‘(B) PHASE-IN SCHEDULE.—The Secretary shall establish a phase-in schedule that provides for not less than 1-year after the identification of transportation management areas under paragraph (1) to achieve full compliance with the requirements of this section.

‘‘(4) SELECTION OF PROJECTS.—

‘‘(A) IN GENERAL.—All federally funded projects carried out within the boundaries of a metropolitan planning area serving a transportation management area under title 23 (except for projects carried out on the National Highway System and projects carried out under the bridge program or the Interstate maintenance program) or under this chapter shall be selected for implementation from the approved transportation plan by the metropolitan planning organization designated for the area in consultation with the State and any affected public transit operator.

‘‘(B) NATIONAL HIGHWAY SYSTEM PROJECTS.—Projects on the National Highway System carried out within the boundaries of a metropolitan planning area serving a transportation management area and projects carried out within such boundaries under the bridge program or the Interstate maintenance program under title 23 shall be selected for implementation from the approved transportation plan by the State in cooperation with the metropolitan planning organization designated for the area.

‘‘(5) CERTIFICATION.—

‘‘(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall—

‘‘(i) ensure that the metropolitan planning process of a metropolitan planning organization serving a transportation management area is being carried out in accordance with Federal law; and

‘‘(ii) subject to subparagraph (B), certify, not less frequently than once every 3 years, that the requirements of this paragraph are met with respect to the metropolitan planning process.

‘‘(B) REQUIREMENTS FOR CERTIFICATION.—The Secretary may make the certification under subparagraph (A) if—

‘‘(i) the transportation planning process complies with the requirements of this section and other applicable Federal law; and

‘‘(ii) a transportation plan for the metropolitan planning area has been approved by the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor.

‘‘(C) PENALTY FOR FAILING TO CERTIFY.—

‘‘(i) WITHHOLDING PROJECT FUNDS.—If the metropolitan planning process of a metropolitan planning organization serving a transportation management area is not certified, the Secretary may withhold any funds otherwise available to the metropolitan planning area for projects funded under title 23 and this chapter.

‘‘(ii) RESTORATION OF WITHHELD FUNDS.—Any funds withheld under clause (i) shall be restored to the metropolitan planning area when the metropolitan planning process is certified by the Secretary.

‘‘(D) REVIEW OF CERTIFICATION.—In making a certification under this paragraph, the Secretary shall provide for public involvement appropriate to the metropolitan area under review.

‘‘(j) ABBREVIATED PLANS FOR CERTAIN AREAS.—

‘‘(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), in the case of a metropolitan area not designated as a transportation management area under this section, the Secretary may provide for the development of an abbreviated transportation plan for the metropolitan planning area that the Secretary determines is appropriate to achieve the purposes of this section, after considering the complexity of transportation problems in the area.

‘‘(2) NONATTAINMENT AREAS.—The Secretary may not permit abbreviated plans for a metropolitan area that is in nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.).

‘‘(k) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS FOR CERTAIN NONATTAINMENT AREAS.—

‘‘(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provisions of title 23 or this chapter, Federal funds may not be advanced for transportation management areas classified as nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide pursuant to the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.) for any highway project that will result in a significant increase in carrying capacity for single-occupant vehicles unless the project is addressed through a congestion management process.

‘‘(2) APPLICABILITY.—This subsection applies to a nonattainment area within the metropolitan planning area boundaries determined under subsection (d).

‘‘(l) LIMITATION ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to confer on a metropolitan planning organization the authority to impose legal requirements on any transportation facility, provider, or project that is not eligible under title 23 or this chapter.

‘‘(m) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Funds set aside under section 104(f) of title 23 or section 5308 of this title shall be available to carry out this section.

SEC. 3006. STATEWIDE TRANSPORTATION PLANNING.

Section 5304 is amended to read as follows:

“§ 5304. Statewide transportation planning

“(a) GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) DEVELOPMENT OF PLANS AND PROGRAMS.—To support the policies described in section 5301(a), each State shall develop a statewide transportation plan (referred to in this section as a “Plan”) and a statewide transportation improvement program (referred to in this section as a “Program”) for all areas of the State subject to section 5303.

“(2) CONTENTS.—The Plan and the Program developed for each State shall provide for the development and integrated management and operation of transportation systems and facilities (including pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities) that will function as an intermodal transportation system for the State and an integral part of an intermodal transportation system for the United States.

“(3) PROCESS OF DEVELOPMENT.—The process for developing the Plan and the Program shall—

“(A) provide for the consideration of all modes of transportation and the policies described in section 5301(a); and

“(B) be continuing, cooperative, and comprehensive to the degree appropriate, based on the complexity of the transportation problems to be addressed.

“(b) COORDINATION WITH METROPOLITAN PLANNING; STATE IMPLEMENTATION PLAN.—Each State shall—

“(1) coordinate planning under this section with the transportation planning activities under section 5303 for metropolitan areas of the State and with other related statewide planning activities, such as trade and economic development and related multistate planning efforts; and

“(2) develop the transportation portion of the State implementation plan as required by the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.).

“(c) INTERSTATE AGREEMENTS.—States may enter into agreements or compacts with other States for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in support of activities authorized under this section related to interstate areas and localities in the States and establishing authorities the States consider desirable for making the agreements and compacts effective.

“(d) SCOPE OF PLANNING PROCESS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each State shall carry out a statewide transportation planning process that provides for consideration of projects, strategies, and implementing projects and services that will—

“(A) support the economic vitality of the United States, the States, nonmetropolitan areas, and metropolitan areas, especially by enabling global competitiveness, productivity, and efficiency;

“(B) increase the safety of the transportation system for motorized and nonmotorized users;

“(C) increase the security of the transportation system for motorized and nonmotorized users;

“(D) increase the accessibility and mobility of people and freight;

“(E) protect and enhance the environment, promote energy conservation, promote consistency between transportation improvements and State and local land use planning and economic development patterns, and improve the quality of life;

“(F) enhance the integration and connectivity of the transportation system, across and between modes throughout the State, for people and freight;

“(G) promote efficient system management and operation; and “(H) emphasize the preservation of the existing transportation system.

“(2) FAILURE TO CONSIDER FACTORS.—The failure to consider any factor specified in paragraph (1) shall not be reviewable by any court under title 23 or this title, subchapter II of chapter 5 of title 5, or chapter 7 of title 5 in any matter affecting a Plan, a Program, a project or strategy, or the certification of a planning process.

“(1) with respect to nonmetropolitan areas, the concerns of affected local officials with responsibility for transportation;

“(2) the concerns of Indian tribal governments and Federal land management agencies that have jurisdiction over land within the boundaries of the State; and

“(3) coordination of Plans, Programs, and planning activities with related planning activities being carried out outside of metropolitan planning areas and between States.

“(f) STATEWIDE TRANSPORTATION PLAN.—

“(1) DEVELOPMENT.—Each State shall develop a Plan, with a minimum 20-year forecast period for all areas of the State, that provides for the development and implementation of the intermodal transportation system of the State.

“(2) CONSULTATION WITH GOVERNMENTS.—

“(A) METROPOLITAN AREAS.—The Plan shall be developed for each metropolitan area in the State in cooperation with the metropolitan planning organization designated for the metropolitan area under section 5303.

“(B) NONMETROPOLITAN AREAS.—With respect to nonmetropolitan areas, the statewide transportation plan shall be developed in consultation with affected nonmetropolitan officials with responsibility for transportation. The consultation process shall not require the review or approval of the Secretary.

“(C) INDIAN TRIBAL AREAS.—With respect to each area of the State under the jurisdiction of an Indian tribal government, the Plan shall be developed in consultation with the tribal government and the Secretary of the Interior.

“(3) PARTICIPATION BY INTERESTED PARTIES.—In developing the Plan, the State shall—

“(A) provide citizens, affected public agencies, representatives of public transportation employees, freight shippers, private providers of transportation, representatives of users of public transportation, representatives of users of pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities, providers of freight transportation services, and other interested parties with a reasonable opportunity to comment on the proposed Plan; and

“(B) identify transportation strategies necessary to efficiently serve the mobility needs of people.

“(4) FINANCIAL PLAN.—The Plan may include a financial plan that—

“(B) indicates resources from public and private sources that are reasonably expected to be made available to carry out the Plan;

“(C) recommends any additional financing strategies for needed projects and programs; and

“(D) may include, for illustrative purposes, additional projects that would be included in the adopted Plan if reasonable additional resources beyond those identified in the financial plan were available.

“(5) SELECTION OF PROJECTS FROM ILLUSTRATIVE LIST.—A State shall not be required to select any project from the illustrative list of additional projects included in the financial plan described in paragraph (4).

“(6) EXISTING SYSTEM.—The Plan should include capital, operations and management strategies, investments, procedures, and other measures to ensure the preservation and most efficient use of the existing transportation system.

“(g) STATEWIDE TRANSPORTATION IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM.—

“(1) DEVELOPMENT.—Each State shall develop a Program for all areas of the State.

“(2) CONSULTATION WITH GOVERNMENTS.—

“(A) METROPOLITAN AREAS.—With respect to each metropolitan area in the State, the Program shall be developed in cooperation with the metropolitan planning organization designated for the metropolitan area under section 5303.

“(B) NONMETROPOLITAN AREAS.—With respect to each nonmetropolitan area in the State, the Program shall be developed in consultation with affected nonmetropolitan local officials with responsibility for transportation. The consultation process shall not require the review or approval of the Secretary.

“(C) INDIAN TRIBAL AREAS.—With respect to each area of the State under the jurisdiction of an Indian tribal government, the Program shall be developed in consultation with the tribal government and the Secretary of the Interior.

“(3) PARTICIPATION BY INTERESTED PARTIES.—In developing the Program, the State shall provide citizens, affected public agencies, representatives of public transportation employees, freight shippers, private providers of transportation, providers of freight transportation services, representatives of users of public transit, representatives of users of pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities, and other interested parties with a reasonable opportunity to comment on the proposed Program.

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A Program developed under this subsection for a State shall include federally supported surface transportation expenditures within the boundaries of the State.

“(B) LISTING OF PROJECTS.—The Program shall cover a minimum of 5 years, identify projects by year, be fiscally constrained by year, and be updated not less than once every 5 years. An annual listing of projects for which funds have been obligated in the preceding 5 years in each metropolitan planning area shall be published or otherwise made available by the cooperative effort of the State, transit operator, and the metropolitan planning organization for public review. The listing shall be consistent with the funding categories identified in the first 5 years of each metropolitan transportation plan.

“(C) INDIVIDUAL IDENTIFICATION.—

“(i) REGIONALLY SIGNIFICANT PROJECTS.—Regionally significant projects proposed for funding under chapter 2 of title 23 shall be identified individually in the transportation improvement program.

“(ii) OTHER PROJECTS.—Projects proposed for funding under chapter 2 of title 23 that are not determined to be regionally significant shall be grouped in 1 line item or identified individually.

"(D) CONSISTENCY WITH STATEWIDE TRANSPORTATION PLAN.—Each project shall be—

"(i) consistent with the Plan developed under this section for the State;

"(ii) identical to the project or phase of the project as described in each year of the initial 5 years of an approved metropolitan transportation plan; and

"(iii) in conformance with the applicable State air quality implementation plan developed under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.), if the project is carried out in an area designated as nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide under that Act.

"(E) REQUIREMENT OF ANTICIPATED FULL FUNDING.—The Program shall include a project, or an identified phase of a project, only if full funding can reasonably be anticipated to be available for the project within the time period contemplated for completion of the project.

"(F) FINANCIAL PLAN.—The Program may include a financial plan that—"(i) demonstrates how the approved Program can be implemented;

"(ii) indicates resources from public and private sources that are reasonably expected to be made available to carry out the Program;

"(iii) recommends any additional financing strategies for needed projects and programs; and

"(iv) may include, for illustrative purposes, additional projects that would be included in the adopted transportation plan if reasonable additional resources beyond those identified in the financial plan were available.

"(G) SELECTION OF PROJECTS FROM ILLUSTRATIVE LIST.—

"(i) NO REQUIRED SELECTION.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (F), a State shall not be required to select any project from the illustrative list of additional projects included in the financial plan under subparagraph (F).

"(ii) REQUIRED ACTION BY THE SECRETARY.—Action by the Secretary shall be required for a State to select any project from the illustrative list of additional projects included in the financial plan under subparagraph (F) for inclusion in an approved Program.

"(H) PRIORITIES.—The Program shall reflect the priorities for programming and expenditures of funds, including transportation and transit enhancement activities, required by title 23 and this chapter, and transportation control measures included in the State's air quality implementation plan.

"(5) PROJECT SELECTION FOR AREAS WITH POPULATIONS OF FEWER THAN 50,000 INDIVIDUALS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Projects carried out in areas with populations of fewer than 50,000 individuals shall be selected, from the approved Program (excluding projects carried out under the National Highway System, the bridge program, or the Interstate maintenance program under title 23 or sections 5310 and 5311 of this title), by the State in cooperation with the affected nonmetropolitan local officials with responsibility for transportation.

"(B) CERTAIN PROGRAMS.—Projects carried out in areas with populations of fewer than 50,000 individuals under the National Highway System, the bridge program, or the Interstate maintenance program under title 23 or under sections 5310 and 5311 of this title shall be selected, from the approved Program, by the State in consultation with the affected local officials with responsibility for transportation.

"(6) STATEWIDE TRANSPORTATION IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM APPROVAL.—A Program developed under this subsection shall be reviewed and based on a current planning finding approved by the Secretary not less frequently than once every 5 years.

"(7) PLANNING FINDING.—Not less frequently than once every 5 years, the Secretary shall determine whether the transportation planning process through which Plans and Programs are developed are consistent with this section and section 5303.

"(8) MODIFICATIONS TO PROJECT PRIORITY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, action by the Secretary shall not be required to advance a project included in the approved Program in place of another project in the program.

"(h) FUNDING.—Funds set aside pursuant to section 104(i) of title 23 and 5308 of this title shall be available to carry out this section.

"(i) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN STATE LAWS AS CONGESTION MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS.—For purposes of this section and section 5303, State laws, rules, or regulations pertaining to congestion management systems or programs may constitute the congestion management system under section 5303(i)(3) if the Secretary determines that the State laws, rules, or regulations are consistent with, and fulfill the intent of, the purposes of section 5303.

"(j) CONTINUATION OF CURRENT REVIEW PRACTICE.—Any decision by the Secretary concerning a metropolitan or statewide transportation plan or the Statewide Transportation Improvement Program described in this section shall not be considered to be a Federal action subject to review under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.).

"(k) INTEGRATION OF PLANNING AND ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES.—Section 5303(o) shall also apply to the planning process established under this section, except that the planning factors to be considered shall be those set forth in subsection (d).".

SEC. 3007. TRANSPORTATION MANAGEMENT AREAS.

Section 5305 is repealed.

SEC. 3008. PRIVATE ENTERPRISE PARTICIPATION.

Section 5306 is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by striking "5305 of this title" and inserting "5308"; and

(B) by inserting ", as determined by local policies, criteria, and decision making," after "feasible";

(2) in subsection (b) by striking "5303–5305 of this title" and inserting "5303, 5304, and 5308"; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

"(c) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Secretary shall issue regulations describing how the requirements under this chapter relating to subsection (a) shall be enforced.

SEC. 3009. URBANIZED AREA FORMULA GRANTS.

(a) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—Section 5307 is amended—

(1) by striking subsections (h), (j) and (k); and

(2) by redesignating subsections (i), (l), (m), and (n) as subsections (h), (i), (j), and (k), respectively.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—Section 5307(a) is amended—

(1) by amending paragraph (2)(A) to read as follows:

"(A) an entity designated, in accordance with the planning process under sections 5303, 5304, and 5306, by the chief executive officer of a State, responsible local officials, and publicly owned operators of public transportation, to receive and apportion amounts under sections 5336 and 5337 that are attributable to transportation management areas designated under section 5303; or"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

"(3) SUBRECIPIENT.—The term 'subrecipient' means a State or local governmental authority, a nonprofit organization, or a private operator of public transportation service that may receive a Federal transit program grant indirectly through a recipient, rather than directly from the Federal Government.".

(c) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—Section 5307(b) is amended—

(1) by amending paragraph (1) to read as follows:

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation may award grants under this section for—

"(A) capital projects, including associated capital maintenance items;

"(B) planning, including mobility management;

"(C) transit enhancements;

"(D) operating costs of equipment and facilities for use in public transportation in an urbanized area with a population of less than 200,000; and

"(E) operating costs of equipment and facilities for use in public transportation in a portion or portions of an urbanized area with a population of at least 200,000, but not more than 225,000, if—

"(i) the urbanized area includes parts of more than one State or Commonwealth;

"(ii) the portion of the urbanized area includes only one State or Commonwealth;

"(iii) the population of the portion of the urbanized area is less than 30,000; and

"(iv) the grants will not be used to provide public transportation outside of the portion.";

(2) by amending paragraph (2) to read as follows:

"(2) SPECIAL RULE FOR FISCAL YEARS 2004 THROUGH 2006—

"(A) INCREASED FLEXIBILITY.—The Secretary may award grants under this section, from funds made available to carry out this section for fiscal years 2004 through 2006, to finance the operating cost of equipment and facilities for use in mass transportation in an urbanized area with a population of at least 200,000 as determined by the 2000 decennial census of population if—

"(i) the urbanized area had a population of less than 200,000, as determined by the 1990 decennial census of population;

"(ii) a portion of the urbanized area was a separate urbanized area with a population of less than 200,000, as determined by the 1990 decennial census of population;

"(iii) the area was not designated as an urbanized area as determined by the 1990 decennial census of population; and

"(iv) a portion of the area was not designated as an urbanized area, as determined by the 1990 decennial census and received assistance under section 5311 in fiscal year 2002.

"(B) MAXIMUM AMOUNTS IN FISCAL YEAR 2004.—In fiscal year 2004—

"(i) amounts made available to any urbanized area under clause (i) or (ii) of subparagraph (A) shall be not more than the amount apportioned in fiscal year 2002 to the urbanized area with a population of less than 200,000, as determined in the 1990 decennial census of population;

"(ii) amounts made available to any urbanized area under subparagraph (A)(iii) shall be not more than the amount apportioned to the urbanized area under this section for fiscal year 2003; and "(iii) each portion of any area not designated as an urbanized area under the 1990 Federal decennial census and eligible to receive funds under subparagraph (A)(iv) shall receive an amount of funds made available to carry out this section that is not less than the amount the portion of the area received under section 5311 in fiscal year 2002.

"(C) MAXIMUM AMOUNTS IN FISCAL YEAR 2005.—In fiscal year 2005—

"(i) amounts made available to any urbanized area under clause (i) or (ii) of subparagraph (A) shall be not more than 50 percent of the amount apportioned in fiscal year 2002 to the urbanized area with a population of less than 200,000, as determined in the 1990 decennial census of population;

"(ii) amounts made available to any urbanized area under subparagraph (A)(iii) shall be not more than 50 percent of the amount apportioned to the urbanized area under this section for fiscal year 2003; and

"(iii) each portion of any area not designated as an urbanized area under the 1990 decennial census and eligible to receive funds under subparagraph (A)(iv) shall receive an amount of funds made available to carry out this section that is not less 50 percent of the amount the portion of the area received under section 5311 in fiscal year 2002.

"(D) MAXIMUM AMOUNTS IN FISCAL YEAR 2006.—In fiscal year 2006—

"(i) amounts made available to any urbanized area under clause (i) or (ii) of subparagraph (A) shall be not more than 25 percent of the amount apportioned in fiscal year 2002 to the urbanized area with a population of less than 200,000 as determined in the 1990 decennial census of population:

"(ii) amounts made available to any urbanized area under subparagraph (A)(iii) shall be not more than 25 percent of the amount apportioned to the urbanized area under this section for fiscal year 2003; and

"(iii) each portion of any area not designated as an urbanized area under the 1990 decennial census and eligible to receive funds under subparagraph (A)(iv) shall receive an amount of funds made available to carry out this section that is not less than 25 percent of the amount the portion of the area received under section 5311 in fiscal year 2002."; and

(3) by striking paragraph (4).

(d) PUBLIC PARTICIPATION REQUIREMENTS.—Section 5307(c)(5) is amended by striking "section 5336" and inserting "sections 5336 and 5337".

(e) GRANT RECIPIENT REQUIREMENTS.—Section 5307(d)(1) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A), by inserting ", including safety and security aspects of the program" after "program";

(2) in subparagraph (E), by striking "section" and all that follows and inserting "section, the recipient will comply with sections 5323 and 5325;";

(3) in subparagraph (H), by striking "sections 5301(a) and (d), 5303–5306, and 5310(a)–(d) of this title" and inserting "subsections (a) and (d) of section 5301 and sections 5303 through 5306";

(4) in subparagraph (I) by striking "and" at the end:

(5) in subparagraph (J), by striking the period at the end and inserting "; and"; and

(6) by adding at the end the following:

"(K) if located in an urbanized area with a population of not less than 200,000, will expend 1 percent of the amount the recipient receives each fiscal year under this section for transit enhancement activities described in section 5302(a)(15).".

(f) GOVERNMENT'S SHARE OF COSTS.—Section 5307(e) is amended—

(1) by striking the first sentence and inserting the following:

"(1) CAPITAL PROJECTS.—A grant for a capital project under this section shall cover 80 percent of the net project cost.";

(2) by striking "A grant for operating expenses" and inserting the following:

"(2) OPERATING EXPENSES.—A grant for operating expenses";

(3) by striking the fourth sentence and inserting the following:

"(3) REMAINING COSTS.—The remainder of the net project cost shall be provided in cash from non-Federal sources or revenues derived from the sale of advertising and concessions and amounts received under a service agreement with a State or local social service agency or a private social service organization."; and

(4) by adding at the end the following: "The prohibitions on the use of funds for matching requirements under section 403(a)(5)(C)(vii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 603(a)(5)(C)(vii)) shall not apply to the remainder.".

(g) UNDERTAKING PROJECTS IN ADVANCE.—Section 5307(g) is amended by striking paragraph (4).

(h) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAWS.—Section 5307(k), as redesignated, is amended to read as follows:

"(k) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAWS.—

"(1) APPLICABLE PROVISIONS.—Sections 5301, 5302, 5303, 5304, 5306, 5315(c), 5318, 5319, 5323, 5325, 5327, 5329, 5330, 5331, 5332, 5333 and 5335 apply to this section and to any grant made under this section.

"(2) INAPPLICABLE PROVISIONS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under this section, no other provision of this chapter applies to this section or to a grant made under this section.

"(B) TITLE 5.—The provision of assistance under this chapter shall not be construed as bringing within the application of chapter 15 of title 5, any nonsupervisory employee of a public transportation system (or any other agency or entity performing related functions) to which such chapter is otherwise inapplicable.".

SEC. 3010. PLANNING PROGRAMS.

"§ 5308. Planning programs

"(a) GRANTS AUTHORIZED.—Under criteria established by the Secretary, the Secretary may award grants to States, authorities of the States, metropolitan planning organizations, and local governmental authorities, make agreements with other departments, agencies, or instrumentalities of the Government, or enter into contracts with private nonprofit or for-profit entities to—

"(1) develop transportation plans and programs;

"(2) plan, engineer, design, and evaluate a public transportation project; and

"(3) conduct technical studies relating to public transportation, including—

"(A) studies related to management, planning, operations, capital requirements, and economic feasibility;

"(B) evaluations of previously financed projects;

"(C) peer reviews and exchanges of technical data, information, assistance, and related activities in support of planning and environmental analyses among metropolitan planning organizations and other transportation planners; and

"(D) other similar and related activities preliminary to, and in preparation for, constructing, acquiring, or improving the operation of facilities and equipment.

"(b) PURPOSE.—To the extent practicable, the Secretary shall ensure that amounts appropriated pursuant to section 5338 to carry out this section and sections 5303 through 5305 are used to support balanced and comprehensive transportation planning that considers the relationships among land use and all transportation modes, without regard to the programmatic source of the planning amounts.

"(c) METROPOLITAN PLANNING PROGRAM.—

"(1) ALLOCATIONS TO STATES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall allocate 80 percent of the amount made available under subsection (g)(3)(A) to States to carry out sections 5303 and 5306 in a ratio equal to the population in urbanized areas in each State, divided by the total population in urbanized areas in all States, as shown by the latest available decennial census of population.

"(B) MINIMUM ALLOCATION.—Each State shall receive not less than 0.5 percent of the total amount allocated under this paragraph.

"(2) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—A State receiving an allocation under paragraph (1) shall promptly distribute such funds to metropolitan planning organizations in the State under a formula—

"(A) developed by the State in cooperation with the metropolitan planning organizations;

"(B) approved by the Secretary of Transportation;

"(C) that considers population in urbanized areas; and

"(D) that provides an appropriate distribution for urbanized areas to carry out the cooperative processes described in this section.

"(3) SUPPLEMENTAL ALLOCATIONS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall allocate 20 percent of the amount made available under subsection (g)(3)(A) to States to supplement allocations made under paragraph (1) for metropolitan planning organizations.

"(B) ALLOCATION FORMULA.—Amounts under this paragraph shall be allocated under a formula that reflects the additional cost of carrying out planning, programming, and project selection responsibilities in complex metropolitan planning areas under sections 5303 through 5306.

"(d) STATE PLANNING AND RESEARCH PROGRAM.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The amounts made available pursuant to subsection (g)(3)(B) shall be allocated to States for grants and contracts to carry out sections 5304, 5306, 5315, and 5322 so that each State receives an amount equal to the ratio of the population in urbanized areas in that State, divided by the total population in urbanized areas in all States, as shown by the latest available decennial census.

"(2) MINIMUM ALLOCATION.—Each State shall receive not less than 0.5 percent of the amount allocated under this subsection.

"(3) REALLOCATION.—A State may authorize part of the amount made available under this subsection to be used to supplement amounts available under subsection (c).

"(e) PLANNING CAPACITY BUILDING PROGRAM.—

"(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary shall establish a Planning Capacity Building Program (referred to in this subsection as the "Program") to support and fund innovative practices and enhancements in transportation planning.

"(2) PURPOSE.—The purpose of the Program shall be to promote activities that support and strengthen the planning processes required under this section and sections 5303 and 5304.

“(3) Administration.—The Program shall be administered by the Federal Transit Administration in cooperation with the Federal Highway Administration.

“(4) Use of funds.—

“(A) In general.—Appropriations authorized under subsection (g)(1) to carry out this subsection may be used—

“(i) to provide incentive grants to States, metropolitan planning organizations, and public transportation operators; and “(ii) to conduct research, disseminate information, and provide technical assistance.

“(B) Grants, contracts, cooperative agreements.—In carrying out the activities described in paragraph (2)(B), the Secretary may—

“(i) expend appropriated funds directly; or

“(ii) award grants to, or enter into contracts, cooperative agreements, and other transactions, with a Federal agency, State agency, local governmental authority, association, nonprofit or for-profit entity, or institution of higher education.

“(f) Government's Share of Costs.—Amounts made available to carry out subsections (c), (d), and (e) may not exceed 80 percent of the costs of the activity unless the Secretary of Transportation determines that it is in the interests of the Government not to require a State or local match.

“(g) Allocation of Funds.—Of the amounts made available under section 5338(b)(2)(B) for fiscal year 2005 and each fiscal year thereafter to carry out this section—

“(1) $5,000,000 shall be allocated for the Planning Capacity Building Program established under subsection (e);

“(2) $20,000,000 shall be allocated for grants under subsection (a)(2) for alternatives analyses required by section 5309(e)(2)(A); and

“(3) of the remaining amount—

“(A) 82.72 percent shall be allocated for the metropolitan planning program described in subsection (d); and

“(h) Reallocations.—Any amount allocated under this section that has not been used 3 years after the end of the fiscal year in which the amount was allocated shall be reallocated among the States.”.

(b) Conforming Amendment.—The item relating to section 5308 in the table of sections for chapter 53 is amended to read as follows:

“5308. Planning programs.”.

SEC. 3011. CAPITAL INVESTMENT PROGRAM.

“§5309. Capital investment grants”.

(b) General Authority.—Section 5309(a) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)—

(A) by striking “(1) The Secretary of Transportation may make grants and loans” and inserting the following:

“(1) Grants authorized.—The Secretary may award grants”;

(B) in subparagraph (A), by striking “alternatives analysis related to the development of systems,”;

(C) by striking subparagraphs (B), (C), (D), and (G);

(D) by redesignating subparagraphs (E), (F), and (H) as subparagraphs (B), (C), and (D), respectively;

(E) in subparagraph (C), as redesignated, by striking the semicolon at the end and inserting “, including programs of bus and bus-related projects for assistance to subrecipients which are public agencies, private companies engaged in public transportation, or private nonprofit organizations; and”; and

(F) in subparagraph (D), as redesignated—

(i) by striking “to support fixed guideway systems”; and

(ii) by striking “dedicated bus and high occupancy vehicle”;

(2) by amending paragraph (2) to read as follows:

“(2) Grantee requirements.—

“(A) Grantee in an urbanized area.—The Secretary shall require that any grants awarded under this section to a recipient located in an urbanized area shall be subject to all terms, conditions, requirements, and provisions that the Secretary determines to be necessary or appropriate for the purposes of this section, including requirements for the disposition of net increases in the value of real property resulting from the project assisted under this section.

“(B) Grantee not in an urbanized area.—The Secretary shall require that any grants awarded under this section to a recipient not located in an urbanized area shall be subject to the same terms, conditions, requirements, and provisions as a recipient or subrecipient of assistance under section 5311.

“(C) Subrecipient.—The Secretary shall require that any private, nonprofit organization that is a subrecipient of a grant awarded under this section shall be subject to the same terms, conditions, requirements, and provisions as a subrecipient of assistance under section 5310.”; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

“(3) Certification.—An applicant that has submitted the certifications required under subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (H) of section 5307(d)(1) shall be deemed to have provided sufficient information upon which the Secretary may make the findings required under this subsection.”.

(c) Defined Term.—Section 5309(b) is amended to read as follows:

“(b) Defined Term.—As used in this section, the term ‘alternatives analysis’ means a study conducted as part of the transportation planning process required under sections 5303 and 5304, which includes—

“(1) an assessment of a wide range of public transportation alternatives designed to address a transportation problem in a corridor or subarea;

“(2) sufficient information to enable the Secretary to make the findings of project justification and local financial commitment required under this section;

“(3) the selection of a locally preferred alternative; and

“(d) Grant Requirements.—The Secretary may not approve a grant for a project under this section unless the Secretary determines that—

“(1) the project is part of an approved transportation plan and program of projects required under sections 5303, 5304, and 5306; and

“(2) the applicant has, or will have—

“(A) the legal, financial, and technical capacity to carry out the project (including safety and security aspects of the project);

“(B) satisfactory continuing control over the use of the equipment or facilities; and

“(C) the capability and willingness to maintain the equipment or facilities.”.

(e) Major Capital Investment Projects of $75,000,000 or More.—Section 5309(e) is amended to read as follows:

“(e) Major Capital Investment Projects of $75,000,000 or More.—

“(1) Full funding grant agreement.—The Secretary shall enter into a full funding grant agreement, based on the evaluations and ratings required under this subsection, with each grantee receiving not less than $75,000,000 under this subsection for a new fixed guideway capital project that—

“(A) is authorized for final design and construction; and

“(B) has been rated as medium, medium-high, or high, as defined in this subsection.

“(2) Determinations.—The Secretary shall not award a grant under this subsection for a major capital project unless the Secretary determines that the proposed project is—

“(B) justified based on a comprehensive review of its mobility improvements, environmental benefits, cost-effectiveness, operating efficiencies, economic development effects, and public transportation supportive land use patterns and policies; and

“(C) supported by an acceptable degree of local financial commitment, including evidence of stable and dependable financing sources to construct the project, and maintain and operate the entire public transportation system, while ensuring that the extent and quality of existing public transportation services are not degraded.

“(3) Evaluation of project justification.—In order to make the determinations required under paragraph (2)(B) for a major capital investment grant, the Secretary shall analyze, evaluate, and consider—

“(B) the reliability of the forecasts of costs and utilization made by the recipient and the contractors to the recipient;

“(C) the direct and indirect costs of relevant alternatives;

“(D) factors such as—

“(i) congestion relief;

“(ii) improved mobility;

“(iii) air pollution;

“(iv) noise pollution;

“(v) energy consumption; and

“(vi) all associated ancillary and mitigation costs necessary to carry out each alternative analyzed;

“(E) reductions in local infrastructure costs achieved through compact land use development;

“(F) the cost of suburban sprawl;

“(G) the degree to which the project increases the mobility of the public transportation dependent population or promotes economic development;

“(I) the technical capability of the grant recipient to construct the project;

“(J) any adjustment to the project justification necessary to reflect differences in local land, construction, and operating costs; and

“(4) Evaluation of local financial commitment.—

“(A) In general.—In evaluating a project under paragraph (2)(C), the Secretary shall require that—

“(i) the proposed project plan provides for the availability of contingency amounts that the Secretary determines to be reasonable to cover unanticipated cost increases;

"(ii) each proposed local source of capital and operating financing is stable, reliable, and available within the proposed project timetable; and

"(iii) local resources are available to recapitalize and operate the overall proposed public transportation system, including essential feeder bus and other services necessary to achieve the projected ridership levels, while ensuring that the extent and quality of existing public transportation services are not degraded.

"(B) EVALUATION CRITERIA.—In assessing the stability, reliability, and availability of proposed sources of local financing under paragraph (2)(C), the Secretary shall consider—

"(i) the reliability of the forecasts of costs and utilization made by the recipient and the contractors to the recipient;

"(ii) existing grant commitments;

"(iii) the degree to which financing sources are dedicated to the proposed purposes;

"(iv) any debt obligation that exists, or is proposed by the recipient, for the proposed project or other public transportation purpose; and

"(v) the extent to which the project has a local financial commitment that exceeds the required non-Federal share of the cost of the project, provided that if the Secretary gives priority to financing projects that include more than the non-Federal share required under subsection (h), the Secretary shall give equal consideration to differences in the fiscal capacity of State and local governments.

"(5) PROJECT ADVANCEMENT AND RATINGS.—

"(A) PROJECT ADVANCEMENT.—A proposed project under this subsection shall not advance from alternatives analysis to preliminary engineering or from preliminary engineering to final design and construction unless the Secretary determines that the project meets the requirements of this section and there is a reasonable likelihood that the project will continue to meet such requirements.

"(B) RATINGS.—In making a determination under subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall evaluate and rate the project on a 5-point scale (high, medium-high, medium, medium-low, or low) based on the results of the alternatives analysis, the project justification criteria, and the degree of local financial commitment, as required under this subsection. In rating the projects, the Secretary shall provide, in addition to the overall project rating, individual ratings for each of the criteria established by regulation.

"(6) APPLICABILITY.—This subsection shall not apply to projects for which the Secretary has issued a letter of intent or entered into a full funding grant agreement before the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004.

"(7) RULEMAKING.—Not later than 240 days after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Secretary shall issue regulations on the manner by which the Secretary shall evaluate and rate projects based on the results of alternatives analysis, project justification, and local financial commitment, in accordance with this subsection.

"(8) POLICY GUIDANCE.—

"(A) PUBLICATION.—The Secretary shall publish policy guidance regarding the new starts project review and evaluation process—

"(i) not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004; and

"(ii) each time significant changes are made by the Secretary to the new starts project review and evaluation process and criteria, but not less frequently than once every 2 years.

"(B) PUBLIC COMMENT AND RESPONSE.—The Secretary shall—

"(i) invite public comment to the guidance published under subparagraph (A); and

"(ii) publish a response to the comments received under clause (i).".

(f) MAJOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT PROJECTS LESS THAN $75,000,000.—Section 5309(f) is amended to read as follows:

"(f) MAJOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT PROJECTS LESS THAN $75,000,000.—

"(1) PROJECT CONSTRUCTION GRANT AGREEMENT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall enter into a project construction grant agreement, based on evaluations and ratings required under this subsection, with each grantee receiving less than $75,000,000 under this subsection for a new fixed guideway or corridor improvement capital project that—

"(i) is authorized by law; and

"(ii) has been rated as medium, medium-high, or high, in accordance with paragraph (3).

"(B) CONTENTS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—An agreement under this paragraph shall specify—

"(I) the scope of the project to be constructed;

"(II) the estimated net cost of the project;

"(III) the schedule under which the project shall be constructed;

"(IV) the maximum amount of funding to be obtained under this subsection;

"(V) the proposed schedule for obligation of future Federal grants; and

"(VI) the sources of non-Federal funding.

"(ii) ADDITIONAL FUNDING.—The agreement may include a commitment on the part of the Secretary to provide funding for the project in future fiscal years.

"(C) FULL FUNDING GRANT AGREEMENT.—An agreement under this paragraph shall be considered a full funding grant agreement for the purposes of subsection (g).

"(2) SELECTION PROCESS.—

"(A) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Secretary may provide financial assistance under this subsection for a proposed project only if the Secretary determines that the project is—

"(i) based on the results of planning and alternatives analysis;

"(ii) justified based on a review of its public transportation supportive land use policies, cost effectiveness, and effect on local economic development; and

"(iii) supported by an acceptable degree of local financial commitment.

"(B) PLANNING AND ALTERNATIVES.—In evaluating a project under subparagraph (A)(i), the Secretary shall analyze and consider the results of planning and alternatives analysis for the project.

"(C) PROJECT JUSTIFICATION.—For purposes of making the determination under paragraph (A)(ii), the Secretary shall—

"(i) determine the degree to which local land use policies are supportive of the public transportation project and the degree to which the project is likely to achieve local developmental goals;

"(ii) determine the cost effectiveness of the project at the time of the initiation of revenue service;

"(iii) determine the degree to which the project will have a positive effect on local economic development;

"(iv) consider the reliability of the forecasts of costs and ridership associated with the project; and

"(v) consider other factors that the Secretary determines appropriate to carry out this subsection.

"(D) LOCAL FINANCIAL COMMITMENT.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)(iii), the Secretary shall require that each proposed local source of capital and operating financing is stable, reliable, and available within the proposed project timetable.

"(3) ADVANCEMENT OF PROJECT TO DEVELOPMENT AND CONSTRUCTION.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A proposed project under this subsection may advance from the planning and alternatives analysis stage to project development and construction only if—

"(i) the Secretary finds that the project meets the requirements of this subsection and there is a reasonable likelihood that the project will continue to meet such requirements; and

"(ii) the metropolitan planning organization has adopted the locally preferred alternative for the project into the long-range transportation plan.

"(B) EVALUATION.—In making the findings under subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall evaluate and rate the project as 'high', 'medium-high', 'medium', 'medium-low', or 'low' based on the results of the analysis of the project justification criteria and the degree of local financial commitment, as required by this subsection.

"(4) IMPACT REPORT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 240 days after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Federal Transit Administration shall submit a report on the methodology to be used in evaluating the land use and economic development impacts of non-fixed guideway or partial fixed guideway projects to—

"(i) the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate; and

"(ii) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives.

"(B) CONTENTS.—The report submitted under subparagraph (A) shall address any qualitative and quantitative differences between fixed guideway and non-fixed guideway projects with respect to land use and economic development impacts.

"(5) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Secretary shall issue regulations establishing an evaluation and rating process for proposed projects under this subsection that is based on the results of project justification and local financial commitment, as required under this subsection.".

"(C) BEFORE AND AFTER STUDY.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Each full funding grant agreement shall require the applicant to conduct a study that—

"(I) describes and analyzes the impacts of the new start project on transit services and transit ridership;

"(II) evaluates the consistency of predicted and actual project characteristics and performance; and

"(III) identifies sources of differences between predicted and actual outcomes.

"(ii) INFORMATION COLLECTION AND ANALYSIS PLAN.—

"(I) SUBMISSION OF PLAN.—Applicants seeking a full funding grant agreement shall submit a complete plan for the collection and analysis of information to identify the impacts of the new start project and the accuracy of the forecasts prepared during development of the project. Preparation of this plan shall be included in the full funding grant agreement as an eligible activity.

"(II) CONTENTS OF PLAN.—The plan submitted under subclause (I) shall provide for—

"(aa) the collection of data on the current transit system regarding transit service levels and ridership patterns, including origins and destinations, access modes, trip purposes, and rider characteristics;

"(bb) documentation of the predicted scope, service levels, capital costs, operating costs, and ridership of the project;

"(cc) collection of data on the transit system 2 years after the opening of the new start project, including analogous information on transit service levels and ridership patterns and information on the as-built scope and capital costs of the new start project; and

"(dd) analysis of the consistency of predicted project characteristics with the after data.

"(D) COLLECTION OF DATA ON CURRENT SYSTEM.—To be eligible for a full funding grant agreement, recipients shall have collected data on the current system, according to the plan required, before the beginning of construction of the proposed new start project. Collection of this data shall be included in the full funding grant agreement as an eligible activity.

"(E) PUBLIC PRIVATE PARTNERSHIP PILOT PROGRAM.—

"(i) AUTHORIZATION.—The Secretary may establish a pilot program to demonstrate the advantages of public-private partnerships for certain fixed guideway systems development projects.

"(ii) IDENTIFICATION OF QUALIFIED PROJECTS.—The Secretary shall identify qualified public-private partnership projects as permitted by applicable State and local enabling laws and work with project sponsors to enhance project delivery and reduce overall costs.".

(h) FEDERAL SHARE OF NET PROJECT COST.—Section 5309(h) is amended to read as follows:

"(h) FEDERAL SHARE OF ADJUSTED NET PROJECT COST.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall estimate the Federal share of the net project cost based on engineering studies, studies of economic feasibility, and information on the expected use of equipment or facilities.

"(2) ADJUSTMENT FOR COMPLETION UNDER BUDGET.—The Secretary may adjust the final net project cost of a major capital investment project evaluated under subsections (e) and (f) to include the cost of eligible activities not included in the originally defined project if the Secretary determines that the originally defined project has been completed at a cost that is significantly below the original estimate.

"(3) MAXIMUM FEDERAL SHARE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A grant for the project shall be for 80 percent of the net project cost, or the net project cost as adjusted under paragraph (2), unless the grant recipient requests a lower grant percentage.

"(B) EXCEPTIONS.—The Secretary may provide a higher grant percentage than requested by the grant recipient if—

"(i) the Secretary determines that the net project cost of the project is not more than 10 percent higher than the net project cost estimated at the time the project was approved for advancement into preliminary engineering; and

"(ii) the ridership estimated for the project is not less than 90 percent of the ridership estimated for the project at the time the project was approved for advancement into preliminary engineering.

"(4) OTHER SOURCES.—The costs not funded by a grant under this section may be funded from—

"(A) an undistributed cash surplus;

"(B) a replacement or depreciation cash fund or reserve; or

"(C) new capital, including any Federal funds that are eligible to be expended for transportation.

"(5) PLANNED EXTENSION TO FIXED GUIDEWAY SYSTEM.—In addition to amounts allowed under paragraph (1), a planned extension to a fixed guideway system may include the cost of rolling stock previously purchased if the Secretary determines that only non-Federal funds were used and that the purchase was made for use on the extension. A refund or reduction of the remainder may be made only if a refund of a proportional amount of the grant is made at the same time.

"(6) EXCEPTION.—The prohibitions on the use of funds for matching requirements under section 403(a)(5)(C)(vii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 603(a)(5)(C)(vii)) shall not apply to amounts allowed under paragraph (4).".

(i) LOAN PROVISIONS AND FISCAL CAPACITY CONSIDERATIONS.—Section 5309 is amended—

(1) by striking subsections (i), (j), (k), and (l);

(2) by redesignating subsections (m) and (n) as subsections (i) and (j), respectively;

(3) by striking subsection (o) (as added by section 3009(i) of the Federal Transit Act of 1998); and

(4) by redesignating subsections (o) and (p) as subsections (k) and (l), respectively.

(j) ALLOCATING AMOUNTS.—Section 5309(i), as redesignated, is amended to read as follows:

"(i) ALLOCATING AMOUNTS.—

"(1) FISCAL YEAR 2004.—Of the amounts made available or appropriated for fiscal year 2004 under section 5338(a)(3)—

"(A) $1,315,983,615 shall be allocated for projects of not less than $75,000,000 for major capital projects for new fixed guideway systems and extensions of such systems under subsection (e) and new major corridor improvements under subsection (f);

"(B) $1,199,387,615 shall be allocated for capital projects for fixed guideway modernization; and

"(C) $673,204,520 shall be allocated for capital projects for buses and bus-related equipment and facilities.

"(2) IN GENERAL.—Of the amounts made available or appropriated for fiscal year 2005 and each fiscal year thereafter for grants under this section pursuant to subsections (b)(4) and (c) of section 5338—

"(A) the amounts appropriated under section 5338(c) shall be allocated for major capital projects for—

"(i) new fixed guideway systems and extensions of not less than $75,000,000, in accordance with subsection (e); and

"(ii) new major capital projects for corridor improvements, in accordance with subsection (f); and

"(B) the amounts made available under section 5338(b)(4) shall be allocated for capital projects for buses and bus-related equipment and facilities.

"(3) FIXED GUIDEWAY MODERNIZATION.—The amounts made available for fixed guideway modernization under section 5338(b)(2)(K) for fiscal year 2005 and each fiscal year thereafter shall be allocated in accordance with section 5337.

"(4) NEW FIXED GUIDEWAY SYSTEMS AND CORRIDOR IMPROVEMENTS.—Not more that 8 percent of the allocation described in paragraphs (1)(A) and (2)(A) may be expended on preliminary engineering.

"(5) FUNDING FOR FERRY BOATS.—Of the amounts described in paragraphs (1)(A) and (2)(A), $10,400,000 shall be available in each of the fiscal years 2004 through 2009 for capital projects in Alaska and Hawaii for new fixed guideway systems and extension projects utilizing ferry boats, ferry boat terminals, or approaches to ferry boat terminals.

"(6) BUS AND BUS FACILITY GRANTS.—

"(A) CONSIDERATIONS.—In making grants under paragraphs (1)(C) and (2)(B), the Secretary shall consider the age and condition of buses, bus fleets, related equipment, and bus-related facilities.

"(B) PROJECTS NOT IN URBANIZED AREAS.—Of the amounts made available under paragraphs (1)(C) and (2)(B), not less than 5.5 percent shall be available in each fiscal year for projects that are not in urbanized areas.

"(C) INTERMODAL TERMINALS.—Of the amounts made available under paragraphs (1)(C) and (2)(B), not less than $75,000,000 shall be available in each fiscal year for intermodal terminal projects, including the intercity bus portion of such projects.".

(k) REPORTS.—Section 5309 is amended by inserting at the end the following:

"(m) REPORTS.—

"(1) ANNUAL REPORT ON FUNDING RECOMMENDATIONS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than the first Monday of February of each year, the Secretary shall submit a report on funding recommendations to—

"(i) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives;

"(ii) the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate;

"(iii) the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives; and

"(iv) the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

"(B) CONTENTS.—The report submitted under subparagraph (A) shall contain—

"(i) a proposal on the allocation of amounts to finance grants for capital investment projects among grant applicants;

"(ii) a recommendation of projects to be funded based on—

"(I) the evaluations and ratings determined under subsection (e); and

"(II) existing commitments and anticipated funding levels for the subsequent 3 fiscal years; and

"(iii) detailed ratings and evaluations on each project recommended for funding.

"(2) TRIENNIAL REPORTS ON PROJECT RATINGS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than the first Monday of February, the first Monday of June, and the first Monday of October of each year, the Secretary shall submit a report on project ratings to—

"(i) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives;

"(ii) the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate;

"(iii) the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives; and

"(iv) the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

"(B) CONTENTS.—Each report submitted under subparagraph (A) shall contain—

"(i) a summary of the ratings of all capital investment projects for which funding was requested under this section;

"(ii) detailed ratings and evaluations on the project of each applicant that had significant changes to the finance or project proposal or has completed alternatives or preliminary engineering since the date of the latest report; and

"(iii) all relevant information supporting the evaluation and rating of each updated project, including a summary of the financial plan of each updated project.

"(3) BEFORE AND AFTER STUDY REPORTS.—Not later than the first Monday of August of each year, the Secretary shall submit a report containing a summary of the results of the studies conducted under subsection (g)(2) to—

"(A) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives;

"(B) the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate;

"(C) the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives; and

"(4) CONTRACTOR PERFORMANCE ASSESSMENT REPORT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, and each year thereafter, the Secretary shall submit a report analyzing the consistency and accuracy of cost and ridership estimates made by each contractor to public transportation agencies developing major investment projects to the committees and subcommittees listed under paragraph (3).

"(B) CONTENTS.—The report submitted under subparagraph (A) shall compare the cost and ridership estimates made at the time projects are approved for entrance into preliminary engineering with—

"(i) estimates made at the time projects are approved for entrance into final design;

"(ii) costs and ridership when the project commences revenue operation; and

"(iii) costs and ridership when the project has been in operation for 2 years.

"(5) ANNUAL GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE REVIEW.—

"(A) REVIEW.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct an annual review of the processes and procedures for evaluating and rating projects and recommending projects and the Secretary's implementation of such processes and procedures.

"(B) REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after the submission of each report required under paragraph (3), the Comptroller General shall submit a report to Congress that summarizes the results of the review conducted under subparagraph (A).

"(6) CONTRACTOR PERFORMANCE INCENTIVE REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Secretary shall submit a report to the committees and subcommittees listed under paragraph (3) on the suitability of allowing contractors to public transportation agencies that undertake major capital investments under this section to receive performance incentive awards if a project is completed for less than the original estimated cost.".

SEC. 3012. NEW FREEDOM FOR ELDERLY PERSONS AND PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 5310 is amended to read as follows:

"(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—

"(1) AUTHORIZATION.—The Secretary may award grants to a State for capital public transportation projects that are planned, designed, and carried out to meet the needs of elderly individuals and individuals with disabilities, with priority given to the needs of these individuals to access necessary health care.

"(2) ACQUISITION OF PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION SERVICES.—A capital public transportation project under this section may include acquiring public transportation services as an eligible capital expense.

"(3) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—A State may use not more than 15 percent of the amounts received under this section to administer, plan, and provide technical assistance for a project funded under this section.

"(b) ALLOTMENTS AMONG STATES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—From amounts made available or appropriated in each fiscal year under subsections (a)(1)(C)(iv) and (b)(2)(D) of section 5338 for grants under this section, the Secretary shall allot amounts to each State under a formula based on the number of elderly individuals and individuals with disabilities in each State.

"(2) TRANSFER OF FUNDS.—Any funds allotted to a State under paragraph (1) may be transferred by the State to the apportionments made under sections 5311(c) and 5336 if such funds are only used for eligible projects selected under this section.

"(3) REALLOCATION OF FUNDS.—A State receiving a grant under this section may reallocate such grant funds to—

"(A) a private nonprofit organization;

"(B) a public transportation agency or authority; or

"(C) a governmental authority that—

"(i) has been approved by the State to coordinate services for elderly individuals and individuals with disabilities;

"(ii) certifies that nonprofit organizations are not readily available in the area that can provide the services described under this subsection; or

"(iii) will provide services to persons with disabilities that exceed those services required by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

"(c) FEDERAL SHARE.—

"(1) MAXIMUM.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A grant for a capital project under this section may not exceed 80 percent of the net capital costs of the project, as determined by the Secretary.

"(B) EXCEPTION.—A State described in section 120(b)(1) of title 23 shall receive an increased Federal share in accordance with the formula under that section.

"(2) REMAINING COSTS.—The costs of a capital project under this section that are not funded through a grant under this section—

"(A) may be funded from an undistributed cash surplus, a replacement or depreciation cash fund or reserve, a service agreement with a State or local social service agency or a private social service organization, or new capital; and

"(B) may be derived from amounts appropriated to or made available to any Federal agency (other than the Department of Transportation, except for Federal Lands Highway funds) that are eligible to be expended for transportation.

"(3) EXCEPTION.—For purposes of paragraph (2), the prohibitions on the use of funds for matching requirements under section 403(a)(5)(C)(vii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 603(a)(5)(C)(vii)) shall not apply to Federal or State funds to be used for transportation purposes.

"(d) GRANT REQUIREMENTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—A grant recipient under this section shall be subject to the requirements of a grant recipient under section 5307 to the extent the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

"(2) CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS.

"(A) FUND TRANSFERS.—A grant recipient under this section that transfers funds to a project funded under section 5336 in accordance with subsection (b)(2) shall certify that the project for which the funds are requested has been coordinated with private nonprofit providers of services under this section.

"(B) PROJECT SELECTION AND PLAN DEVELOPMENT.—Each grant recipient under this section shall certify that—

"(i) the projects selected were derived from a locally developed, coordinated public transit-human services transportation plan; and

"(ii) the plan was developed through a process that included representatives of public, private, and nonprofit transportation and human services providers and participation by the public.

"(C) ALLOCATIONS TO SUBRECIPIENTS.—Each grant recipient under this section shall certify that allocations of the grant to subrecipients, if any, are distributed on a fair and equitable basis.

"(e) STATE PROGRAM OF PROJECTS.—

"(1) SUBMISSION TO SECRETARY.—Each State shall annually submit a program of transportation projects to the Secretary for approval with an assurance that the program provides for maximum feasible coordination between transportation services funded under this section and transportation services assisted by other Federal sources.

"(2) USE OF FUNDS.—Each State may use amounts made available to carry out this section to provide transportation services for elderly individuals and individuals with disabilities if such services are included in an approved State program of projects.

"(f) LEASING VEHICLES.—Vehicles acquired under this section may be leased to local governmental authorities to improve transportation services designed to meet the needs of elderly individuals and individuals with disabilities.

"(g) MEAL DELIVERY FOR HOMEBOUND INDIVIDUALS.—Public transportation service providers receiving assistance under this section or section 5311(c) may coordinate and assist in regularly providing meal delivery service for homebound individuals if the delivery service does not conflict with providing public transportation service or reduce service to public transportation passengers.

"(h) TRANSFERS OF FACILITIES AND EQUIPMENT.—With the consent of the recipient in possession of a facility or equipment acquired with a grant under this section, a State may transfer the facility or equipment to any recipient eligible to receive assistance under this chapter if the facility or equipment will continue to be used as required under this section.

"(i) FARES NOT REQUIRED.—This section does not require that elderly individuals and individuals with disabilities be charged a fare.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The item relating to section 5310 in the table of sections for chapter 53 is amended to read as follows:

"5310. New freedom for elderly persons and persons with disabilities.".

SEC. 3013. FORMULA GRANTS FOR OTHER THAN URBANIZED AREAS.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—Section 5311(a) is amended to read as follows:

"(1) RECIPIENT.—The term 'recipient' means a State that receives a Federal transit program grant directly from the Federal Government.

"(2) SUBRECIPIENT.—The term 'subrecipient' means a State or local governmental authority, a nonprofit organization, or a private operator of public transportation service that receives Federal transit program grant funds indirectly through a recipient.".

(b) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—Section 5311(b) is amended—

(1) by amending paragraph (1) to read as follows:

"(1) GRANTS AUTHORIZED.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), the Secretary may award grants under this section to recipients located in areas other than urbanized areas for—

"(A) public transportation capital projects;

"(B) operating costs of equipment and facilities for use in public transportation; and

"(C) the acquisition of public transportation services.";

(2) by redesignating paragraph (2) as paragraph (3);

(3) by inserting after paragraph (1) the following:

"(2) STATE PROGRAM.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A project eligible for a grant under this section shall be included in a State program for public transportation service projects, including agreements with private providers of public transportation service.

"(B) SUBMISSION TO SECRETARY.—Each State shall annually submit the program described in subparagraph (A) to the Secretary.

"(C) APPROVAL.—The Secretary may not approve the program unless the Secretary determines that—

"(i) the program provides a fair distribution of amounts in the State;

"(ii) the program provides the maximum feasible coordination of public transportation service assisted under this section with transportation service assisted by other Federal sources; and

"(iii) amounts provided for projects on Indian reservations are not less than amounts attributable to the population and land area of Indian reservations in the State, as published under subsection (c)(5).";

(4) in paragraph (3), as redesignated—

(A) by striking "(3) The Secretary of Transportation" and inserting the following:

"(3) RURAL TRANSPORTATION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—

"(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary";

(B) by striking "make" and inserting "use not more than 2 percent of the amount made available to carry out this section to award"; and

"(B) DATA COLLECTION.—

"(i) REPORT.—Each grantee under this section shall submit an annual report to the Secretary containing information on capital investment, operations, and service provided with funds received under this section, including—

"(I) total annual revenue;

"(II) sources of revenue;

"(III) total annual operating costs;

"(IV) total annual capital costs;

"(V) fleet size and type, and related facilities;

"(VI) revenue vehicle miles; and

"(VII) ridership."; and

(5) by adding after paragraph (3) the following:

"(4) Of the amount made available to carry out paragraph (3)—

"(A) not more than 15 percent may be used to carry out projects of a national scope; and

"(B) any amounts not used under subparagraph (A) shall be allocated to the States.".

(c) APPORTIONMENTS.—Section 5311(c) is amended to read as follows:

"(c) APPORTIONMENTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Of the amounts made available or appropriated for each fiscal year pursuant to subsections (a)(1)(C)(v) and (b)(2)(F) of section 5338—

"(A) 20 percent shall be apportioned to the States in accordance with paragraph (2); and

"(B) 80 percent shall be apportioned to the States in accordance with paragraph (3).

"(2) APPORTIONMENTS BASED ON LAND AREA IN NONURBANIZED AREAS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), each State shall receive an amount that is equal to the amount apportioned under paragraph (1)(A) multiplied by the ratio of the land area in areas other than urbanized areas in that State and divided by the land area in all areas other than urbanized areas in the United States, as shown by the most recent decennial census of population.

"(B) MAXIMUM APPORTIONMENT.—No State shall receive more than 5 percent of the amount apportioned under this paragraph.

"(3) APPORTIONMENTS BASED ON POPULATION IN NONURBANIZED AREAS.—Each State shall receive an amount equal to the amount apportioned under paragraph (1)(B) multiplied by the ratio of the population of areas other than urbanized areas in that State divided by the population of all areas other than urbanized areas in the United States, as shown by the most recent decennial census of population.

"(4) PUBLICATION OF APPORTIONMENTS.—The Secretary shall publish the total amount apportioned to each State under this subsection and the amounts attributable to the population and land area to Indian reservation in each State.".

(d) USE FOR ADMINISTRATIVE, PLANNING, AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—Section 5311(e) is amended—

(1) by striking "AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—(1) The Secretary of Transportation" and inserting ", PLANNING, AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary";

(2) by striking "to a recipient"; and

(3) by striking paragraph (2).

SEC. 3022. GENERAL PROVISIONS ON ASSISTANCE.

Section 5323 is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by amending paragraph (1) to read as follows:

“(1) In general.—Financial assistance provided under this chapter to a State or a local governmental authority may be used to acquire an interest in, or to buy property of, a private company engaged in public transportation, for a capital project for property acquired from a private company engaged in public transportation after July 9, 1964, or to operate a public transportation facility or equipment in competition with, or in addition to, transportation service provided by an existing public transportation company, only if—

“(A) the Secretary determines that such financial assistance is essential to a program of projects required under sections 5303, 5304, and 5306;

“(B) the Secretary determines that the program provides for the participation of private companies engaged in public transportation to the maximum extent feasible; and

“(C) just compensation under State or local law will be paid to the company for its franchise or property.”; and

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking “(2)” and inserting the following:

“(2) Limitation.—”;

(2) by amending subsection (b) to read as follows:

“(b) Notice and Public Hearing.—

“(1) In general.—An application for a grant under this chapter for a capital project that will substantially affect a community, or the public transportation service of a community, shall include, in the environmental record for the project, evidence that the applicant has—

“(A) provided an adequate opportunity for public review and comment on the project;

“(B) held a public hearing on the project if the project affects significant economic, social, or environmental interests;

“(C) considered the economic, social, and environmental effects of the project; and “(D) found that the project is consistent with official plans for developing the urban area.

“(2) Contents of notice.—Notice of a hearing under this subsection—

“(A) shall include a concise description of the proposed project; and

“(B) shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the geographic area the project will serve.”;

(3) by amending subsection (c) to read as follows:

“(c) New Technology.—A grant for financial assistance under this chapter for new technology, including innovative or improved products, techniques, or methods, shall be subject to the requirements of section 5309 to the extent the Secretary determines to be appropriate.”;

(4) by amending subsection (d) to read as follows:

“(d) Conditions on Bus Transportation Service.—Financial assistance under this chapter may be used to buy or operate a bus only if the recipient agrees to comply with the following conditions on bus transportation service:

“(1) Charter bus service.—

“(A) In general.—Except as provided under subparagraph (B), a recipient may provide incidental charter bus service only within its lawful service area if—

“(i) the recipient annually publishes, by electronic and other appropriate means, a notice—

“(I) indicating its intent to offer incidental charter bus service within its lawful service area; and

"(II) soliciting notices from private bus operators that wish to appear on a list of carriers offering charter bus service in that service area;

"(ii) the recipient provides private bus operators with an annual opportunity to notify the recipient of its desire to appear on a list of carriers offering charter bus service in such service area;

"(iii) upon receiving a request for charter bus service, the recipient electronically notifies the private bus operators listed as offering charter service in that service area with the name and contact information of the requestor and the nature of the charter service request; and

"(iv) the recipient does not offer to provide charter bus service unless no private bus operator indicates that it is willing and able to provide the service within a 72-hour period after the receipt of such notice.

"(B) EXCEPTION.—A recipient that operates 2,000 or fewer vehicles in fixed-route peak hour service may provide incidental charter bus transportation directly to—

"(i) local governments; and

"(ii) social service entities with limited resources.

"(C) IRREGULARLY SCHEDULED EVENTS.—Service, other than commuter service, by a recipient to irregularly scheduled events, where the service is conducted in whole or in part outside the service area of the recipient, regardless of whether the service is contracted for individually with passengers, is subject to a rebuttable presumption that such service is charter service.

"(2) VIOLATION OF AGREEMENTS.—

"(A) COMPLAINTS.—A complaint regarding the violation of a charter bus service agreement shall be submitted to the Regional Administrator of the Federal Transit Administration, who shall—

"(i) provide a reasonable opportunity for the recipient to respond to the complaint;

"(ii) provide the recipient with an opportunity for an informal hearing; and

"(iii) issue a written decision not later than 60 days after the parties have completed their submissions.

"(B) APPEALS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—A decision by the Regional Administrator may be appealed to a panel comprised of the Federal Transit Administrator, personnel in the Office of the Secretary of Transportation, and other persons with expertise in surface passenger transportation issues.

"(ii) STANDARD OF REVIEW.—The panel described in clause (i) shall consider the complaint de novo on all issues of fact and law.

"(iii) WRITTEN DECISION.—The appeals panel shall issue a written decision on an appeal not later than 60 days after the completion of submissions. This decision shall be the final order of the agency and subject to judicial review in district court.

"(C) CORRECTION.—If the Secretary determines that a violation of an agreement relating to the provision of charter service has occurred, the Secretary shall correct the violation under terms of the agreement.

"(D) REMEDIES.—The Secretary may issue orders to recipients to cease and desist in actions that violate the agreement, and such orders shall be binding upon the parties. In addition to any remedy spelled out in the agreement, if a recipient has failed to correct a violation within 60 days after the receipt of a notice of violation from the Secretary, the Secretary shall withhold from the recipient the lesser of—

"(i) 5 percent of the financial assistance available to the recipient under this chapter for the next fiscal year; or

"(ii) $200,000.

"(3) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Secretary shall issue amended regulations that—

"(A) implement this subsection, as revised by such Act; and

"(B) impose restrictions, procedures, and remedies in connection with sightseeing service by a recipient.

"(4) PUBLIC NOTICE.—The Secretary shall make all written decisions, guidance, and other pertinent materials relating to the procedures in this subsection available to the public in electronic and other appropriate formats in a timely manner.";

(5) by striking subsection (e);

(6) by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (e);

(7) in subsection (e), as redesignated—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—";

(B) by striking paragraph (2);

(C) by striking "This subsection" and inserting the following:

"(2) EXCEPTIONS.—This subsection; and

(D) by adding at the end the following:

"(3) PENALTY.—If the Secretary determines that an applicant, governmental authority, or publicly owned operator has violated the agreement required under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall bar the applicant, authority, or operator from receiving Federal transit assistance in an amount the Secretary determines to be appropriate.";

(8) by inserting after subsection (e) the following:

"(f) BOND PROCEEDS ELIGIBLE FOR LOCAL SHARE.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a recipient of assistance under section 5307 or 5309, may use the proceeds from the issuance of revenue bonds as part of the local matching funds for a capital project.

"(2) REIMBURSEMENT BY SECRETARY.—The Secretary may reimburse an eligible recipient for deposits of bond proceeds in a debt service reserve that the recipient established pursuant to section 5302(a)(1)(K) from amounts made available to the recipient under section 5307 or 5309.";

(9) in subsection (g)—

(A) by striking "(f)" each place it appears and inserting "(e)"; and

(B) by striking "103(e)(4) and 142 (a) or (c)" each place it appears and inserting "133 and 142";

(10) by amending subsection (h) to read as follows:

"(h) TRANSFER OF LANDS OR INTERESTS IN LANDS OWNED BY THE UNITED STATES.—

(1) REQUEST BY SECRETARY.—If the Secretary determines that any part of the lands or interests in lands owned by the United States and made available as a result of a military base closure is necessary for transit purposes eligible under this chapter, including corridor preservation, the Secretary shall submit a request to the head of the Federal agency supervising the administration of such lands or interests in lands. Such request shall include a map showing the portion of such lands or interests in lands, which is desired to be transferred for public transportation purposes.

"(2) TRANSFER OF LAND.—If 4 months after submitting a request under paragraph (1), the Secretary does not receive a response from the Federal agency described in paragraph (1) that certifies that the proposed appropriation of land is contrary to the public interest or inconsistent with the purposes for which such land has been reserved, or if the head of such agency agrees to the utilization or transfer under conditions necessary for the adequate protection and utilization of the reserve, such land or interests in land may be utilized or transferred to a State, local governmental authority, or public transportation operator for such purposes and subject to the conditions specified by such agency.

"(3) REVERSION.—If at any time the lands or interests in land utilized or transferred under paragraph (2) are no longer needed for public transportation purposes, the State, local governmental authority, or public transportation operator that received the land shall notify to the Secretary, and such lands shall immediately revert to the control of the head of the Federal agency from which the land was originally transferred.";

(11) in subsection (j)(5), by striking "Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (Public Law 102–240, 105 Stat. 1914)" and inserting "Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004";

(12) by amending subsection (l) to read as follows:

"(l) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAWS.—Section 1001 of title 18 applies to a certificate, submission, or statement provided under this chapter. The Secretary may terminate financial assistance under this chapter and seek reimbursement directly, or by offsetting amounts, available under this chapter, if the Secretary determines that a recipient of such financial assistance has made a false or fraudulent statement or related act in connection with a Federal transit program.";

(13) in subsection (m), by inserting at the end the following: "Requirements to perform preaward and postdelivery reviews of rolling stock purchases to ensure compliance with subsection (j) shall not apply to private nonprofit organizations or to grantees serving urbanized areas with a population of fewer than 1,000,000.";

(14) in subsection (o), by striking "assistance or other financing under the Transportation Infrastructure Finance and Innovation Act of 1998" and inserting "a loan or loan guarantee under title 23"; and

(15) by adding at the end the following:

"(p) PROHIBITED USE OF FUNDS.—Grant funds received under this chapter may not be used to pay ordinary governmental or nonproject operating expenses.".

SEC. 3023. SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR CAPITAL PROJECTS.

"§5324. Special provisions for capital projects

"(a) REAL PROPERTY AND RELOCATION SERVICES.—Whenever real property is acquired or furnished as a required contribution incident to a project, the Secretary shall not approve the application for financial assistance unless the applicant has made all payments and provided all assistance and assurances that are required of a State agency under sections 210 and 305 of the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970 (42 U.S.C. 4630 and 4655). The Secretary must be advised of specific references to any State law that are believed to be an exception to section 301 or 302 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 4651 and 4652).

"(b) ADVANCE REAL PROPERTY ACQUISITIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may participate in the acquisition of real property before the completion of the environmental reviews for any project that may use the property if the Secretary determines that external market forces are jeopardizing the potential use of the property for the project and if—

“(A) there are offers on the open real estate market to convey that property for a use that is incompatible with the project under study;

“(B) there is an imminent threat of development or redevelopment of the property for a use that is incompatible with the project under study;

“(C) recent appraisals reflect a rapid increase in the fair market value of the property;

“(D) the property, because it is located near an existing transportation facility, is likely to be developed and to be needed for a future transportation improvement; or “(E) the property owner can demonstrate that, for health, safety, or financial reasons, retaining ownership of the property poses an undue hardship on the owner in comparison to other affected property owners and requests the acquisition to alleviate that hardship.

“(2) Protection of public lands.—Property acquired in accordance with this subsection may not be developed in anticipation of the project unless the Secretary has complied with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) for protection of publicly owned park lands, wildlife and waterfowl refuges, and historic sites.

“(3) Limitation.—The Secretary shall limit the size and number of properties acquired under this subsection as necessary to avoid any prejudice to the Secretary's objective evaluation of project alternatives.

“(4) Exemption.—An acquisition under this section shall be considered an exempt project under section 176 of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7506).

“(c) Railroad Corridor Preservation.—

“(1) In general.—The Secretary may assist an applicant to acquire railroad right-of-way before the completion of the environmental reviews for any project that may use the right-of-way if the acquisition is otherwise permitted under Federal law. The Secretary may establish restrictions on such an acquisition as the Secretary determines to be necessary and appropriate.

“(2) Protection of public lands.—Railroad right-of-way acquired under this subsection may not be developed in anticipation of the project until the Secretary has complied with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) for protection of publicly owned park lands, wildlife and waterfowl refuges, and historic sites.

“(d) Consideration of Economic, Social, and Environmental Interests.—

“(1) In general.—The Secretary may not approve an application for financial assistance for a capital project under this chapter unless the Secretary determines that the project has been developed in accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.). The Secretary's findings under this paragraph shall be made a matter of public record.

“(2) Cooperation and consultation.—In carrying out section 5301(e), the Secretary shall cooperate and consult with the Secretary of the Interior and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency on each project that may have a substantial impact on the environment.”.

(b) Conforming Amendment.—The item relating to section 5324 in the table of sections for chapter 53 is amended to read as follows:

“5324. Special provisions for capital projects.”.

SEC. 3024. CONTRACT REQUIREMENTS.

“§ 5325. Contract requirements

“(a) Competition.—Recipients of assistance under this chapter shall conduct all procurement transactions in a manner that provides full and open competition as determined by the Secretary.

“(b) Architectural, Engineering, and Design Contracts.—

“(1) In general.—A contract or requirement for program management, architectural engineering, construction management, a feasibility study, and preliminary engineering, design, architectural, engineering, surveying, mapping, or related services for a project for which Federal assistance is provided under this chapter shall be awarded in the same manner as a contract for architectural and engineering services is negotiated under chapter 11 of title 40, or an equivalent qualifications-based requirement of a State. This subsection does not apply to the extent a State has adopted or adopts by law a formal procedure for procuring those services.

“(2) Additional requirements.—When awarding a contract described in paragraph (1), recipients of assistance under this chapter shall comply with the following requirements:

“(A) Any contract or subcontract awarded under this chapter shall be performed and audited in compliance with cost principles contained in part 31 of title 48, Code of Federal Regulations (commonly known as the Federal Acquisition Regulation).

“(B) A recipient of funds under a contract or subcontract awarded under this chapter shall accept indirect cost rates established in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation for 1-year applicable accounting periods by a cognizant Federal or State government agency, if such rates are not currently under dispute.

“(C) After a firm's indirect cost rates are accepted under subparagraph (B), the recipient of the funds shall apply such rates for the purposes of contract estimation, negotiation, administration, reporting, and contract payment, and shall not be limited by administrative or de facto ceilings.

“(D) A recipient requesting or using the cost and rate data described in subparagraph (C) shall notify any affected firm before such request or use. Such data shall be confidential and shall not be accessible or provided by the group of agencies sharing cost data under this subparagraph, except by written permission of the audited firm. If prohibited by law, such cost and rate data shall not be disclosed under any circumstances.

“(c) Efficient Procurement.—A recipient may award a procurement contract under this chapter to other than the lowest bidder if the award furthers an objective consistent with the purposes of this chapter, including improved long-term operating efficiency and lower long-term costs.

“(d) Design-Build Projects.—

“(A) means a project under which a recipient enters into a contract with a seller, firm, or consortium of firms to design and build an operable segment of a public transportation system that meets specific performance criteria; and

“(B) may include an option to finance, or operate for a period of time, the system or segment or any combination of designing, building, operating, or maintaining such system or segment.

“(2) Financial assistance for capital costs.—Federal financial assistance under this chapter may be provided for the capital costs of a design-build project after the recipient complies with Government requirements.

“(e) Rolling Stock.—

“(1) Acquisition.—A recipient of financial assistance under this chapter may enter into a contract to expend that assistance to acquire rolling stock—

“(A) with a party selected through a competitive procurement process; or

“(B) based on—

“(i) initial capital costs; or

“(ii) performance, standardization, life cycle costs, and other factors.

“(2) Multiyear contracts.—A recipient procuring rolling stock with Federal financial assistance under this chapter may make a multiyear contract, including options, to buy not more than 5 years of requirements for rolling stock and replacement parts. The Secretary shall allow a recipient to act on a cooperative basis to procure rolling stock under this paragraph and in accordance with other Federal procurement requirements.

“(f) Examination of Records.—Upon request, the Secretary and the Comptroller General, or any of their representatives, shall have access to and the right to examine and inspect all records, documents, and papers, including contracts, related to a project for which a grant is made under this chapter.

“(g) Grant Prohibition.—A grant awarded under this chapter may not be used to support a procurement that uses an exclusionary or discriminatory specification.

“(h) Bus Dealer Requirements.—No State law requiring buses to be purchased through in-State dealers shall apply to vehicles purchased with a grant under this chapter.

“(i) Awards to Responsible Contractors.—

“(1) In general.—Federal financial assistance under this chapter may be provided for contracts only if a recipient awards such contracts to responsible contractors possessing the ability to successfully perform under the terms and conditions of a proposed procurement.

“(2) Criteria.—Before making an award to a contractor under paragraph (1), a recipient shall consider—

“(B) the contractor's compliance with public policy;

“(C) the contractor's past performance, including the performance reported in the Contractor Performance Assessment Reports required under section 5309(m)(4); and

"(1) Apportionment based upon revenue vehicle miles.—Of the amount apportioned under subsection (a)(1), one-third shall be apportioned to urbanized areas as follows:

"(A) The Secretary shall calculate a factor equal to the sum of revenue vehicle miles operated within urbanized areas with a population of between 200,000 and 1,000,000 divided by the sum of the population of all such urbanized areas.

"(B) The Secretary shall designate as eligible for an apportionment under this paragraph all urbanized areas with a population of under 200,000 for which the number of revenue vehicle miles operated within the urbanized area divided by the population of the urbanized area exceeds the factor calculated under subparagraph (A).

"(C) For each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the product of the population of that urbanized area and the factor calculated under subparagraph (A).

"(D) For each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the difference between the number of revenue vehicle miles within that urbanized area less the amount calculated in subparagraph (C).

"(E) Each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B) shall receive an amount equal to the amount to be apportioned under this subsection multiplied by the amount calculated for that urbanized area under subparagraph (D) divided by the sum of the amounts calculated under subparagraph (D) for all urbanized areas qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B).

"(2) Apportionment based upon revenue vehicle hours.—Of the amount apportioned under subsection (a)(1), one-third shall be apportioned to urbanized areas as follows:

"(A) The Secretary shall calculate a factor equal to the sum of revenue vehicle hours operated within urbanized areas with a population of between 200,000 and 1,000,000 divided by the sum of the population of all such urbanized areas.

"(B) The Secretary shall designate as eligible for an apportionment under this paragraph all urbanized areas with a population of under 200,000 for which the number of revenue vehicle hours operated within the urbanized area divided by the population of the urbanized area exceeds the factor calculated under subparagraph (A).

"(C) For each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the product of the population of that urbanized area and the factor calculated under subparagraph (A).

"(D) For each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the difference between the number of revenue vehicle hours within that urbanized area less the amount calculated in subparagraph (C).

"(E) Each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B) shall receive an amount equal to the amount to be apportioned under this subsection multiplied by the amount calculated for that urbanized area under subparagraph (D) divided by the sum of the amounts calculated under subparagraph (D) for all urbanized areas qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B).

"(3) Apportionment based upon passenger miles.—Of the amount apportioned under subsection (a)(1), one-third shall be apportioned to urbanized areas as follows:

"(A) The Secretary shall calculate a factor equal to the sum of passenger miles consumed within urbanized areas with a population of between 200,000 and 1,000,000 divided by the sum of the population of all such urbanized areas.

"(B) The Secretary shall designate as eligible for an apportionment under this paragraph all urbanized areas with a population of under 200,000 for which the number of passenger miles consumed within the urbanized area divided by the population of the urbanized area exceeds the factor calculated under subparagraph (A).

"(C) For each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the product of the population of that urbanized area and the factor calculated under subparagraph (A).

"(D) For each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the difference between the number of passenger miles consumed within that urbanized area less the amount calculated in subparagraph (C).

"(E) Each urbanized area qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B) shall receive an amount equal to the amount to be apportioned under this subsection multiplied by the amount calculated for that urbanized area under subparagraph (D) divided by the sum of the amounts calculated under subparagraph (D) for all urbanized areas qualifying for an apportionment under subparagraph (B).

"(l) Study on Incentives in Formula Programs.—

"(1) Study.—The Secretary shall conduct a study to assess the feasibility and appropriateness of developing and implementing an incentive funding system under sections 5307 and 5311 for operators of public transportation.

"(2) Report.—

"(A) In general.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2004, the Secretary shall submit a report on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1) to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives.

"(B) Contents.—The report submitted under subparagraph (A) shall include—

"(i) an analysis of the availability of appropriate measures to be used as a basis for the distribution of incentive payments;

"(ii) the optimal number and size of any incentive programs;

"(iii) what types of systems should compete for various incentives;

"(iv) how incentives should be distributed; and

"(v) the likely effects of the incentive funding system.".

SEC. 3038. APPORTIONMENTS BASED ON GROWING STATES FORMULA FACTORS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 53 is amended by adding at the end the following:

"§ 5340. Apportionments based on growing States and high density State formula factors

"(a) ALLOCATION.—Of the amounts made available for each fiscal year under section 5338(b)(2)(J), the Secretary shall apportion—

"(1) 50 percent to States and urbanized areas in accordance with subsection (b); and

"(2) 50 percent to States and urbanized areas in accordance with subsection (c).

"(b) GROWING STATE APPORTIONMENTS.—

"(1) APPORTIONMENT AMONG STATES.—The amounts apportioned under paragraph (a)(1) shall provide each State with an amount equal to the total amount apportioned multiplied by a ratio equal to the population of that State forecast for the year that is 15 years after the most recent decennial census, divided by the total population of all States forecast for the year that is 15 years after the most recent decennial census.

"(2) APPORTIONMENTS BETWEEN URBANIZED AREAS AND OTHER THAN URBANIZED AREAS IN EACH STATE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall apportion amounts to each State under paragraph (1) so that urbanized areas in that State receive an amount equal to the amount apportioned to that State multiplied by a ratio equal to the sum of the forecast population of all urbanized areas in that State divided by the total forecast population of that State. In making the apportionment under this subparagraph, the Secretary shall utilize any available forecasts made by the State. If no forecasts are available, the Secretary shall utilize data on urbanized areas and total population from the most recent decennial census.

"(B) REMAINING AMOUNTS.—Amounts remaining for each State after apportionment under subparagraph (A) shall be apportioned to that State and added to the amount made available for grants under section 5311.

"(3) APPORTIONMENTS AMONG URBANIZED AREAS IN EACH STATE.—The Secretary shall apportion amounts made available to urbanized areas in each State under subsection (b)(2)(A) so that each urbanized area receives an amount equal to the amount apportioned under subsection (b)(2)(A) multiplied by a ratio equal to the population of each urbanized area divided by the sum of populations of all urbanized areas in the State. Amounts apportioned to each urbanized area shall be added to amounts apportioned to that urbanized area under section 5336, and made available for grants under section 5307.

"(c) HIGH DENSITY STATE APPORTIONMENTS.—Amounts to be apportioned under subsection (a)(2) shall be apportioned as follows:

"(1) ELIGIBLE STATES.—The Secretary shall designate as eligible for an apportionment under this subsection all States with a population density in excess of 370 persons per square mile.

"(2) STATE URBANIZED LAND FACTOR.—For each State qualifying for an apportionment under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the product of the urban land area of urbanized areas in the State times 370 persons per square mile.

"(3) STATE APPORTIONMENT FACTOR.—For each State qualifying for an apportionment under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall calculate an amount equal to the difference between the total population of the State less the amount calculated in paragraph (2).

"(4) STATE APPORTIONMENT.—Each State qualifying for an apportionment under paragraph (1) shall receive an amount equal to the amount to be apportioned under this subsection multiplied by the amount calculated for the State under paragraph (3) divided by the sum of the amounts calculated under paragraph (3) for all States qualifying for an apportionment under paragraph (1).

"(5) APPORTIONMENTS BETWEEN URBANIZED AREAS AND OTHER THAN URBANIZED AREAS IN EACH STATE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall apportion amounts apportioned to each State under paragraph (4) so that urbanized areas in that State receive an amount equal to the amount apportioned to that State multiplied by a ratio equal to the sum of the population of all urbanized areas in that State divided by the total population of that State.

"(B) REMAINING AMOUNTS.—Amounts remaining for each State after apportionment under subparagraph (a) shall be apportioned to that State and added to the amount made available for grants under section 5311.

"(6) APPORTIONMENTS AMONG URBANIZED AREAS IN EACH STATE.—The Secretary shall apportion amounts made available to urbanized areas in each State under subsection (c)(5)(A) so that each urbanized area receives an amount equal to the amount apportioned under subsection (c)(5)(A) multiplied by a ratio equal to the population of each urbanized area divided by the sum of populations of all urbanized areas in the State. Amounts apportioned to each urbanized area shall be added to amounts apportioned to that urbanized area under section 5336, and made available for grants under section 5307.".

"5340. Apportionments based on growing States and high density States formula factors.".

"Sec. 3038. Over-the-road bus accessibility program.".

SEC. 3041. ALTERNATIVE TRANSPORTATION IN PARKS AND PUBLIC LANDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 53 is amended by inserting after section 5315 the following:

"§5316. Alternative transportation in parks and public lands

"(a) IN GENERAL.—

"(1) AUTHORIZATION.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Interior, may award a grant or enter into a contract, cooperative agreement, interagency agreement, intraagency agreement, or other transaction to carry out a qualified project under this section to enhance the protection of America's National Parks and public lands and increase the enjoyment of those visiting the parks and public lands by ensuring access to all, including persons with disabilities, improving conservation and park and public land opportunities in urban areas through partnering with state and local governments, and improving park and public land transportation infrastructure.

"(B) CONSULTATION WITH OTHER AGENCIES.—To the extent that projects are proposed or funded in eligible areas that are not within the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior, the Secretary of the Interior shall consult with the heads of the relevant Federal land management agencies in carrying out the responsibilities under this section.

"(2) USE OF FUNDS.—A grant, cooperative agreement, interagency agreement, intraagency agreement, or other transaction for a qualified project under this section shall be available to finance the leasing of equipment and facilities for use in public transportation, subject to any regulation that the Secretary may prescribe limiting the grant or agreement to leasing arrangements that are more cost-effective than purchase or construction.

"(1) ELIGIBLE AREA.—The term 'eligible area' means any federally owned or managed park, refuge, or recreational area that is open to the general public, including—

"(A) a unit of the National Park System;

"(B) a unit of the National Wildlife Refuge System;

"(C) a recreational area managed by the Bureau of Land Management; and

"(D) a recreation area managed by the Bureau of Reclamation.

"(2) FEDERAL LAND MANAGEMENT AGENCY.—The term 'Federal land management agency' means a Federal agency that manages an eligible area.

"(3) ALTERNATIVE TRANSPORTATION.—The term 'alternative transportation' means transportation by bus, rail, or any other publicly or privately owned conveyance that provides to the public general or special service on a regular basis, including sightseeing service.

"(4) QUALIFIED PARTICIPANT.—The term 'qualified participant' means—

"(A) a Federal land management agency; or

"(B) a State, tribal, or local governmental authority with jurisdiction over land in the vicinity of an eligible area acting with the consent of the Federal land management agency, alone or in partnership with a Federal land management agency or other Governmental or nongovernmental participant.

"(5) QUALIFIED PROJECT.—The term 'qualified project' means a planning or capital project in or in the vicinity of an eligible area that—

"(A) is an activity described in section 5302, 5303, 5304, 5308, or 5309(a)(1)(A);

"(B) involves—

"(i) the purchase of rolling stock that incorporates clean fuel technology or the replacement of buses of a type in use on the date of enactment of this section with clean fuel vehicles; or

"(ii) the deployment of alternative transportation vehicles that introduce innovative technologies or methods;

"(C) relates to the capital costs of coordinating the Federal land management agency public transportation systems with other public transportation systems;

"(D) provides a nonmotorized transportation system (including the provision of facilities for pedestrians, bicycles, and nonmotorized watercraft);

"(E) provides waterborne access within or in the vicinity of an eligible area, as appropriate to and consistent with this section; or

"(F) is any other alternative transportation project that—

"(i) enhances the environment;

"(ii) prevents or mitigates an adverse impact on a natural resource;

"(iii) improves Federal land management agency resource management;

"(iv) improves visitor mobility and accessibility and the visitor experience;

"(v) reduces congestion and pollution (including noise pollution and visual pollution); or

"(vi) conserves a natural, historical, or cultural resource (excluding rehabilitation or restoration of a non-transportation facility).

"(c) FEDERAL AGENCY COOPERATIVE ARRANGEMENTS.—The Secretary shall develop cooperative arrangements with the Secretary of the Interior that provide for—

"(1) technical assistance in alternative transportation;

"(2) interagency and multidisciplinary teams to develop Federal land management agency alternative transportation policy, procedures, and coordination; and

"(3) the development of procedures and criteria relating to the planning, selection, and funding of qualified projects and the implementation and oversight of the program of projects in accordance with this section.

"(d) LIMITATION ON USE OF AVAILABLE AMOUNTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Interior, may use not more than 10 percent of the amount made available for a fiscal year under section 5338(a)(2)(I) to carry out planning, research, and technical assistance under this section, including the development of technology appropriate for use in a qualified project.

"(2) ADDITIONAL AMOUNTS.—Amounts made available under this subsection are in addition to amounts otherwise available to the Secretary to carry out planning, research, and technical assistance under this title or any other provision of law.

"(3) MAXIMUM AMOUNT.—No qualified project shall receive more than 12 percent of the total amount made available to carry out this section under section 5338(a)(2)(I) for any fiscal year.

"(e) PLANNING PROCESS.—In undertaking a qualified project under this section,

"(1) if the qualified participant is a Federal land management agency—

"(A) the Secretary, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Interior, shall develop transportation planning procedures that are consistent with—

"(i) the metropolitan planning provisions under section 5303 of this title;

"(ii) the statewide planning provisions under section 5304 of this title; and

"(iii) the public participation requirements under section 5307(e); and

"(B) in the case of a qualified project that is at a unit of the National Park system, the planning process shall be consistent with the general management plans of the unit of the National Park system; and

"(2) if the qualified participant is a State or local governmental authority, or more than one State or local governmental authority in more than one State, the qualified participant shall—

"(A) comply with the metropolitan planning provisions under section 5303 of this title;

"(B) comply with the statewide planning provisions under section 5304 of this title;

"(C) comply with the public participation requirements under section 5307(e) of this title; and

"(D) consult with the appropriate Federal land management agency during the planning process.

"(f) COST SHARING.—

"(1) The Secretary, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Interior, shall establish the agency share of net project cost to be provided under this section to a qualified participant.

"(2) In establishing the agency share of net project cost to be provided under this section, the Secretary shall consider—

"(A) visitation levels and the revenue derived from user fees in the eligible area in which the qualified project is carried out;

"(B) the extent to which the qualified participant coordinates with a public transportation authority or private entity engaged in public transportation;

"(C) private investment in the qualified project, including the provision of contract services, joint development activities, and the use of innovative financing mechanisms;

"(D) the clear and direct benefit to the qualified participant; and

"(E) any other matters that the Secretary considers appropriate to carry out this section.

"(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, Federal funds appropriated to any Federal land management agency may be counted toward the non-agency share of the net project cost of a qualified project.

"(g) SELECTION OF QUALIFIED PROJECTS.—

"(1) The Secretary of the Interior, after consultation with and in cooperation with the Secretary, shall determine the final selection and funding of an annual program of qualified projects in accordance with this section.

"(2) In determining whether to include a project in the annual program of qualified projects, the Secretary of the Interior shall consider—

"(A) the justification for the qualified project, including the extent to which the qualified project would conserve resources, prevent or mitigate adverse impact, and enhance the environment;

"(B) the location of the qualified project, to ensure that the selected qualified projects—

"(i) are geographically diverse nationwide; and

"(ii) include qualified projects in eligible areas located in both urban areas and rural areas;

"(C) the size of the qualified project, to ensure that there is a balanced distribution;

"(D) the historical and cultural significance of a qualified project;

"(E) safety;

"(F) the extent to which the qualified project would-

"(i) enhance livable communities;

"(ii) reduce pollution (including noise pollution, air pollution, and visual pollution);

"(iii) reduce congestion; and

"(iv) improve the mobility of people in the most efficient manner; and

"(G) any other matters that the Secretary considers appropriate to carry out this section, including-

"(i) visitation levels;

"(ii) the use of innovative financing or joint development strategies; and

"(iii) coordination with gateway communities.

"(h) QUALIFIED PROJECTS CARRIED OUT IN ADVANCE.—

"(1) When a qualified participant carries out any part of a qualified project without assistance under this section in accordance with all applicable procedures and requirements, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Interior, may pay the share of the net capital project cost of a qualified project if—

"(A) the qualified participant applies for the payment;

"(B) the Secretary approves the payment; and

"(C) before carrying out that part of the qualified project, the Secretary approves the plans and specifications in the same manner as plans and specifications are approved for other projects assisted under this section.

"(2)(A) The cost of carrying out part of a qualified project under paragraph (1) includes the amount of interest earned and payable on bonds issued by a State or local governmental authority, to the extent that proceeds of the bond are expended in carrying out that part.

"(B) The rate of interest under this paragraph may not exceed the most favorable rate reasonably available for the qualified project at the time of borrowing.

"(C) The qualified participant shall certify, in a manner satisfactory to the Secretary, that the qualified participant has exercised reasonable diligence in seeking the most favorable interest rate.

"(i) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAWS.—

"(1) SECTION 5307.—A qualified participant under this section shall be subject to the requirements of sections 5307 and 5333(a) to the extent the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

"(2) OTHER REQUIREMENTS.—A qualified participant under this section is subject to any other terms, conditions, requirements, and provisions that the Secretary determines to be appropriate to carry out this section, including requirements for the distribution of proceeds on disposition of real property and equipment resulting from a qualified project assisted under this section.

"(3) PROJECT MANAGEMENT PLAN.—If the amount of assistance anticipated to be required for a qualified project under this section is not less than $25,000,000—

"(A) the qualified project shall, to the extent the Secretary considers appropriate, be carried out through a full funding grant agreement, in accordance with section 5309(g); and

"(B) the qualified participant shall prepare a project management plan in accordance with section 5327(a).

"(i) ASSET MANAGEMENT.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Interior, may transfer the interest of the Department of Transportation in, and control over, all facilities and equipment acquired under this section to a qualified participant for use and disposition in accordance with any property management regulations that the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

"(j) COORDINATION OF RESEARCH AND DEPLOYMENT OF NEW TECHNOLOGIES.—

"(1) The Secretary, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Interior, may undertake, or make grants, cooperative agreements, contracts (including agreements with departments, agencies, and instrumentalities of the Federal Government) or other transactions for research, development, and deployment of new technologies in eligible areas that will—

"(A) conserve resources;

"(B) prevent or mitigate adverse environmental impact;

"(C) improve visitor mobility, accessibility, and enjoyment; and

"(D) reduce pollution (including noise pollution and visual pollution).

"(2) The Secretary may request and receive appropriate information from any source.

"(3) Grants, cooperative agreements, contracts or other transactions under paragraph (1) shall be awarded from amounts allocated under subsection (c)(1).

"(k) INNOVATIVE FINANCING.—A qualified project receiving financial assistance under this section shall be eligible for funding through a state infrastructure bank or other innovative financing mechanism available to finance an eligible project under this chapter.

"(l) REPORTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Interior, shall annually submit a report on the allocation of amounts made available to assist qualified projects under this section to—

"(A) the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate; and

"(B) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives.

"(2) ANNUAL AND SUPPLEMENTAL REPORTS.—The report required under paragraph (1) shall be included in the report submitted under section 5309(m).".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—The table of sections for chapter 53 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5315 the following:

"5316. Alternative transportation in parks and public lands.".

SEC. 3042. OBLIGATION CEILING.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the total of all obligations from amounts made available from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund by, and amounts appropriated under, subsections (a) through (c) of section 5338 of title 49, United States Code, shall not exceed—

(1) $7,265,876,900 for fiscal year 2004;
(2) $8,650,000,000 for fiscal year 2005;
(3) $9,085,123,000 for fiscal year 2006;
(4) $9,600,000,000 for fiscal year 2007;
(5) $10,490,000,000 for fiscal year 2008; and
(6) $11,430,000,000 for fiscal year 2009.

SEC. 3043. ADJUSTMENTS FOR THE SURFACE TRANSPORTATION EXTENSION ACT OF 2003.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary shall reduce the total apportionments and allocations made for fiscal year 2004 to each grant recipient under section 5338 of title 49, United States Code, by the amount apportioned to that recipient pursuant to section 8 of the Surface Transportation Extension Act of 2003 (117 Stat. 1121).

(b) FIXED GUIDEWAY MODERNIZATION ADJUSTMENT.—In making the apportionments described in subsection (a), the Secretary shall adjust the amount apportioned for fiscal year 2004 to each urbanized area for fixed guideway modernization to reflect the apportionment method set forth in 5337(a) of title 49, United States Code.

SEC. 1514. PARKS, RECREATION AREAS, WILDLIFE AND WATERFOWL REFUGES, AND HISTORIC SITES.

(a) PROGRAMS AND PROJECTS WITH DE MINIMIS IMPACTS.—

(1) TITLE 23.—Section 138 of title 23, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in the first sentence, by striking "It is hereby" and inserting the following:

"(a) DECLARATION OF POLICY.—It is"; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

"(b) DE MINIMIS IMPACTS.—

"(1) REQUIREMENTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The requirements of this section shall be considered to be satisfied with respect to an area described in paragraph (2) or (3) if the Secretary determines, in accordance with this subsection, that a transportation program or project will have a de minimis impact on the area.

"(B) CRITERIA.—In making any determination under this subsection, the Secretary shall consider to be part of a transportation program or project any avoidance, minimization, mitigation, or enhancement measures that are required to be implemented as a condition of approval of the transportation program or project.

"(2) HISTORIC SITES.—With respect to historic sites, the Secretary may make a finding of de minimis impact only if—

"(A) the Secretary has determined, in accordance with the consultation process required under section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (16 U.S.C. 470f), that—

"(i) the transportation program or project will have no adverse effect on the historic site; or

"(ii) there will be no historic properties affected by the transportation program or project;

"(B) the finding of the Secretary has received written concurrence from the applicable State historic preservation officer or tribal historic preservation officer (and from the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, if participating in the consultation); and

"(C) the finding of the Secretary has been developed in consultation with parties consulting as part of the process referred to in subparagraph (A).

"(3) PARKS, RECREATION AREAS, AND WILDLIFE AND WATERFOWL REFUGES.—With respect to parks, recreation areas, or wildlife or waterfowl refuges, the Secretary may make a finding of de minimis impact only if—

"(A) the Secretary has determined, in accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) (including public notice and opportunity for public review and comment), that the transportation program or project will not adversely affect the activities, features, and attributes of the park, recreation area, or wildlife or waterfowl refuge eligible for protection under this title; and

"(B) the finding of the Secretary has received concurrence from the officials with jurisdiction over the park, recreation area, or wildlife or waterfowl refuge.".

(2) TITLE 49.—Section 303 of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(A) by striking "(c) The Secretary" and inserting the following:

"(c) APPROVAL OF PROGRAMS AND PROJECTS.—Subject to subsection (d), the Secretary"; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

"(d) DE MINIMIS IMPACTS.—

"(1) REQUIREMENTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The requirements of this section shall be considered to be satisfied with respect to an area described in paragraph (2) or (3) if the Secretary determines, in accordance with this subsection, that a transportation program or project will have a de minimis impact on the area.

"(B) CRITERIA.—In making any determination under this subsection, the Secretary shall consider to be part of a transportation program or project any avoidance, minimization, mitigation, or enhancement measures that are required to be implemented as a condition of approval of the transportation program or project.

"(2) HISTORIC SITES.—With respect to historic sites, the Secretary may make a finding of de minimis impact only if—

"(A) the Secretary has determined, in accordance with the consultation process required under section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (16 U.S.C. 470f), that—

"(i) the transportation program or project will have no adverse effect on the historic site; or

"(ii) there will be no historic properties affected by the transportation program or project;

"(B) the finding of the Secretary has received written concurrence from the applicable State historic preservation officer or tribal historic preservation officer (and from the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, if participating in the consultation); and

"(C) the finding of the Secretary has been developed in consultation with parties consulting as part of the process referred to in subparagraph (A).

"(3) PARKS, RECREATION AREAS, AND WILDLIFE AND WATERFOWL REFUGES.—With respect to parks, recreation areas, or wildlife or waterfowl refuges, the Secretary may make a finding of de minimis impact only if—

"(A) the Secretary has determined, in accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) (including public notice and opportunity for public review and comment), that the transportation program or project will not adversely affect the activities, features, and attributes of the park, recreation area, or wildlife or waterfowl refuge eligible for protection under this title; and

"(B) the finding of the Secretary has received concurrence from the officials with jurisdiction over the park, recreation area, or wildlife or waterfowl refuge.".

(b) CLARIFICATION OF EXISTING STANDARDS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall (in consultation with affected agencies and interested parties) promulgate regulations that clarify the factors to be considered and the standards to be applied in determining the prudence and feasibility of alternatives under section 138 of title 23 and section 303 of title 49, United States Code.

(2) REQUIREMENTS.—The regulations—

(A) shall clarify the application of the legal standards to a variety of different types of transportation programs and projects depending on the circumstances of each case; and

(B) may include, as appropriate, examples to facilitate clear and consistent interpretation by agency decisionmakers.

(c) IMPLEMENTATION STUDY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary and the Transportation Research Board of the National Academy of Sciences shall jointly conduct a study on the implementation of this section and the amendments made by this section.

(2) COMPONENTS.—In conducting the study, the Secretary and the Transportation Research Board shall evaluate—

(A) the processes developed under this section and the amendments made by this section and the efficiencies that may result;

(B) the post-construction effectiveness of impact mitigation and avoidance commitments adopted as part of projects conducted under this section and the amendments made by this section; and

(C) the quantity of projects with impacts that are considered de minimis under this section and the amendments made by this section, including information on the location, size, and cost of the projects.

(3) REPORT REQUIREMENT.—The Secretary and the Transportation Research Board shall prepare—

(A) not earlier than the date that is 4 years after the date of enactment of this Act, a report on the results of the study conducted under this subsection; and

(B) not later than September 30, 2009, an update on the report required under subparagraph (A).

(4) REPORT RECIPIENTS.—The Secretary and the Transportation Research Board shall—

(A) submit the report and update required under paragraph (3) to—

(i) the appropriate committees of Congress;

(ii) the Secretary of the Interior; and

(iii) the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation; and

(B) make the report and update available to the public.

SEC. 1515. REGULATIONS.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to meet on Thursday, February 5, 2004, at 10 a.m., in room 2141 of the Rayburn House Office Building to consider judicial nominations.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRIVILEGES OF THE FLOOR

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I have a unanimous consent request from Senator BAUCUS for people to be on the floor. I ask unanimous consent that the following interns for the Senate Finance Committee be granted floor privileges for the remainder of the debate on the highway bill: Jane Bergeson, Shannon Augure, Jeremy Sieglitz, Tyson Hill, Simon Chabel, and Trace Thaxton.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I also ask unanimous consent that Rich Steinmann and Kate Mattice, detailees from the Federal Transit Administration serving the Banking Committee, be granted floor privileges for the duration of the consideration of this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Peter Smallwood, a fellow in the office of Senator LIEBERMAN, be granted the privilege of the floor for the consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill.

ORDERS FOR FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 2004

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 9:30 a.m., Friday, February 6. I further ask that following the prayer and the pledge, the morning hour be deemed expired, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then resume consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill, for the purpose of debate only.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, tomorrow morning the Senate will resume consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill. There will be no rollcall votes tomorrow, but Senators are encouraged to come to the floor and speak on the merits of the bill. The majority leader will expand on next week's schedule during tomorrow's session.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. INHOFE. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 6:15 p.m., adjourned until Friday, February 6, 2004, at 9:30 a.m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Friday, February 6, 2004

The House met at noon and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. THORNBERRY).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

WASHINGTON, DC,
February 6, 2004.

I hereby appoint the Honorable MAC THORNBERRY to act as Speaker pro temproe on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

Lord God, our Eternal Father whose majesty fills the universe, we give thanks for Your enduring mercy and steadfast love. We are mindful that every sunrise is a gift and every day an opportunity to honor You in thought, word, and deed.

Gracious Lord, we ask this morning for Your special blessing on our Nation's Representatives and those that so skillfully serve them here in our Nation's Capitol and in home districts. Grant them the wisdom, courage, discernment, and grace needed to nobly discharge their momentous duties.

Lord, may the radiant warmth of Your eternal providence continue to shine upon this great Republic. May all citizens of this noble land know the width, breadth, and depth of Your life-transforming presence.

I pray this in Your Holy Name. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The SPEAKER pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

SENATE—Friday, February 6, 2004

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable LINCOLN CHAFEE, a Senator from the State of Rhode Island.

PRAYER

Let us pray.

Merciful God, You have been good to us beyond our deserving, surrounding us with light and music, beauty and friendships. Thank You for Your eternal love and for the little miracles You give us each day. Lord, You give us sunrises and sunsets. You provide us with air to breathe and heartbeats. We hear Your love in the roar of the oceans. We see Your sovereignty in the flight of the eagle.

You protect us from dangers, seen and unseen. You cause the weapons of our enemies to fail. Help us to show our gratitude by moving beyond rhetoric to deeds.

Empower our Senators to trust You to guide their steps. Bless them as they seek to transform dark yesterdays into bright tomorrows. Give them peace for turbulent moments and anchors for life's storms. We pray this in Your serene Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable LINCOLN CHAFEE led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

> I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. STEVENS).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, February 6, 2004.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable LINCOLN CHAFEE, a Senator from the State of Rhode Island, to perform the duties of the Chair.

TED STEVENS,

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, this morning the Senate resumes consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill. As we announced last night, there will be no rollcall votes today. Chairman INHOFE will be on the floor this morning, and Senators are encouraged to come to the floor to speak on the bill. When we complete our business today, we will reconvene on Monday for more work on the highway bill. As I previously announced, we expect to complete this bill next week. I will be consulting with the chairman and the Democratic leader as to the specific schedule and will announce that later today.

NEWS UPDATES

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I want to make a few comments on the news, and give a quick update on the events that have happened in my own mailroom earlier in the week.

First of all, just a few minutes ago, this morning, with regard to the employment situation, we have been given very good news. The unemployment rate is at 5.6 percent, which was little changed, but the nonfarm payroll employment increased by 112,000, with job gains in construction and several service-providing industries. Indeed, that is very good news. That is 112,000 new jobs in January.

If we look back to last August, we have seen a creation of 366,000 payroll jobs. These numbers are very good news. It demonstrates we have turned the corner. But, clearly, we have a lot more work to do as we go forward. So there is very good news today on the job front; the trends are in the positive, right direction. But, again, we have a lot more work to do.

The economy is doing well. I say that very quickly, and say we have a lot more work to do in job creation. But, again, that figure of 112,000 is very good news.

Mr. President, on another front but timely in terms of the news itself, I am delighted to report we are ahead of schedule in getting Senators back into their offices here on the Capitol grounds. As everyone knows, in response to the attack on my office with what is a deadly poison by the name of ricin, we immediately focused on the safety and welfare of the staff throughout the Capitol complex. Through a very comprehensive plan, a comprehensive response, even though I know it has not been handled just perfectly, and there are a lot of frustrations, I am delighted to report nobody has been hurt, everybody is safe, and that includes people here in my office, in the Dirksen building, the Senate office buildings, the Capitol complex, and, indeed, the postal system in this country.

All testing has been negative, with the exception of the testing right around where the discovery was made. The Russell Senate office building has been opened now for 2 days. The Hart Senate office building opened yesterday. The Dirksen office building we will be making announcements about over the course of the day.

On a third issue, Mr. President, I am delighted to see the response to the Medicare legislation we passed has been very positive in a number of ways. According to press reports, over 100 companies, agencies, and organizations have filed or are filing applications to participate in that prescription drug card that will be available to all seniors this summer.

To me, that demonstrates a real interest and a fierce sign of competition and a lot of people participating in addressing the issue of health care, health care costs, prescription drugs, and making prescription drugs more available to our seniors. This is a strong indication there will be a very positive and broad interest that this full benefit, once it is available, will be taken advantage of.

Also, earlier in the week we saw Medicare HMOs are, in response to this bill, slashing their premiums, making these premiums come down, therefore lowering that burden that falls on the senior in terms of out-of-pocket costs. At the same time, they are increasing their benefits in response to this bill, and expanding their service to more and more seniors, with the opportunity for more and more seniors to participate in integrated health care plans.

This is a real stark contrast to what we had seen in the past where there were shrinking choices. Now there are going to be expanding choices. We are already seeing that take place.

We began this Congress making the promise we would bring about strengthening the Medicare system and expanding the choices within the Medicare system and lowering the burden in terms of out-of-pocket expenditures and costs to individual seniors, and we have delivered on that promise. We made the promise that seniors would have access to better health care, and we have delivered on that promise by providing preventive care and prescription drugs for the first time really in Medicare today.

So the plan is working. The new discount cards will be available for our seniors later on this spring.

Mr. President, on a related issue, I want to comment on a silent epidemic that is in this country and that affects a lot of people who are listening to me right now—my colleagues and others who are watching through the various media. It has to do with an epidemic that a lot of people don't recognize that is occurring that can affect your health care and my health care and that of our colleagues and our families. It can be brought to focus by a single question that I want to ask every American; that is, are you positively sure that you don't have high blood pressure right now? If you can't answer that question yes or no, then you need to find out. Are you positively sure that you don't have high blood pressure?

High blood pressure is hypertension. If you can't answer that question, just listen to me for a couple minutes on this important issue. The American Heart Association calls hypertension, or high blood pressure, "the silent killer." We call it hypertension, and it is high blood pressure just like the pressure in a tire. If you are pumping up a tire with too much air, a bicycle tire or an automobile tire, it gets higher and higher. And literally, when they put that blood pressure cup on your arm and they measure to get those two numbers, the one and the slash and then the other number, it tells you how much pressure is in your body.

The higher the pressure in your body, once it gets out of a certain range, the more likely you are to die, whether that be from heart disease, because it causes hardening of the arteries, or a stroke. It is as simple as that.

When a person's blood pressure is too high, the heart is having to pump too hard. The heart is a pump. You have the rest of the body and the resistance of the blood vessels themselves. If it gets too high, it is like too much pressure in a tire. Or you can think of taking a thin coffee stirring straw and you are trying to blow through that as hard as you possibly can and the pressure that builds up strains the heart, which is a pump, and the blood pressure. If that pressure builds up over a period of time, because it is that way all throughout the course of the day—heartbeat after heartbeat, day after day—it damages everything that is downstream from the heart and the blood vessels—the brain and all of the organs. That is my physiology lesson.

The point is, it is widespread. This is not just a few people. There are about 50 million people in the country today who have high blood pressure. Remember, if you have high blood pressure, you are going to have heart disease or a stroke or myocardial infarction, coronary artery disease, or atherosclerotic heart disease.

The interesting thing about that is that a third of those 50 million people don't know they have it. That is why I am taking time on the Senate floor to address it. Because if it is 50 million and a third of them don't know they have it, all you have to do is put a blood pressure cup on your arm and then we have treatment for it. We can save thousands of lives if people will just act.

I also want to relate that to what I just mentioned about Medicare itself. As legislation comes through this body, it is important for us to think like that, to take every opportunity to improve the legislation, if it can be as direct as that in terms of saving lives.

With the Medicare prescription drug bill this body passed, that the President signed in December, for the first time in the history of this great Medicare Program, once you hit 65, that blood pressure cup and that physical exam becomes part of the program. That is amazing to me.

Traditionally, people who came into Medicare didn't get that physical exam because it was not provided in the program. It is today. It was not 2 months ago. Thus, if you had hypertension throughout your life and you hadn't gone to the doctor because you hadn't been in a motor vehicle accident or you didn't like doctors, when you got to be 65 and on Medicare, at 70 and 75, and you have hypertension, it is never diagnosed. But in this Medicare bill, we included an entry physical exam so you make the diagnosis. That is step No. 1.

Also in this Medicare bill for the first time in the history of Medicare—a wonderful program, 40 years we have had this fantastic program; I just told you diagnosis is there for the first time—there is the treatment. Never before in the history of Medicare have prescription drugs, which is the way you treat most hypertension today, been available through the Medicare Program itself. Yet that benefit, that better health care, because we passed this prescription drug bill and Medicare bill, is available.

So those two things: Diagnosis is going to be made. Remember, 16 million people in the country don't know they have it. So we are going to make the diagnosis. And then after the diagnosis, we don't leave people high and dry. We give them help. We don't give them all their prescription drugs. We never promised we would give them all their prescription drugs, and we shouldn't give them all their prescription drugs. We probably can't afford it. But we have helped every senior who has hypertension who didn't have access to prescription drugs to get prescription drugs. We have helped every single one and low income. We have really helped.

We see why this Medicare bill was important. People argue $400 billion is too much, or it is too little. Everybody is getting it from both sides. The point is, for the first time we have preventive care, we have early detection, and we increase the likelihood that a senior can get treatment for this life-threatening disease.

I should also mention that African Americans, of that 50 million people with hypertension, are disproportionately affected. So they have this additional benefit both in terms of diagnosis and treatment. Look at hypertension and high blood pressure today. African Americans are disproportionately affected.

I am gratified for this major advance in the Medicare bill. There are lots of things in the Medicare bill such as this that we didn't talk very much about on the floor of the Senate, but because we made reforms like that to Medicare, lives will be saved. More Americans are going to get the care that they deserve, and more Americans are going to get the treatments they need. That is what is in this bill. Hypertension is a good example. More lives will be saved.

Let me go back to the question I asked: do you know what your blood pressure is? What is it? I know what my number is. I am a physician. I think about it all the time. But you need to be able to know. Is it high or low? No. 2, if you haven't had it checked recently, go have it checked. It is as simple as having a blood pressure cup put on your arm. Thirdly, if you are over the age of 65, because of the President's Medicare bill, you are going to receive more help to get the prescription drugs you need if you need them to help save your life. Are you positively sure you don't have high blood pressure?

I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I have some remarks I wish to make. I know Senator DORGAN has an important meeting at 10. I will withhold my comments so that he may be recognized first.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The Senator from North Dakota.

CREATION OF JOBS WITH S. 1072

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I thank my colleague, Senator DASCHLE. I say to Senator FRIST, blood pressures rise from time to time actually on the floor of the Senate, depending on what we are doing. Mine relates to the issue of when we treat serious things too lightly or light things too seriously.

Speaking of that, most of us agree that a serious matter that ought to be treated seriously is the highway bill. This week was a disappointment because we had the difficulty of getting into our office buildings and the ricin issue here on Capitol Hill.

I know both the Republican leader and the Democratic leader share this view. This highway bill is critically important.

I recall a political campaign in an election that was waged a couple of campaigns ago where they had a sign on the wall that said, "It is the economy, stupid." That was their sign, just to remind them every day to focus like a laser on the economy.

With respect to this country's economy and jobs, at a time when more than 2½ million people lost their jobs in recent years and 8 to 10 million people are now looking for a job this morning, there isn't anything that we can do that is, in my judgment, more urgent than passing this highway bill. Why? Because this is a job generator. Instantly, people go back to work.

It means that contractors are out there with new contracts. They are hiring people. Everyone in this Chamber knows that the one formula for producing jobs now, immediately, is to pass this highway bill.

It has been a disappointment to me this week that we have had some—it was described in the National Journal or Congressional Quarterly as a small group of Republicans—who have decided to hold this bill up and stop it. That would not be in this country's interest.

We must get this done. I appreciate the strength of the majority leader and the strength of the Democratic leader, as well, to stay with it. I would say to Senator FRIST that I believe there is a broad, bipartisan consensus in this Chamber to produce a highway bill that helps us invest in the improvements necessary in roads and bridges across the country. Over 30 percent of them are in disrepair. But more important than that, in my judgment, is the ability to be a job generator, to expand this economy and put people back to work is job one.

There is not much more of importance we can do this year. I don't know of a more important bill this year that will be related to American jobs than this bill. So it is my hope that, even though there is some obstruction going on by a few in the Chamber on the other side, we stay here, stick with it, work late if necessary, and get this bill done. It is that important for this country. Frankly, I think there is a broad, bipartisan consensus on that point. When we have that, let's stick with it and do it, even if there are some in this Chamber who have decided they want to hold it up.

I thank my colleague from South Dakota, Senator DASCHLE, for giving me the time. I am about to go chair a hearing. It also relates to jobs. This jobs issue is so critically important. People got out of bed this morning in this country asking themselves: Where can I find a job? There are millions and millions of them. It is a big deal, a big issue. It is a serious matter for this country.

The bill we are considering now has the opportunity to allow us to address this in a very significant way, and we cannot and should not miss this opportunity.

I yield the floor.

JOB CREATION

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from North Dakota for his comments this morning. I share his view about the importance of this highway bill, in particular.

I wish to say a few things about both the highway bill as well as the budget this morning. We just received our report again this month about the economy and the jobs created. I think the good news is that we did see the creation of 112,000 new jobs in January. I think that is a positive development. The bad news is that it falls short of what was needed to keep us on a path to ensure that jobs are not lost during the President's first term.

Mr. President, 150,000 new jobs in January was the stated goal of the Administration. The figure released today indicates a substantial shortfall; this is nearly 40,000 jobs short of their stated goal. Of course, it is dramatically short—two-thirds short—of what the goal would be to reverse this unemployment debacle we have witnessed for the last 3 years. 300,000 new private sector jobs would have to be created each month to erase the decline we have witnessed the past 36 months. So while we made some progress this month with 112,000 new jobs, we are falling far short of the Administration's stated goal of 150,000 and even further short of the 300,000 jobs necessary to reverse the unfortunate trend.

There is another disturbing problem that we have not been able to address, and the administration has not been able to address. This is the 42nd month in a row that we have actually seen a loss of manufacturing jobs. For 42 straight months manufacturing jobs have declined.

The jobs issue may be the single most critical issue as we look at the economy. There is a long, long way to go before we can say with any confidence that we have turned this economy around, that people who have jobs will keep them, and people who don't have jobs will get them.

I think most of us would receive today's news about jobs this month with that sense of disappointment, but also with the realization that 112,000 jobs is better than what we had in December when only a thousand jobs were added.

THE TRANSPORTATION BILL

Let me take a moment to talk about the transportation bill again this morning. I will not repeat my concerns about the delay and resulting loss of those jobs. I want to focus on the positive and, once again, compliment the managers of the bill who balanced divergent interests to bring us a finely crafted bill that certainly deserves our support. Chairman INHOFE and Senator JEFFORDS, Senator BOND and Senator REID deserve our praise for working in a bipartisan fashion, as do Banking Committee Chairman SHELBY and Senator SARBANES, and Finance Committee Chairman GRASSLEY and Senator BAUCUS. But I also especially thank the majority leader for scheduling the time it will take to get this bill done. When the leader and I met on Monday, I was impressed with his resolve and desire to bear down and get this critical work done for this country.

Our roads, our bridges, our transit system, our rail lines, and our ports all need assistance to ensure that our Nation has the first-class infrastructure needed to reinvigorate our economy and make our country strong and competitive. After having lost 3 million jobs over the last 3 years, there is nothing more important than passing this bill, which will provide hundreds of thousands of jobs.

Senator FRIST and Senator INHOFE suggested the other day that it might create nearly 2 million good jobs in engineering, construction, and administration. So I know that many of us would like to have made more progress on the bill this week than we have so far. But things really do seem to be coming together.

The Banking Committee approved transit provisions for the bill the other day. We had a discussion about those provisions yesterday on the Senate floor. The Finance Committee reported a bipartisan bill earlier in the week, and we have discussed many of these provisions on the floor throughout this week.

We also have had several amendments debated and discussed. There is no question about it, there is a lot of work to be done. But the work we are doing to provide jobs and assure first-class infrastructure is among the most important work the Senate could be doing. In fact, I cannot think of anything more important for us to be working on at this time than this bill.

To be frank, it is a good feeling to see us working on such an important issue in such a cooperative and bipartisan fashion. I salute Senator FRIST and his team for recognizing the importance of this bill. As Senator FRIST said on Monday, we need to move swiftly to pass this bill, which he so aptly said has broad support in the Senate, as well as across the country.

I also want to be abundantly clear that the firm and steadfast desire of every Democratic Senator I have spoken to is to stay with this bill, to be cooperative, and resolve differences, to complete the bill and move it forward so we can get it to the President's desk as soon as possible.

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET

Mr. President, having talked about the highway bill, let me now move to the last matter I want to address this morning. The budget I have here was presented to us by the administration. It is the budget for fiscal years 2005 through 2009, containing 2,365 pages, and literally millions of numbers and figures.

This document cannot be taken seriously as a budget. As vast and extensive as this budget seems, the administration has actually omitted essential facts and data that will have enormous consequences for the fiscal future and our economy.

There is nothing in this budget—not a dime—to cover the costs of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. What does that tell you? Well, it tells you one of two things: Either the President is going to announce within the next month or so a complete withdrawal of all troops and all American presence in Afghanistan and Iraq to coincide with his current budget proposal or he is hiding those numbers until a later date. In either case, this omission makes this budget totally meaningless when it comes to helping us understand the costs of the commitments we are making in two of the most important parts of the world today.

I don't understand how the Administration can leave out the funding for these operations at the same time it acknowledges we have tens of thousands of troops in these countries today and will have troops there for years and years to come.

CBO estimated the cost associated with our efforts in Iraq could reach $200 billion, yet there is not one dime in this budget—I am only holding up a piece of the budget—not one dime in this budget, this entire budget, to cover the costs of our ongoing operations in Iraq and Afghanistan for the current fiscal year or the four years after that. The charade, the sham, the misleading character of this budget makes me want to send it right back.

Or consider the alternative minimum tax. By 2009, the last year of the administration's 5-year budget plan, 30 million Americans will see their taxes increased as a result of the alternative minimum tax. Most of us agree that we will need to fix this tax to prevent it from falling on middle-class Americans.

The CBO estimates that the President would need to request at least $150 billion through 2009 and more than $600 billion through 2014 to prevent this tax increase caused as more Americans fall subject to the alternative minimum tax. Yet, other than a 1-year temporary patch for 2005, this budget does not address that this recognized problem either.

Let me make sure people understand. On the spending side, perhaps the largest military operations we expect to carry out over the course of the next several years, expenditures to directly pay for the activities of tens of thousands of troops in Afghanistan and Iraq, there is not one dime in this budget.

On the tax side, a collective realization, a bipartisan realization that we are going to have to change the alternative minimum tax before it hits middle-class Americans hard, a problem that is estimated to cost $150 billion over the course of the next 5 years alone, there is a one-year patch, after which the budget acts as if this problem doesn't exist.

Most egregiously, the budget stops after 5 years, just before the full cost of the President's tax breaks begins to be felt and just as the full cost of the baby boomer retirement begins to emerge. When you include the 5 years after the budget projections stop, the President's tax breaks will add trillions more to the national debt, an estimated $2 trillion.

So the President omits specific and known expenditures, ones to which we know we are going to have to commit resources—$200 billion, perhaps, in the case of our presence in Iraq and Afghanistan; $150 billion for AMT; and $2 trillion over the next 10 years for his tax cuts. Of course, if I had a $521 billion deficit already written into this so-called budget, I wouldn't put these costs in either, but I also wouldn't have called the document a budget. I would call it my wish list. I would call it my priorities. But you can't call this a budget.

It would be like a man and woman sitting at their kitchen table trying to make ends meet, and they say: You know that mortgage payment we have to make for the coming year, let's just not count that. And, oh, yes, the kids' college, that $500 check each month we have to pay, let's not count that. Oh, and the car payment, we better not count that either. Let's leave off the mortgage, college, and a car payment, and you know what, bingo, the budget balances. But in this case, the budget doesn't even balance with those omissions. In this case, we still have a $521 billion deficit.

We cannot predict every challenge our Nation will face in the coming years, but we do not need a crystal ball to know we have to commit resources to support our troops. We do not need a crystal ball to know that Congress will act to spare 30 million Americans from the alternative minimum tax. And we do not need a crystal ball to know that when you ask to make tax cuts permanent, the cost will be with us for a lot more than 5 years.

There is a credibility chasm, whether it is weapons of mass destruction, whether it is the budget, whether it is so many things that emanate these days from this administration, its credibility has eroded dramatically.

I can't imagine, for the life of me, a more irresponsible document than what we have been sent this week. If anyone—anyone—would do this in real life, they would be in bankruptcy court within a year. That is why we will see our national debt skyrocket from $5.6 trillion when President Bush took office, to $11 trillion by the end of the 5-year budget—just the 5-year budget he has proposed.

In the end, budgets are not about numbers, they are about choices. The first observation that is that these glaring omissions, these extraordinary misrepresentations have enormous implications not only for our fiscal future but also for this Administration's credibility. That is just the first piece of this.

The second piece is what this budget tells us about the choices the administration made as they were writing these numbers. When we look closely at this so-called budget, we learn something valuable about the administration's priorities and choices. We shouldn't be surprised.

They propose that the IRS cut back on enforcement of America's tax laws. Can you imagine, not only are we not going to provide some fairness in our tax system, but those who are given these tax breaks are also being sent the message: Maybe you don't even have to comply as much because we are going to drop enforcement, which means more corporate loopholes will be exploited and more will resort to tax cheating. What does that say?

When we also cut back the COPS Program as this budget does, at the same time we cut back funding to enforce our tax laws, what does that say about the desire, the determination on the part of this administration to go after those who break the law, whether it is by failing to pay their fair share of taxes or doing something illegal in our neighborhood?

The cutback in enforcement funding also means higher taxes for honest American taxpayers and larger debts passed on to our children and grandchildren. That is the choice the White House has made. The administration proposes that hundreds of billions of dollars be given to the biggest corporations and wealthiest among us. This means a more uncertain future for Social Security because $2 trillion will need to be taken out of the Social Security trust fund.

This also was a choice the administration has made. They insist that even in the face of massive deficits, a job crisis, and our ongoing activities in Iraq and Afghanistan, we must continue their failed policies of tax cuts first, last, and always.

Another sad illustration of its poor choices, in addition to record deficits and debt, 2.4 million children are going to be left behind because of underfunded education priorities; 210,000 more veterans will not receive the health care they need; 1,200 fewer cops will be on our streets. What an amazing turnaround.

Less than 3 years ago, we were praising the cops of New York and Washington for their incredible response to 9/11, and now we tell many of them they are out of a job because we are not going to fund the programs that put them there in the first place. Thousands of firefighters and emergency personnel also praised less than 3 years ago will be fired as a result of the cuts in this so-called budget. These are the choices the White House has made. The President has chosen to provide huge windfalls for millionaires and giant corporations, and huge cutbacks for the programs that matter most to American families. Families who make and follow budgets should look at the administration's budget and be aghast, not just for the sleight-of-hand tricks that hide its true cost, but for the fact that the President has abandoned their priorities and their concerns. If this budget passes, Americans face a future with poorer schools, higher crime, and less secure retirements.

We have to do better than this. We must provide Americans with a budget that honors their choices, their priorities, and prepares our Nation to meet challenges of our future. And we must be as forthcoming and responsible with taxpayers' dollars as they are with their own family budgets sitting at that kitchen table.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DASCHLE. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Through the Chair, I say to the distinguished Democratic leader, as someone who has worked on this highway bill to get it to the point where it is now, I very much appreciate the team work that has been shown with the majority and Democratic leaders. They have both spoken out strongly in favor of this legislation. That means a lot to Senator INHOFE, Senator BOND, Senator JEFFORDS, and to me, the two chairmen of the committee and subcommittee, and the two ranking members, who have worked to get this bill to the point where it is.

So I want to say again how much we appreciate the Democratic leader and the majority leader coming to the floor often and talking about the importance of this bill and especially acknowledging the fact that 90 percent of this bill is paid for through the trust fund, and a small percentage of it is through other taxes, no new taxes. So I thank the minority leader very much for his help.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I appreciate very much the compliments of the distinguished assistant Democratic leader. He has worked diligently with the chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, coordinated the efforts, and while this week could have been more productive, I do think at the committee level it was all that we could have hoped for on a bipartisan basis. The Finance Committee did its work. On a bipartisan basis, the Banking Committee has done its work. After the divisive and partisan battles we have had on energy, Medicare, and on so many things as we closed the first session of this Congress, it is somewhat refreshing to see the bipartisan nature of our work on this bill.

Senator FRIST has made it abundantly clear it is his desire, and I would say I share it just as strongly, that we finish next week. I would love to see this bill completed by this time next week. I think if we work hard, accommodate each other's desire to entertain amendments, debate these amendments, have votes on the amendments, there is no reason we cannot finish this bill a week from today, prior to the Presidents' Day recess. That would certainly be my hope.

Again, I appreciate the leadership provided, especially by the Senator from Nevada, in reaching that goal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. If I could just ask one more question. I know how busy the leader is, but as I was reading my news clips today, and as I was listening to the distinguished majority leader talk about what a great bill this Medicare bill is and how that now people, if they are 65 years old, can have a high blood pressure cup placed on their arm and in a few seconds find out what their blood pressure is. I do not think that is very expensive. I, frankly, say that most people who go to doctors have that done automatically anyway. I apologize for this, but it will take only about 3 minutes. I want to read an article that was in Nevada's second largest newspaper, the Reno Gazette-Journal. This is what appeared in my news clips today: "Seniors Blast Medicare Prescription Plan." I am not making any of this up.

> Riley Waller is among many Washoe County citizens still angry over the Medicare prescription plan signed into law in December, saying it will gouge seniors and the taxpayers who'll pay for it.
>
> More than 100 senior citizens listened Thursday morning as Nevada Division of Aging officials explained how the new prescription drug program will work. Several seniors said they're unhappy with the new prescription program adopted by Congress and signed into law by President Bush, with the backing of the largest group representing older Americans.
>
> "It took away the opportunity for people to get drugs from Canada at half the price," said Waller, 77, of Reno. "It will not allow Medicare to negotiate lower prices. That's ridiculous."
>
> Robert Chamberlain, 67, a retired Reno lawyer, said he soon will be among 45,000 seniors to drop their membership in the American Association of Retired Persons.
>
> "When the AARP came out in favor of the Bush plan, they did a disservice to the elderly people who are in need of Medicare," Chamberlain said. "The AARP will profit from them in selling them insurance."
>
> Norma Herring, another Reno senior, said she doesn't take prescription drugs and will not pay a monthly premium to get them.
>
> "No way am I going to pay a monthly fee."
>
> The Medicare prescription program begins in January 2006, while a temporary discount card program starts this June. "How these programs provided by insurance companies will intertwine with the state's Senior Rx program has not been determined," said Betty Squires, Nevada Division of Aging Medicare adviser for seniors.
>
> People must sign up for both programs. Seniors will be given a six-month window to register for the Medicare drug program starting November 15, 2005. If they register later, they'll pay a penalty.
>
> Under the program, each year seniors must pay $420 in monthly premiums; buy the first $250 of medications; pay 25 percent of medication costs between $250 and $2,250; and all of the costs from $2,250 to $5,100—the so-called doughnut hole. After that, Medicare will pay 95 percent of prescription drug costs.
>
> In providing an example, Squires said a married man whose prescriptions total $4,850 a year would spend $3,370 to buy them while Medicare would pick up $1,080 of the cost.
>
> Individuals with annual incomes less than $9,600 and couples with incomes less than $13,000 would generally pay between $1 and $5 per prescription with no additional costs. Other low-income groups with few assets also would get discounts.
>
> Squires said some employers might drop prescription drug benefits for their retirees in anticipation of the new program.
>
> "Teachers in Las Vegas lost the benefit. It's already happening," she said.
>
> But her hope is companies will instead cover the premiums or provide coverage for the doughnut hole.
>
> In the last few weeks, a national liberal group called Moveon.org has spent $1 million on television commercials in Nevada, putting words in President Bush's mouth about the prescriptive drug program.
>
> The commercials say the Medicare bill has real drug benefits for the big drug companies, Bush contributors, in forbidding Medicare from negotiating lower drug prices and barring people from importing drugs from Canada.
>
> Squires said the drug companies won't be limited in how much profit they'll make from the new program.

I will not finish the article, and I am sorry to take the leader's time, but this is happening all over America. It is not just in Reno. The prescription drug benefit, no matter how it is painted with chocolate, is a program that is not good for the American people. The American people know this, as indicated by the group that met in Reno yesterday. This is a disaster waiting to happen.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I appreciate the most recent report from

Nevada with regard to how his constituents are viewing this new Medicare Program. I must say it is perfectly in concert with the sentiments expressed in similar articles in South Dakota. During the last break, when I was home holding meetings regarding this program, we had standing room only crowds in every single meeting, and those crowds were almost universally angered, frustrated, and concerned about their circumstances as a result of this legislation passing.

Much of their anger, as the Senator noted in the article, is directed towards the organization AARP, for their failure to stand up for citizens, and I think that is understandable. Their frustration and their anxiety goes deeper than just an organization. They are concerned about their own livelihoods and what it may mean for them and how troubling it is to them that the Government is actually forbidden from negotiating lower drug prices, which is what the goal was in the first place.

So it is their inability to get lower drug prices, their concern about having to pay exorbitant premiums and fees for a limited benefit, their concern about being pushed into an HMO, their concern about whether they can access drugs from other countries like Canada where prices are cheaper: all of those and many more concerns were reflected in these discussions. It is again reflected in the article the Senator has just read into the record.

So I share his consternation and his resolve to address these issues. We have to find a way to fix it, and the senior citizens of this country are demanding we do it now.

I yield the floor.

SAFE, ACCOUNTABLE, FLEXIBLE, AND EFFICIENT TRANSPORTATION EQUITY ACT OF 2003

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of S. 1072, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1072) to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Modified committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

Gregg amendment No. 2268 (to amendment No. 2267), to provide that certain public safety officials have the right to collective bargaining.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Democratic whip.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I commend my friend, the junior Senator from Oklahoma, Mr. INHOFE, for his steadfastness in attempting to move this most important bill that the Chair just reported. He has worked hard on this for months. This week he has worked hard on it. This has not been an easy week. I said many times before, as I said earlier speaking with the Democratic leader this morning, there is no other legislation we will consider this Congress that will do more for the American worker or have so great an impact on every facet of American life than the bill which was just reported by the Chair, the highway bill.

Since coming to Congress, I have been so impressed with what infrastructure development does for the entire community. It provides jobs, but the social benefits are significant. For every $1 billion invested in infrastructure, it has been established, and we heard it many times, we create more than 47,000 high-paying jobs, skilled jobs that generate more than $6.2 billion of economic activity. Again, for every billion dollars spent on infrastructure development—for example, highway or transit—we create 47,000 jobs. But the spinoff for this $1 billion is $6.2 billion in economic activity. Even by conservative estimates, funding our Nation's infrastructure program at the $311 billion Bond-Reid level will create hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of jobs.

I thank the two leaders again, Senators DASCHLE and FRIST, for their support and for their recognition of the importance of this measure. I wholeheartedly agree with the majority leader's statements earlier this week when he urged the Members of this body to focus their full attention on this legislation. I would say, however, that his focus should be on that side of the aisle. We, over here, are marching in lockstep toward completing this legislation. There has been a lot of stumbling taking place on the other side of the aisle. There has been roadblock after roadblock placed before this highway bill by the majority. The majority leader said:

> We cannot ask our fellow citizens to join the great American workforce and then stand idly by while our roads decay and that commute to work stretches from minutes into hours. It is a job issue. . . . Our highways, our bridges, our roads, our ports, and our trains are in fact very much the physical expression of the very name we bear, uniting the States of America.

I agree with the majority leader, but we need help. This bill is being held up by the majority. I don't know why, but some on the other side of the aisle have failed to recognize the wisdom of their leader, Senator FRIST. These Members continue to impede our progress on this. On the first thing we are doing this year in this session of the Legislature, there is a big roadblock, I repeat, on our highway bill. Progress is being impeded.

During last year's budget debate, 79 Senators—and there would have been more but we had some out running for President even then—79 Members of this body voted to support a $311 billion piece of legislation for highways and transit. Under the leadership of Senator GRASSLEY and BAUCUS, we have a funding package that meets this goal, enjoys bipartisan support, and meets the President's funding criteria.

I am always amazed at this bipartisan stuff we talk about here. McCain-Feingold is said to be a bipartisan bill, the great legislation done to improve campaign financing. It was bipartisan. OK, we had MCCAIN and HAGEL—and there may be a few other Republicans, and I apologize to those; I am sure the Presiding Officer was one of them—who favored McCain-Feingold. Basically, the Democrats pushed campaign finance reform.

On the highway bill, unless something changes, I don't know where the bipartisanship is. We know BOND and INHOFE support this legislation. But let's have this a truly bipartisan piece of legislation and move forward as we did during the budget process; 79 Senators supported what we are supposed to be doing in this. With the finance package having been completed, every piece of the puzzle is in place.

I remember I was always very bad working jigsaw puzzles. My little bother, he was great, but I, in my little-boy head, was envious of my brother Larry. He could do these puzzles. So, what I would do, I would hide the last couple of pieces of the puzzle so that way he couldn't complete the puzzle. He would come to me for the missing pieces and I would say okay, but I would always get something; he would have to carry the wood or do something to get the last few pieces.

We have the pieces to this puzzle. None of them are hidden. This is an important, complicated piece of legislation. It has very difficult components—highways, rail, mass transit, and the tax portion. Everything is done and everything is paid for. There are no new taxes. With this last piece of the puzzle now in place, we are ready to move forward.

As my friend from Ohio, Senator VOINOVICH, so passionately communicated last night, now is the time to act. Why would Senator VOINOVICH know? What basis would this man have to talk about this highway bill? It could be that GEORGE VOINOVICH was mayor of one of the largest cities in America, the mayor of Cleveland, OH. It could be that he was Governor of one of the most populous States in America, Ohio. He knows, from being a mayor and a Governor, how important this transportation bill is.

I think we should listen to GEORGE VOINOVICH, telling us, let's move on this legislation. It is important to Ohio. It is important to Nevada. It is important to Rhode Island. It is important to Texas. It is important to South Dakota. It is important to Tennessee.

Every State in the Union benefits from this. But we have some people saying: Oh, we can't do this, it's pork.

What in the world is that supposed to mean? Most of the bill is paid for out of the highway trust fund. Pork? I don't understand that. Is reconstructing a damaged bridge pork? Thirty percent of the bridges in America are in a state of disrepair. As has already been established here on the Senate floor, there are bridges in America where a school bus comes to the bridge, stops, lets the kids out, drives the bus across empty, has the kids walk across the bridge and jump back in the bus, and take off. Why? Because the bridge is dangerous. They can't have a bus full of kids go on a bridge that may collapse at any time.

Is that pork? One-third—almost one-third of all the bridges in America need something done: either be replaced or repaired or renovated in some fashion. The busiest two-lane road in Nevada is from a place called Railroad Pass to Searchlight, my hometown. It is a deathtrap. We are fortunate that half of that—18 miles of the 36 miles—now is a four-lane road. We are in the process of making the rest four lanes.

Is that pork? A busy two-lane road in Nevada, and people are killed and injured on that road all the time. Is that pork? I don't understand what the word means. I don't think so. Try to tell that to the truck drivers who are tied up in traffic, not being able to move their loads across this country because of the traffic on the road from Railroad Pass to Search Light. There are examples all over America that are the same. Is that pork because you want to move people more quickly?

As the majority leader mentioned in his statement, people are stuck in traffic. What does that do? It pollutes the air. There is no worse pollution than a car idling. It prevents people from getting to work so they can be productive. If it is a truck or a bus, it holds up the ability of commerce to move on, costing all of us more money.

Those folks who are talking about this bill having too much money need to reassess what their priorities are for the country. I personally believe this bill doesn't have enough money. It certainly doesn't have too much. A longtime Member of the other body, the chairman of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, the only Congressman from Alaska, believes what we have done here in the Senate isn't enough. He is over there working with the Republican majority in the House trying to get more money. I applaud him for doing that. We need more money for highways and transit—not less. This is a 6-year bill. I support it. If we can get it passed, I will be happy with it.

As Senator VOINOVICH said last night, we must seize this opportunity to act. I say it today. We must seize this opportunity to act.

According to a study by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials, the current extension—and we should have done this bill last year—cost $2.1 billion in project delays and caused the loss of almost 100,000 jobs. The extension has interrupted State transportation officials' ability to do long-term planning.

I hope we will not do another 1-year extension. If we do, it would make things even worse. These projects are difficult. You cannot complete a major highway project in a year. You can't do it. The highway projects are multiyear projects. It is the same with transit projects. If you don't have multiyear funding, you can't plan, and it winds up costing more money. A project that costs $100 will wind up costing $300. Multiply that by millions, and we understand.

We now are fast approaching the busiest contracting season in the year. Right now the weather is bad. Look at how things have slowed down outside this Capitol building. This isn't the time contractors' work is done. In the West, you can do it almost every place, but not here in the East, and not in the Midwest. It is too cold.

Much of the major highway construction and contracting is done in the months of March, April, and May. Without a long-term bill and the corresponding guaranteed revenue streams, many vital transportation projects will be put on hold and others delayed, wasting more money and costing thousands more jobs, at a time when millions of willing and able Americans are looking for work. How can we let this happen?

The Democratic leader talked about the fact we created a little over 100,000 jobs this past month. We should be happy about that. But it is really pathetic. It is pathetic. We haven't looked at what happened during the month of December when normally lots of new jobs come on board. People were expecting 175,000 new jobs. This is what we got—a little over 100,000. We will take it. But we will never make up for the loss of 3 million jobs that were lost in the last 3 years with 100,000 jobs a month. It won't work.

People down at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue should be beating down the doors saying pass this bill. What are they doing? They are carping, saying maybe we ought to take another look at this. They are beating up on Chairman YOUNG on the House side, saying don't even think about more money for highways.

I hope we can continue working on this. We need to do this. When millions of Americans are willing and able to work, shouldn't we provide jobs for them?

We spend a lot of time talking about deficits. But one we don't focus on nearly enough is the infrastructure deficit. Senator DASCHLE had his copy of the budget here. He talked about this swirling monetary debt we have, and the deficit we are going to have this year. But what we don't talk about very much is the deficit we have in the infrastructure.

When we were in charge of the Senate, I held a hearing and invited mayors from around the country to talk about the infrastructure deficit they have in their cities. I can remember Atlanta, GA. Their mayor said he was looking forward to getting out of office. He said, I am glad to be leaving because it is only a question of time before there will be a collapse of infrastructure such as water and sewer.

That is the way it is all over the country. This country is facing a growing infrastructure deficit. We are not keeping up with the infrastructure needs. That is an understatement. Congestion continues to get worse—forget about water and sewer. Americans will lose an estimated $67 billion in lost time and productivity, and we will waste almost 5.7 billion gallons of gas waiting in traffic this year.

In addition to the personal tragedy associated with traffic accidents, accidents cost $137 billion a year in property losses, losses in market productivity, and medical costs. How many of those accidents could be avoided by better traffic lights and better highways? We know we can do better.

While our transportation infrastructure has an estimated worth of $1.7 billion, much of this system needs an extensive overhaul and a lot of maintenance. Over a quarter of the Nation's bridges, as I have already stated in fact, it is 29 percent—are functionally deficient or obsolete. I have talked about that a lot. The Federal Highway Administration's 2002 Conditions and Performance Report estimates the Federal deficit in roads and bridges must be at least $35 billion a year just to maintain the current level of system performance. I say that is not very good. New investments to improve system performance will cost a lot more. We have a duty to close this infrastructure deficit.

A well-maintained national surface transportation system is essential to the free flow of people and goods so vital to a healthy and robust economy. We have a duty to the Nation to act now.

Again, I thank Senators INHOFE, JEFFORDS, and BOND for their commitment to move this most important legislation.

I again want to thank Senators FRIST and DASCHLE for their continued commitment and support in our effort to move a fully funded 6-year reauthorization through the Senate before the current short-year extension expires at the end of February. We must act, and we must act quickly.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as if in morning business for such time as I may consume.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

DECISION OF THE MASSACHUSETTS SUPREME COURT

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, 2 days ago, the Massachusetts Supreme Court sent shock waves across America when it held that traditional marriage—a marriage between a man and a woman—would be eliminated by judicial fiat. It is no secret the American people support traditional marriage. Yet some who would criticize that support for traditional marriage accuse those who support it of being intolerant.

What I would suggest to you is the only ones guilty of intolerance are those who support the kind of judicial activism we have seen demonstrated by the Massachusetts court most recently—one that is fundamentally disdainful of democracy itself under the rule of law.

Most Americans instinctively and laudably support two fundamental propositions. First, that every individual is worthy of respect, dignity; and second, that the traditional institution of marriage is worthy of protection.

Some opponents of traditional marriage laws, however, have accused those who disagree with them of intolerance, even though support for traditional marriage reflects traditional values shared by the overwhelming number of Americans. These deeply held values deserve more respect than that.

Throughout history, mankind itself, humankind itself, has recognized the fundamental importance of marriage and its traditional definition as the union of one man and one woman. That understanding is reflected in the laws, traditions, and customs of all 50 States. Now I should say, apparently, 49 States—unless the Massachusetts Legislature and the Massachusetts people are able to somehow overcome this edict by the Massachusetts Supreme Court in their attempt to alter this historic institution and fundamental building block of our society.

Common sense and social science alike teach us that, even as we respect family relationships of all kinds, we must recognize that children are best raised by intact traditional families.

Accordingly, in 1996, this body, the U.S. Congress, recognized that fact by passing a law called the Defense of Marriage Act, a law that was supported by overwhelming bipartisan majorities in both the Senate and in the House, and ultimately signed into law by President Clinton, a law that reaffirms that marriage is defined as the traditional union of a man and a woman. Indeed, three-fourths of the States have approved similar legislation. In light of this popular and well-grounded national consensus, charging supporters of traditional marriage with intolerance is simply outrageous.

I agree with the Senator from Massachusetts, Senator KENNEDY, who said in 1996 as part of the debate over the Defense of Marriage Act that "there are strongly held religious, ethical, moral beliefs that are different from mine with regard to the issue of same-sex marriage which I respect and which are no indications of intolerance."

It was just last September that the Constitution Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which I chair, held a hearing to consider whether some recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions put the Defense of Marriage Act in jeopardy. To me it just made good sense that Congress itself, after having passed this law so overwhelmingly, would look to see whether judicial activism posed a threat to this democratic expression of the will of the American people through their duly elected representatives.

Indeed, there was some debate whether the Supreme Court decision in Lawrence v. Texas, which created not just an equal protection right but which created out of whole cloth this notion espoused by Justice Kennedy and a majority of the Court, to an individual right to autonomy in one's sexual relationships, such that government can never regulate or intrude.

Of course, they purported to put marriage, incest, pedophilia, and other things like that out of bounds or outside of their decision, but the fundamental basis for that decision, legal scholars at that time recognized, could easily be transferred to other cases where the very definition of marriage and family itself was at issue.

So it was with great concern that, just a short time after that September hearing, we saw the day when we would have to face this issue had come much faster than any of us could imagine. The Massachusetts Supreme Court, the first court in the Nation, held that—based on the very same rationale that the U.S. Supreme Court used in the case of Lawrence v. Texas—that Massachusetts could no longer limit marriage licenses to couples of the opposite sex.

In an apparent attempt to create a figleaf of an idea that democracy was still alive in Massachusetts and it would not forever be ruled by judicial edict, the Court granted the legislature 180 days to bring the laws of Massachusetts into line with this new found legal right to same-sex marriage. It was a newly discovered right, of course, being found primarily in the U.S. Supreme Court decisions of last summer.

So in an effort to find some way out of this dilemma, the legislature asked the Massachusetts Supreme Court whether civil unions would be sufficient under the court's ruling to meet the requirement of equality of treatment. It was the day before yesterday when the court, astoundingly, said "No."

The only thing that would satisfy the Court's decision, its edict, would be to give same-sex couples the same treatment as we recognize for traditional marriage between a man and a woman. Thus the people of Massachusetts, their Governor, their legislature, are now scrambling to try to figure out what alternatives are available to them. They hope to avoid this runaway train careening down this track—the establishment, at least in Massachusetts, of a right to same-sex marriage.

The thing that was impressed upon me so much about the Massachusetts decision when reading it, besides the fundamental holding which sent shockwaves across America, was the sheer contempt that the court held for traditional marriage. Its intolerance for traditions we have recognized in this country, certainly since its founding, and in identifying this new right based on no particular or specific text but indeed made up out of whole cloth by the court relying on Lawrence v. Texas.

The Massachusetts court did not stop at this enormous step, but proceeded to condemn traditional marriage outright, and they did so in rather startling terms. After acknowledging, as Senator KENNEDY had back in 1996 when we were talking about the Defense of Marriage Act, that deep-seated religious, moral, and ethical convictions are motivating traditional marriage supporters, the Massachusetts court said that it still found "no rational reason" for laws limiting marriage to a man and a woman. And, in fact, it went even further. It concludes the traditional marriage is "rooted in persistent prejudices."

I know that Members of this body and our colleagues across the Capitol, really no one in America, wants to engage in this debate. It is understandable. No one, frankly, wants to be painted with a brush of intolerance of somehow treating people badly. But as I said, this is not about treating others badly, failing to give them respect as individuals. This is about the intolerance marshaled by judicial activists on the Massachusetts Supreme Court and on benches around the country, the massive intolerance they have for fundamental democratic values. These are the values that say we, the people, are the judges of our own destiny, and no law will be made unless it is founded on the fundamental consent of the people, not on casual judicial edict.

The American people are left in shock when, occasionally, courts come out with rulings that defy all logic and all common sense—rulings that dramatically conflict with our traditions and our fundamental values. These are cases not only like the Massachusetts case, but like the case decided by the Ninth Circuit not too many months ago where, for the first time in American history, a court has held that to allow schoolchildren to say the Pledge of Allegiance and recite "one nation under God" violated the Constitution. Again, another decision totally at odds with common sense, totally at odds with our values and traditions, and one that certainly the American people would not support. Instead, a handful of judges who appear to consider themselves smarter, wiser than the common man, are telling the American people what they think is good for them.

After all appeals are exhausted, if in fact the American people are left with a decision like this Massachusetts decision, make no doubt about it, if it stands, it will then be used in a variety of different ways.

Lawsuits will proliferate all across the country, citing the Massachusetts decision, based on this U.S. Supreme Court decision Lawrence v. Texas last summer as a basis to recognize same-sex marriages in other States. Because they will be challenging on a constitutional basis, State statutes will then be scrutinized to see if they pass muster under this new-found constitutional right made up by the Massachusetts court. They will be argued as a basis upon which to overturn traditional marriage laws in other States as well. And that will happen in State and Federal courts, all across the country.

The second thing that will happen is that same-sex couples who receive marriage licenses in Massachusetts will begin to move to other States, and they will file lawsuits in those States and say: Under the full faith and credit clause of the U.S. Constitution, I have a right, under the U.S. Constitution, to have my marriage, which is valid in Massachusetts, recognized in Texas or Kansas or Maine or California, Oklahoma, Florida—you name it.

We will begin to see these sorts of lawsuits and claims proliferate around the country. And that causes me a great deal of concern when a court of law, supposedly—but really a court that is acting more like a superlegislature, a legislature wearing black robes, ruling by edict and the gavel—makes statements such as this, such as the court in Massachusetts did when it called traditional marriage a "stain," a "stain" on our laws that must be "eradicate[d]."

I am just baffled at how people, who put their hands on the Bible and pledge to uphold the laws and the Constitution of their State and of the United States, can find a right that no one else has found to exist in the Constitution. I am baffled that they are so openly contemptuous of American values and American families and our traditions that they would call traditional marriage a "stain" that must be "eradicate[d]" from our laws.

The choice is up to us, whether to live with the dictates or the edicts of judges. Judges in other States cannot be held directly accountable to us, because we cannot vote on them, we cannot seek any sort of redress against those decisions. Yet we have to live with this sort of judicial adventurism and judicial activism that challenges the basic precepts upon which our society is based.

The choice we are left with is to decide whether a Federal marriage amendment to the U.S. Constitution is the appropriate response.

As I said just a few moments ago, last September I held a hearing in the Constitution Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee, asking the question: Is the Defense of Marriage Act in jeopardy? As I said, we had a debate. Some said, well, yes, they thought courts had all the tools they needed in order to hold that act unconstitutional, and it was just a matter of time before they did that. And there were others who candidly said: No, there is no way, no how, that it was never going to happen.

Well, we have learned something since that September hearing. Not only has a court shown its willingness to attack the fundamental institution of traditional marriage in such a contemptuous, anti-democratic way, but the day on which other courts are more likely to do the same has become incredibly accelerated.

I believe we are now engaged in a battle over whether this land, when it comes to traditional marriage, will be ruled by the whim of judges or whether we, the people, will determine our fate and our values and the outcome of this very important controversy.

I believe we stand by and do nothing at our own peril. Because if we do nothing, this decision will redefine and trivialize the institution of marriage. If you can take the label of "marriage" and apply it not just to the traditional relationship between a man and a woman—one that has been found over countless years to benefit children, to provide a stable emotional and economic foundation for children so they can then prosper and become responsible, productive adults—if we allow a court, making it up as they go along from the sweet mysteries of life, to attack an institution as fundamental as marriage—and our response is to do nothing about it, then shame on us—shame on us.

I never imagined in a million years when I ran for this body, the United States Senate, in 2002, that I would be coming to the Senate floor and defending traditional marriage. And I bet my colleagues here, on both sides of the aisle, in both Chambers, are scratching their heads and wondering: What has the world become? Has the world gone crazy? What happened to our understanding of what American values are, and our tradition, and our respect for democracy, and our respect for the different branches of Government that perform different functions, with the Legislature passing laws, the courts interpreting the laws, and the President, the executive branch, executing those laws?

We stand by and do nothing at our own peril. So I believe the time has come for the appropriate committees in this body, as well as in the House of Representatives across the Rotunda, to convene hearings to determine how best we can respond to this startling display of judicial activism that so threatens our fundamental institutions and our values. As the chairman of the Constitution Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee, I intend to work with Chairman HATCH to do just that.

The day that some speculated would come has now come upon us so much more quickly than any of us ever dreamed—the day has come, I believe, to confront this challenge to democracy and to the rule of law itself face to face.

We must not flinch. We must not back down. We must not allow people to paint our motivations as hateful or hurtful because, indeed, they are not.

No, what we are about is preserving our law, preserving the separation of powers where the legislature makes the law and the judiciary interprets the law. We are about preserving the fundamental building block of our society and the well-being of families and the welfare of children. That is what we are for. That is what this debate will be focused on.

I believe the institution of marriage deserves better than it has received at the hands of the Massachusetts Supreme Court. Our institutions of democracy deserve better. The American people deserve better. They deserve respect. Our Constitution deserves respect.

Traditional marriage laws have served as the underpinning of civilized society for countless generations. Opponents of traditional marriage should demonstrate greater tolerance and respect toward others by respecting democracy and the will of the people, and ceasing their judicial war against marriage.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMAS). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, it has been our intention to get as many of the obstacles out of the way and as many amendments here as possible relating to the highway bill. The leader told us he wants to have the highway bill completed by late next week. I think we can do that. If Members have amendments they would like to have considered by the managers, our staff will be available this afternoon and Saturday afternoon from noon until 5 p.m. in Hart-415.

If you have any amendments you would like to work out, I strongly advise you to bring them down today or tomorrow instead of waiting until next week. Again, that will be in Hart, room 415, and anytime today or tomorrow, Saturday, between noon and 5 p.m.

I also note we have been inviting people to come and speak on the bill. No one has come down yet. It is now 11:15. In the event that no one wants to speak on the bill by noon, we will probably shut down.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, it feels as if we have been away a long time. This was an unpleasant respite and it goes to the issue of how safe our country can be. This, the people's property, is not exempt from terror or the threat of terror. It does not matter whether we define terrorists as someone coming from Afghanistan or the Middle East or some faraway place. Terrorism is not different if it comes from an individual or a dissatisfied or disgruntled American. We have to fight against it with everything in our means. Unfortunately, we see the result of this fight within our society, within the Capitol. It is not the glorious place it used to be from the outside. We still have the responsibility, for the glory of our country, to carry on from the inside.

To our majority leader, we extend our feelings that it could not have been an uglier manifestation of differences. He is someone who we all know has had experiences. I am sure he finds challenges on his trips to Africa and doing the work he has done in flying a single-engine plane to go places to perform services for those less fortunate.

I thank the majority leader for bringing up this bill. I know there have been concerns or maybe even disputes from other parts of Government not to move ahead with this, to try and reduce it to less worthiness. While I have the floor and there is apparently no rush for others to follow, I want to say that for my staff, from the Lautenberg office, and I think it is probably fair to say those on the staff of the entire Capitol who perform as they always do under pressure, they manage to get their work done. They are willing to be inconvenienced. They are willing to do whatever they have to do to perform their tasks, and we greatly respect it.

That is why I get upset when I hear talk about reducing Government until it withers on the vine when we have people here who work so hard and diligently to keep things going on behalf of our society and across this country.

I am pleased we are finally taking up S. 1072, the bill that reauthorizes our Nation's Federal Surface Transportation Program. I do not think there is any other bill we are going to pass this year that is as important or more important, let's say, than the highway bill. We have to be able to move people and goods efficiently, economically, and safely. Otherwise, our economy would choke.

It is a peculiar anomaly that even as things have slowed down in this period of recession, I did not see any less traffic on our roads, or any less pollution coming from congestion. So it is important we get on with this, and I hope we are not going to get any resistance to what appears to be a bill that takes care of needs across this country.

I hope the President is not approaching this with an objection in mind. Whether that objection extends as far as a veto or not, we do not know, but I hope he will see this is an essential part of our functioning as a society and encourages us to make these investments which are talked about so glibly. As the saying goes, when it comes to where the rubber meets the road, we do not see it happening. We hope it is going to happen now, and the bill will pass—and I think it is inevitable we will pass this bill—that it moves along at least at a pace that it leaves us with the amounts of funding we are looking at.

S. 1072 is a complex bill. The major titles come from four different authorizing committees. There are lots of Members who deserve credit for bringing it to the floor. I think of Senator INHOFE and Senator JEFFORDS and Senator BOND and Senator HARRY REID who had the primary responsibility for this measure in the Environment and Public Works Committee. Also, Senator SHELBY and Senator SARBANES worked so hard to craft a transit title which falls under the jurisdiction of the Banking Committee. This title is particularly important to the residents of my home State, New Jersey, over 11 percent of whom rely on public transportation to get to and from work.

Senator GRASSLEY and Senator BAUCUS and the rest of the Finance Committee had to figure out how to pay for the bill.

Last but not least, the committee on which I serve, the Commerce Committee, reported out its title, which deals with many important safety programs, under the able leadership of Senator MCCAIN and Senator HOLLINGS.

This past Monday, the groundhog, Punxsutawney Phil, saw his shadow. It suggests we face 6 more weeks of winter weather, the kind of dreary weather we have grown accustomed to—the kind that we have seen in these last several weeks and we did not like any of it. We did not like it when it was raining and we did not like it when it was snowing. We like to see some rain to make sure we have enough water, but the accompanying misery was not pleasant at all. I know I speak for everybody when I say that.

There was another shadow, however, we saw on Monday last, the shadow cast by record-breaking deficits in the President's budget request for fiscal year 2005. Because of these budget deficits, the President is requesting, sadly, inadequate funding for our highways, mass transit, intercity and freight rail transportation, safety programs and environmental protection. When it comes to the future of our surface transportation system, the President, with his proposal, is forecasting 6 more years of traffic congestion, air pollution, wasted fuel, unnecessary fatalities, and a stagnant economy.

The Department of Transportation expects freight traffic to double in this country over the next 2 decades. Meanwhile, more and more Americans will need to use our roads, rails, and runways to travel to their jobs, to school, to medical appointments, to worship, to vacation. We are already straining capacity as we follow those pursuits.

The needs of our transportation system are well documented and I am disappointed President Bush has declined to acknowledge these needs in his vision of America's future. S. 1072 would authorize a program that is 25 percent bigger than the Bush administration's current proposal. The House of Representatives may consider one that is even 50 percent bigger than the Bush administration's proposal. We are on the right track, and the President is on the wrong track. I am hopeful we can all agree on a final proposal which truly addresses the needs of our national transportation system this is something the American people deserve.

A bigger, better highway bill is not just about reducing traffic congestion and repairing bridges, as important as those things are. The Secretary of Transportation, Norman Mineta, has stated that $1 billion invested in transportation infrastructure supports 47,000 good-paying jobs, jobs which are located in America. When it comes to trade, we do not need to export any more jobs. We have to curb that, and we can do it by investing in transportation. One billion dollars invested equals 47,000 good-paying jobs. We ought to look at it from that aspect very seriously.

Transportation needs vary across the country. I can assure you, when it comes to need, my State, New Jersey, is near the top of the list. New Jersey is home to some of the oldest transportation routes in the country. Roads, bridges, rail tracks, and airports built decades ago are in need of repair or replacement. Our portion of the national transportation system includes 420 miles of interstate highway and 6,300 bridges, 1,580 miles of class 1 railroad tracks. There are 49 public use airports and the largest seaport on the east coast.

I point this out just to indicate the needs of one State, and I know the needs of other States are also acute. This infrastructure makes a significant contribution to our national economy. Over 375 million tons of general cargo move through the State, mostly on trucks and railcars, to and from the Port of New York and New Jersey.

Newark Liberty International Airport is the eighth largest cargo airport in the country. And, mind you, we are only a very small State, about 47th in size, and we have the eighth largest cargo airport in the country, the 20th biggest in the world, handling over 78,000 tons of cargo annually.

New Jersey lies along the busiest travel routes for freight and passenger travel in the country: The New Jersey Turnpike, the Northeast corridor, the Port of New York and New Jersey, Newark Liberty International Airport, and Interstate 95. There is a very good chance that the goods you use have traveled along these routes, or you yourself have traveled along these corridors in the last few years.

While supporting the commercial movement of these goods and passengers in the support of our Nation's economy, New Jersey's transportation infrastructure must also support over 4 million automobiles registered in the State, almost 2 million light-duty trucks and sport utility vehicles, lots of buses, and over 100,000 motorcycles. These vehicles owned by New Jersey residents must share the road with all the freight traffic moving through our State, and we must do it in a safe, environmentally-conscious, and efficient manner.

The same goes for rail travel along the Northeast corridor, which extends from Boston to Washington, DC. New Jersey commuter trains must share the rails at the biggest chokepoint on the entire coast, the tunnels under the Hudson River. Right now, during peak travel periods, New Jersey commuter trains run every 3 minutes and pretty soon at the rate they are expanding it will be every 2 minutes. It is hard to believe. This sounds like a subway train, but I am talking about commuter trains, each of which carries some 1,200 passengers.

Because New Jersey's transportation infrastructure is used so heavily, both in interstate commerce and by our resident commuters, it is important that it remains in a condition sufficient to support all this traffic.

Unfortunately, much of it isn't. I can't overstate this.

The current condition of our transportation infrastructure is terrible. Thirty-nine percent of urban interstate roads in New Jersey are reported as being in "mediocre" or "poor" condition, according to the Federal Highway Administration; 24 percent of our rural interstate roads are in "mediocre" or "poor" condition; 37 percent of New Jersey's 6,000 bridges are considered to be "structurally deficient" or "functionally obsolete."

On top of all that, there is at least a $4 billion backlog of rail maintenance on the Northeast Corridor. We desperately need to repair existing infrastructure and add capacity. The average commuting time for New Jersey residents is over 30 minutes, and it is the third longest average commute in the country. So New Jersey desperately needs a new highway bill and I am pleased the bill the Committee on Environment and Public Works has reported authorizes funding levels for the core highway and transit programs that are higher than the funding levels contained in the legislation that it is replacing, TEA 21, and far more than what the President has proposed.

Under the Committee's proposal, New Jersey is a donor State. That means that motorists in New Jersey pay more in gasoline taxes than the State receives from the Federal Highway Trust Fund under the allocation formulas. New Jersey is not alone in that category. Texas, Florida, Wisconsin, California, and many other States are currently contributing tens or hundreds of millions of dollars to our Nation's transportation system while other States get a windfall—in some instances many times over the amount of their contribution.

Formula fights are unpleasant and difficult to resolve—those fights to discuss who gets what under a given formula. Senators who represent States that reap more from the Highway Trust Fund than their citizens pay in gasoline taxes are understandably reluctant to lose ground, especially when their departments of transportation plan the financing for large, long-term projects. I think the allocations in this bill are a good start but still could use some tweaking. New Jersey, as I said, is a donor State and under the Committee's proposal the State will do better than it has under TEA-21.

I look forward to the day when we get 100 cents back on the dollar and stop this raid on what I see as New Jersey's contribution to places that really don't have the nexus to us that is needed to get to our system. I say that, not out of anger and malice, but I am so tired of hearing about contributions to Washington, how hard we have to fight to get our contributions honored and respected. We don't have a large military installation. That is not our choice; that is the way the defense establishment was created. But we are 50th in receipt of Federal funds compared to what we send out.

That is not a very welcome fact, I can tell you, in my State or with those of us who represent the State of New Jersey.

New Jersey's motorists will continue to donate tens of millions of dollars more than the State receives over the life of the bill. So while there is some improvement over the status quo, our State needs to do better, and we will continue that fight, given our transportation needs.

I make one final point and that concerns the addition of an intercity rail title to this bill. I think it is not only appropriate to have such a title in this bill, it is imperative. Intercity rail service is an essential part of our national transportation network. That is one of the lessons we learned on 9/11, that fatal day, that fateful day in American history, when our aviation system was crippled and some 5,000 airplanes had to be grounded.

That is one of the reasons I fight so hard to protect FAA in its present format as part of the Government, just like we have our military units as part of the Government. I think of the FAA as the fifth branch of our defense. Those airplanes had to be grounded on 9/11. The controllers in the towers and centers, the people who control the flight service stations—they did this with the skill of a physician doing brain surgery. Everything was precise. These airplanes, filled with thousands of people—hundreds of thousands of people—were in the air, and they were sent to destinations they didn't plan to be. Yet they could rely on the FAA to bring them all home safely. I make that point as an aside.

The fact is, the aviation system was turned off and we had to rely on other means of transportation. Highways were jammed with cars and trucks that couldn't move. Many Americans found another way to get to their destinations, and that was passenger rail service.

There was a group from Washington, legislators, who came up there very soon after 9/11 to see what had happened and to see if we could do things that would prevent it from ever happening again. They had to come up by Amtrak. That was the only possible way they could reach their destination—they couldn't fly.

For this country to have a decent passenger rail service we need to make the same commitment to rail infrastructure, the same kind of commitment that we have to building highways and runways. It is essential. It is not just essential for New Jersey and New York and that region or the Northeast corridor, it is essential across the country.

I am not necessarily just talking about long-distance rail. I am also talking about those centers and cities where there are numerous connections—200-, 300-, or 400-mile-long corridors—that could be so well served by more efficient high-speed rail.

One need only look at what happens in Europe. If you want to go from Brussels, Belgium, to Paris, France, you take a train that runs about 1 hour 20 minutes to cover 200 miles. Imagine if we could go from Washington to New York City or vice versa in 1 and a half hours, let us say, or 1 hour 40 minutes. It would make life considerably easier than now with the crowding we have at the airports and on our highways.

This is a good bill for the most part. I think it can be improved, and I intend to offer some amendments to do just that. I will discuss them at the appropriate time.

I congratulate the managers of this bill for bringing it to the floor, Senator INHOFE and our good friend from Vermont, Senator JEFFORDS. I look forward to working with them and the rest of the Senate to make a good bill even better and get it to President Bush. I am pleading with him now as much as we can in front of the American people to say, Mr. President, we have to take care of our infrastructure. Everybody knows that. We can define those needs perhaps a little bit differently, but we can't deny that that is the major responsibility at the moment. But we don't make things happen here domestically without investing what we have to. Making things better here at home with our infrastructure is a perfect example of that. I plead with the President openly: Mr. President, please sign this bill when it comes to you.

I am hopeful that we will work out something with the House that is not dissimilar to what we have here in the Senate bill. If it is better, we will take that. But we want to be at least as good as the Senate bill. We hope there is not going to be a campaign that puts this highway and interstate funding on a back burner.

I hope the President will have the wisdom to sign it, notwithstanding the fact that we will likely authorize more spending for high-speed transit and intercity rail than he wants.

As I said at the beginning of my remarks, the country desperately needs increased spending on our surface transportation infrastructure.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, let me begin by expressing my appreciation for the Senate leaders for their strong support in reauthorizing the Nation's transportation program, and also my good friend from New Jersey who lends his participation and expertise in coming up with a good bill. He has worked very hard. I deeply appreciate what he has done. Senators FRIST and DASCHLE have spoken forcefully to the vital nature of S. 1072, its potential to create jobs and spur the economy.

The American people are counting on us to advance this important legislation. With the stellar bipartisanship of leaders Senators FRIST and DASCHLE, I am confident we will succeed. Having worked now for many months with my good friend from Oklahoma, I know we will succeed.

As we consider this massive surface transportation bill, there is a tendency to focus on the State-by-State funding matter, overlooking the important policy initiatives and broad implications that attend to the investment of hundreds of billions of dollars.

I do not question the importance of the funding formulas. We spent countless hours examining options and developing an approach that benefits all States and balances competing interests.

But today, and through the course of our debate on S. 1072, I want to discuss the many forward-looking refinements that my colleagues and I have put forward for consideration.

Transportation investment is a means to an end. Our Nation has grown and prospered through strategic development of ports, trails, roads, rails, airports, highways, subways, and byways. In almost every case, our great cities can trace their origins—their very existence—to the logistics of transportation as one of the many eras of our Nation's expansion.

The form and expanse of our cities and towns are an outgrowth of surface transportation technology and investment. In my State of Vermont, even today, the distance between village centers reflects historic travel times by horse and wagon.

Older suburbs in the eastern and midwestern United States are located along early twentieth century trolley lines—lines later abandoned and now being renewed.

Our great sprawling sunbelt and western cities are a product of many key technologies, not the least of which is the modern highway. And it is the greatest highway network in the world—the Eisenhower Interstate Defense Highway System—that has tied our Nation and its many regions so closely together as we move into the twenty-first century.

Transportation investment truly forms our Nation and its communities. That is why our decisions on transportation policy and program structure—both in Congress and at home in our States and communities—must be balanced, well-informed, and forward-looking. I am proud that S. 1072 reflects this understanding.

We are probably coming to a conclusion for the week. I thank all of those who have succeeded in making sure this bill is proceeding properly, especially my good friend from Oklahoma, with whom I have worked. I know he will assist us in making sure this bill becomes a reality in the not-too-distant future.

Thank you, Mr. President.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SUNUNU). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. We will be shutting down here shortly, so I will repeat the announcement I made earlier. We are going to try to have this highway bill completed by the end of the week. To do that, there are several things that need to happen. One is that we get these amendments in. We have announced before, and we want to make sure the offices know, if Members have amendments they would like to have considered by the managers, our staff will be available this afternoon and Saturday—this afternoon, all afternoon and Saturday from noon to 5 o'clock—in Hart room 415. We would like to have amendments looked at. I strongly urge you to come down. We are going to stay on our timetable to try to have this completed.

I appreciate the comments by the Senator from Vermont and the Senator from New Jersey. It is very important we get this done.

We are beyond the point of turning back and changing things. We have spent a year working out all the elements—the environmental portion of the bill, the safety portion of the bill, the formula portion—and we have probably the best bill we have had during my time, and I go back to ISTEA when I was in the other body and TEA-21 here.

We have considered more than the other formulas and we have now abandoned the idea of percentages that will get 60 votes and then walking. That is not the way we should be doing it. I think we are doing it a lot better.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. DOLE. Mr. President, I rise to salute a woman who has just completed a stellar tour serving our Nation as Ambassador to the Republic of Finland, Bonnie McElveen-Hutner. I am proud to call Bonnie, and her husband, Bynum, my friends. Today, the President of Finland, Tarja Halonen, will award Bonnie the Commander Grand Cross of the Order of the Lion, an honor recognizing her exceptional and outstanding services. Bonnie McElveen-Hunter is truly worthy of this distinction.

I first met Bonnie in 1999, and was immediately impressed with her intelligence, her drive, her confidence, her spirit, and without a doubt, her Southern charm. She is the eldest of three children born to John T. McElveen, a former Air Force U2 pilot and Madeline, a school teacher. In fact, even to this day, though retired, Madeline is the ever present teacher and is known to impart her "pearls of wisdom" upon her daughter.

Bonnie's credentials are impeccable. She is a serious, successful CEO who serves as head of Pace Communications in Greensboro, NC, one of the top women-owned businesses in the country. The company's impressive client list has included United Airlines, Delta Air Lines, Holiday Inn, Radisson Hotels, and Toyota. Under Bonnie's leadership, the company became the largest custom publishing company in America, based on revenue. Bonnie's successes led President Bush to call her a "trailblazer among female entrepreneurs." How true indeed.

Bonnie's service as ambassador has been as successful as her endeavors in the private sector. Following the terrorist attacks of 9/11, she forged close relationships with Finland's leaders. During this trying time of international tension, Bonnie not only promoted unity between Finland and the United States in the face of terrorism, she helped to improve commercial ties between the two nations.

After the change of government in Finland, Bonnie worked to foster strong bonds with the new Finnish leadership. She developed a close relationship with Prime Minister Vanhanen, helping to ensure continued warm relations with the Finnish leadership. She met with every new minister in the Cabinet to emphasize the importance of our bilateral ties and to explore ways to enhance our partnership on key issues.

While serving as ambassador, Bonnie also worked on several "non-traditional" diplomatic items, including collaboration with Secretary of State Colin Powell to organize The Helsinki Women's Business Leaders Summit. This summit brought together American, Finnish, Russian, Estonian, Latvian, and Lithuanian entrepreneurs to share their business ideas across international borders. And she helped broker an arrangement that allowed women from Finland, the Baltics and Russia to shadow fifty of our country's top female business leaders.

Bonnie McElveen-Hunter has always had a keen interest and concern for her fellow man. As ambassador, she advanced the "child of Karelia" project, which helps Finnish and Russian charities assist children who are at risk for drugs, crime HIV/AIDs, and trafficking in the transborder region of Karelia. Bonnie is also one of the United Way's most effective fundraisers. And, when she and Bynum moved into a new home, they raised $1 million for Habitat for Humanity as part of their housewarming.

I love a story Bonnie tells about her childhood When she was 9 years old, her mother had her write the word "can't" on a piece of paper and bury it in a shoe box in the backyard of the home. She has not used the word since.

Bonnie McElveen-Hunter epitomizes the American spirit through her compassion and sense of entrepreneurship. She serves as an inspiration for us all. Congratulations, Madame Ambassador.

THE IMPORTANCE OF STATE AND FEDERAL FREEDOM OF INFORMATION LAWS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, "We're just everyday people," said Linda Raymond of herself and her husband, Mike, of Woburn, MA. "But we stopped a landfill from expanding and raised environmental awareness. Any community can do what we did."

The Raymonds live in a blue-collar suburb of Boston where they both work in the public school system. Three years ago, while walking on a wooded trail in their neighborhood, they discovered that the city's landfill, which had been dormant for 15 years, was bustling with truck traffic. They had cause for alarm. Woburn is the setting of the events that were described in the book, "A Civil Action." After rates of leukemia shot upward, local industries were sued in the 1980s for polluting the area water. The Raymonds, who had not previously been involved in environmental activism, sprang into action, determined to discover what was being planned for the landfill and how this would impact the community's public health.

The Raymonds' story was recounted in the January 25, 2004, issue of Parade magazine. "When Linda Raymond contacted town officials to find out what was going on, she hit a stone wall. 'I couldn't get a straight answer from anyone,' she says. 'It was very frustrating.'" The article describes what the Raymonds did next: "To get answers—and action—the Raymonds turned to a powerful set of tools: Federal and State Freedom of Information (FOI) laws."

With the information the Raymonds collected under Massachusetts State FOI laws, they educated the community and held public officials accountable. Their actions ultimately led to the city shelving plans to expand the size of the landfill by over a million tons of waste—plans that had been developed without public knowledge or debate, and which had not been evaluated for environmental or health impacts.

The Raymonds' triumph highlights the power of Government sunshine laws. It also demonstrates one of the most common uses of such laws by citizens and local community groups—that is, reliance on FOI laws to ensure that schools, neighborhoods and local industries are safe and secure. Our FOI laws are in danger, however, especially in the post-9/11 era. As noted by Parade, "Some journalists and civil liberties defenders believe that fences have gone up around FOI laws in the aftermath of 9/11. 'Freedom of Information is under threat,' says Woburn Daily Times Chronicle columnist Marie Coady. 'Across the country, it's becoming harder to access documents.'"

One of the most significant threats to American citizens' right to know about health and safety issues was enacted by Congress in 2002 in the form of a broad exemption to the Federal sunshine law, the Freedom of Information Act, FOIA. The Homeland Security Act of 2002, HSA, contained a subtitle purportedly designed to protect "critical infrastructure information." That broadly defined term applies to information regarding a variety of facilities—such as privately operated power plants, bridges, dams, ports, or chemical plants—that might be targeted for a terrorist attack. In exchange for the cooperation of private companies in sharing information with the government regarding vulnerabilities in the Nation's critical infrastructure, those companies would not have to share certain information with the public.

Encouraging cooperation between the private sector and the Government to keep our critical infrastructure systems safe from terrorist attacks is a goal we all support. Unfortunately, rather than increasing security by encouraging private sector disclosure to the Government, the law guts FOIA at the expense of our national security and public health.

The HSA created a new FOIA exemption for "critical infrastructure information." In HSA negotiations, House Republicans and the administration promoted legislative language that they described as necessary to encourage the owners of such facilities to identify vulnerabilities in their operations and share that information with the Department of Homeland Security, DHS. The stated goal was to ensure that steps could be taken to ensure the facilities' protection and proper functioning.

In fact, such descriptions of the legislation were disingenuous. These provisions, which were eventually enacted in the HSA, shield from FOIA almost any voluntarily submitted document stamped by the facility owner as "critical infrastructure." This is true no matter how tangential the content of that document may be to the actual security of a facility. The law effectively allows companies to hide information about public health and safety from American citizens simply by submitting it to DHS. The enacted provisions were called "deeply flawed" by Mark Tapscott of the Heritage Foundation. He argued that the "loophole" created by the law "could be manipulated by clever corporate and government operators to hide endless varieties of potentially embarrassing and/or criminal information from public view."

In addition, under the HSA, disclosure by private facilities to DHS neither obligates the private company to address the vulnerability, nor requires DHS to fix the problem. For example, in the case of a chemical spill, the law bars the Government from disclosing information without the written consent of the company that caused the pollution. As the Washington Post editorialized on February 10, 2003, "A company might preempt environmental regulators by 'voluntarily' divulging incriminating material, thereby making it unavailable to anyone else."

Last March, I introduced a bill to repeal this dangerously broad FOIA exemption and to replace it with a balanced measure that will protect our Nation's critical infrastructure without obliterating public oversight. The Restoration of Freedom of Information Act—Restore FOIA—would protect legitimate records pertaining to critical infrastructure safety, but would remove the free pass given by the HSA to industry for any information that a facility chooses to label "critical infrastructure."

Perhaps most important to people like the Raymonds, who relied on State FOI laws to obtain information on the Woburn landfill, the Restore FOIA bill also allows local authorities to apply their own sunshine laws. Unlike the provisions of the HSA, the Restore FOIA bill does not preempt any State or local disclosure laws for information obtained outside the Department of Homeland Security. Likewise, it does not restrict the use of such information by State agencies.

By enacting Restore FOIA, we can protect the Nation's critical infrastructure without cutting the public out of the loop. James Madison said, "A popular government, without popular information, or the means of acquiring it, is but a prologue to a farce or tragedy or perhaps both." I urge my colleagues to support Restore FOIA so that this basic and fundamental principle is upheld.

I ask unanimous consent that the Parade article describing the Rayburns fight for open and accountable Government be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From Parade Magazine, Jan. 25, 2004]

HOW THEY UNCOVERED THE TRUTH

(By Micah Morrison)

At first glance, they don't look like activists. Mike and Linda Raymond of Woburn, Mass., a blue-collar community north of Boston, are both in their mid-50s. They have been married 35 years, with two grown sons and four grandchildren. Mike teaches computer and fitness classes at the local high school. Linda is a secretary with the public school system. But these self-described "everyday working people" took on City Hall in a battle to protect their community.

Family pictures are on proud display in the Raymonds' comfortable home on North Maple Street in one of Woburn's many close-knit neighborhoods. "It's a good place to raise kids," Mike Raymond says of his town. "It has excellent schools and a good health-care system." Yet, on an autumn day three years ago, the Raymonds discovered something about their community that troubled them deeply.

The Raymonds took a walk down the wooden path at the end of their street. Past small ponds and a rise of trees, they came upon an astonishing sight: Trucks loaded with debris were rumbling up the 60-foot slopes at the Woburn Landfill. The 40-acre mountain of trash had been dormant for more than 15 years—now, mysteriously, it was growing again.

"I worried," Linda Raymond recalls. "Who had opened the landfill? Was it toxic? Why hadn't people in the neighborhood been told?"

Given Woburn's history, the Raymonds had reason for concern. In the 1980s, the town was rocked by a lawsuit against local industries claiming that water pollution had led to an increase in leukemia deaths. The story was revived in the '90s with the book and movie A Civil Action. Today, Woburn Mayor John Curran says the city "has worked hard to overcome the Civil Action stigma. Our drinking water has been of the highest quality for over 20 years."

Getting no answers. But when Linda Raymond contacted town officials to find out what was going on, she hit a stone wall. "I couldn't get a straight answer from anyone," she says. "It was very frustrating." So, to get answers—and action—the Raymonds turned to a powerful set of tools: federal and state Freedom of Information (FOI) laws.

As the Raymonds discovered, FOI requests can be made by anyone. "There are a million ways the public can use FOI laws," says Robert Freeman of the New York State Committee on Open Government. "When property taxes are raised, you can review the assessment rolls to ensure that you've been treated fairly. You can find out if your child's teacher is really certified to teach math. You can find out if a restaurant has health-code violations."

First steps. After researching FOI laws, Linda Raymond figured that her first letter should go to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection. She wrote asking for "any and all documents pertaining to the Woburn Landfill," noting that she was making the request under the state's Freedom of Information laws. The agency quickly complied, inviting Linda to come review the files.

Speeky cooperation from government agencies is not always the norm. "There will be delays," Linda says. "Something you have to be persistent. And it's important to know your rights—including the right to an appeal when documents are denied."

Looking over the files, Linda made some important discoveries. Under state law, the city was required to bring in material to "cap" the landfill and close it with a protective lining of topsoil, loam and netting. She found that, to pay for the multimillion-dollar project, Woburn had hired a private contractor who was hauling in soil and debris from construction sites to cover the capping costs. In reading through the documents, Linda also discovered that the bottom of the landfill did not have a protective lining.

That's when the Raymonds really began to worry, because the landfill sits on top of a watershed feeding into the nearby Aberjona River. "We found medical waste, coal ash, construction debris and oil seeping into the wetlands," Mike recalls. Were contaminants polluting the watershed?

Digging deeper. The Raymonds zeroed in with more specific requests. A second FOI petition went to the Woburn city clerk for the contract the town had signed with the waste-management firm. The response brought some startling news: "The original contract called for 300,000 tons of waste to be brought in," Mike explains, "but the town was looking to expand the landfill by another million tons."

A third request, to the Woburn Board of Health, brought documents revealing that the former mayor had quietly assembled a panel to advise him on landfill issues, with no public input. The documents also showed discussions of plans for the future of the site, including turning it into a picnic area or police shooting range.

"We got very angry," Linda recalls. "We felt the politicians were making plans without anyone knowing about it. And there were possible health risks."

Taking action. The Raymonds swung into action. They organized their neighbors, contacted the media and raised the issue at public meetings. "The documents we obtained under FOI educated us," Linda says. "And we in turn were able to educate the community."

At first, their aims were modest. "We wanted to postpone the capping until the landfill could be tested and deemed environmentally safe," Mike says. But the Raymonds had hit a nerve. Under mounting pressure, plans for the landfill were shelved.

"Without FOI laws," Linda says, "we couldn't have done it."

A threat to access? Next time, it might be more difficult. Some journalists and civil liberties defenders believe that fences have gone up around FOI laws in the aftermath of 9/11. "Freedom of Information is under threat," said Woburn Daily Times Chronicle columnist Marie Coady. "Across the country, it's becoming harder to access documents."

On the federal level, "there has been a major change in atmosphere since 9/11," says Lucy Dalglish, executive director of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press. Federal officials "are not releasing information they would have provided five years ago."

Still, thousands of Freedom of Information requests continue to be routinely processed every year. And with legal challenges under way, ultimately the courts will decide whether the new restrictions are a reasonable response to a changed world.

The Raymonds say they'll keep using FOI laws. Although the state of Massachusetts has given the Woburn Landfill a clean bill of health, the couple plan to closely watch the results of the elaborate pollution-monitoring procedures established at the site.

"We're just everyday people," Linda says, "but we stopped a landfill from expanding and raised environmental awareness. Any community can do what we did."

Mike agrees. He cites his favorite quote, from anthropologist Margaret Mead: "Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has."

A POWERFUL TOOL EVERYONE CAN USE

It's not difficult to use Freedom of Information laws, and there's no telling what you might turn up. Here are some tips on getting the information you want:

Research First.—Who has the information you're seeking? Identify your targets. Ask your local librarian for help. Check municipal, state and federal Web sites. Most states have a designated office to help with public-records searches. Federal agencies have FOI officers. The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press (www.rcfp.org) publishes guides to using state and federal Freedom of Information laws.

Put It in Writing.—While some states allow oral requests, it's best to write a short letter stating what information you're seeking. Note that you're making the request under a State or Federal Freedom of Information statute. Be as specific as possible. The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press has a helpful sample letter at its Web site.

Show Them the Money.—Often there will be a photocopying fee and other costs related to your request. You can speed the process by stating in your letter how much you're willing to pay and asking to be notified if costs exceed that amount. You also can request a fee waiver. In some cases, you can go to a government office to view the documents and do your own copying.

Exemptions and Appeals.—Many public records are exempt from FOI laws. The U.S. Congress did not make itself or the courts subject to the statute. Most documents impacting minors, criminal investigations, trade secrets and personal privacy are off-limits. But you also may be denied documents that you have a right to see. If you are denied access, be sure to use the FOI appeals process. A brief letter to the agency head requesting a review of the decision will get the ball rolling. Meanwhile, make photocopies of everything you send out. Above all, be patient and persistent. You may be pleasantly surprised!

THERE'S MORE YOU CAN DISCOVER

There's a common belief that FOI laws are used mainly in environmental cases. Not true. Here are examples of other uses of this powerful tool:

In Grand Rapids, MI, a high school government class used Freedom of Information laws to expose flaws in the county's jury-selection system.

In Fulton, MO, a concerned citizen used State open-government laws—kissing cousins to FOI statutes—to force disclosure of town-council discussion about building a golf course at taxpayer expense.

In Washington, D.C., a women used FOI laws to find out about the ownership of some drug-infested, abandoned buildings. The owner? The District of Columbia government!

The U.S. Department of Agriculture—as a result of an FOI request—revealed accounts of the mistreatment of circus elephants.

GUN SAFETY REPORT CARDS

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, earlier this month, the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence, united with the Million Mom March and the Nation's leading State-based gun violence prevention groups, published the annual gun safety report cards for every State in America. The report cards are the culmination of a comprehensive analysis of each State's gun safety laws.

The report cards rate each State on seven types of laws that protect children from gun violence. Extra credit and demerits are also assigned for other State gun laws. The Brady Campaign includes in its analysis such questions as: is it illegal for a child to possess a gun without supervision? Is it illegal to sell a gun to a child? Are gun owners held responsible for leaving loaded guns easily accessible to children? Are guns required to have child safety locks, loaded-chamber indicators and other childproof designs? Do cities and counties have authority to enact local gun laws? Are background checks required at gun shows? Is it legal to carry concealed handguns in public?

The report awarded 10 States with Sensible Safety Stars for protecting children from gun violence. Nine other States were sent to the "Time-Out Chair" for weakening State gun laws. Unfortunately, 31 States received grades of D or F in this year's report cards. Not surprisingly, according to the report, States receiving Ds and Fs tend to have child and teen firearm death rates that are higher than the national average. For example, the average firearms death rate of youth in the 8 States that received an F grade was 33 percent higher than the average firearms death rate for the 10 States that received an A or a B.

I applaud the efforts of the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence to keep the pressure on State and local legislators to enact sensible gun safety legislation, and I encourage my colleagues to review this report.

OBJECTION TO S. 1896 AND H.R. 1664

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, last November, I announced my intention to object to any unanimous consent request for the Senate to take up S. 1896, the Tax Relief Extension Act, and H.R. 1664, the Armed Forces Tax Fairness Act. I did so because these bills were the only relevant amendable legislation expected to be taken up in the Senate before the end of the last session and, therefore, they provided the only opportunity to extend unemployment benefits before Federal unemployment benefits expired at the end of the year.

Oregon currently has the second highest unemployment rate in the Nation with an unemployment rate of 7.3 percent. Extension of unemployment benefits is critical for many Oregonians who have or will soon run out of unemployment.

In order to restore or continue benefits to unemployed workers in Oregon and many other States, I will be pushing for passage of S. 2006, the Emergency Unemployment Compensation Act. S. 2006 restores Federal unemployment benefits and reforms a "look back" rule that affects Oregon and other high unemployment States as part of the legislation.

Because there is now legislation before the Senate to restore Federal benefits for unemployed workers in Oregon and other States, I will no longer object to any unanimous consent request for the Senate to take up S. 1896 or H.R. 1664.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2003

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the need for hate crimes legislation. On May 1, 2003, Senator KENNEDY and I introduced the Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act, a bill that would add new categories to current hate crimes law, sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

One such crime occurred in Houston, TX, on January 26, 2002. Hugo Barajas was found dead from multiple gun shot wounds to the neck, arm and chest in a club that caters to the gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender community. Barajas, a man, was dressed as a women at the time of the murder.

I believe that Government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harm that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act is a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Evans, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself, Mr. WYDEN, and Mrs. FEINSTEIN):

S. 2053. A bill to reduce the costs of prescription drugs for medicare beneficiaries, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. JOHNSON:

S. 2054. A bill to require the Federal forfeiture funds be used, in part, to clean up methamphetamine laboratories; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 489

At the request of Mr. DEWINE, the name of the Senator from Kansas (Mr. BROWNBACK) was added as a cosponsor of S. 489, a bill to expand certain preferential trade treatment for Haiti.

S. 1946

At the request of Mr. CORZINE, the names of the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. BINGAMAN) and the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN) were added as cosponsors of S. 1946, a bill to establish an independent national commission to examine and evaluate the collection, analysis, reporting, use, and dissemination of intelligence related to Iraq and Operation Iraqi Freedom.

S. 1993

At the request of Mr. WARNER, the name of the Senator from Ohio (Mr. DEWINE) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1993, a bill to amend title 23, United States Code, to provide a highway safety improvement program that includes incentives to States to enact primary safety belt laws.

S. 2007

At the request of Mr. DURBIN, the name of the Senator from Washington (Ms. CANTWELL) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2007, a bill to provide better protection against bovine spongiform encephalopathy and other prion diseases.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 2272. Mr. LEAHY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1072, to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 2272. Mr. LEAHY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1072, to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 880, between the item following line 6 and line 7, insert the following:

SEC. 16 . AIR QUALITY CAPACITY BUILDING INITIATIVE.

Section 104 of title 23, United States Code (as amended by section 1607(b)), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(o) AIR QUALITY CAPACITY BUILDING INITIATIVE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Administrator of the Federal Highway Administration and the Administrator of the Federal Transit Administration and in consultation with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall establish an air quality capacity building initiative to support State, regional, and local governments in—

“(B) providing training in areas such as modeling and data collection to support air quality planning and analysis;

“(C) developing materials to explain air quality issues to decisionmakers and the public; and “(D) carrying out other activities necessary to assist State, regional, and local governments in better achieving clean air requirements.

“(2) USE OF FUNDS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Funds authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subsection may be used for—

“(i) research;

“(ii) program development;

“(iii) information collection and dissemination;

“(iv) technical assistance; and “(v) training.

“(B) COOPERATION.—To carry out this subsection, the Secretary may—

“(i) use funds under this section independently; or

“(ii) make grants to, enter into contracts or cooperative agreements with, and carry out other transactions involving—

“(I) Federal, State, and local agencies;

“(II) federally-recognized Indian tribal governments and tribal consortia, authorities, associations, and nonprofit and for-profit corporations; or “(III) institutions of higher education.

“(3) FUNDING.—

“(A) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated from the Highway Trust Fund (other than the Mass Transit Account) to carry out this subsection $20,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2004 through 2009, to remain available until expended.

“(B) FEDERAL SHARE.—The Federal share of the cost of a project or activity carried out using funds made available under subparagraph (A) shall not exceed 100 percent.”.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will return to legislative session.

ORDERS FOR MONDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 2004

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 1 p.m. Monday, February 9. I further ask that following the prayer and the pledge, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the Journal of the proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate resume consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if I could say before we leave, Senator INHOFE, Senator JEFFORDS, Senator BOND, and I want people to know our staffs are going to be available all weekend to work on any problems anyone has regarding the bill. If people have amendments, they can ask to meet with our staffs. We will go over the amendments to see if they are acceptable. The offices are open now. There is no reason not to be able to have the resources they need to go over this bill with our staffs.

The point I am making is we are open for business and we want to make sure everyone has the opportunity to talk to our staffs about any problems they have with the bill and ways it can be made better.

Anyway, please work with our staffs. They will be in their offices this weekend. I hope when Monday morning comes, people will also recognize the offices will be open. At 1 o'clock, we will be open for business. The leader indicated there won't be votes on Monday—will there be?

Mr. FRIST. No.

Mr. REID. So there will be no votes, but that doesn't mean we cannot do a lot of work. We hope everyone will cooperate with us. If there are problems, let us know. We want to move this bill as quickly as possible. It is important to everyone.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I might be a little more specific. In Hart-415 they are going to be open today and from noon until 5 o'clock on Saturday to work on amendments.

Mr. REID. Yes. I simply say I am confident there will be adequate time to take care of everything. I hope nobody wants to come in on the Sabbath. But, if necessary, we have someone who will work on the Sabbath.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I will restate what you just heard. We will resume consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill on Monday. It has been a challenging week in lots of different ways. We have had this incident in my personal office and a lot went on here on the floor, with progress.

I know the ranking member and the managers of this bill have been frustrated in that we have not made as much progress as they would have liked. They would like to have this bill signed, sealed, delivered, and done. We did have good debate on the highway bill. Important points have been made throughout the week. We have the foundation to complete action on this bill next week. You just heard that we will be working through the afternoon. There will be people working tonight and people will be working tomorrow, as you have just heard, on Saturday and Sunday, in preparation for coming back in at 1 o'clock on Monday.

We have a lot to cover next week on this bill. It is an important bill. I argue that it is a vital bill to support the infrastructure we are all so dependent upon each and every day in our activities, whether it is during the weekends, or going to school or work, or as part of our business. We have an obligation to continue to address it and to complete this next week.

Since we are closing down for the week, it has been only 5 days since this letter with this toxic substance was directed at this institution. As I have said before, I have been very pleased with the response in terms of the coordination, the communication. It is not perfect; it can be better; but I assure people we will take each incident and do our very best to communicate as well as we can, review procedures, and review systems, and we are doing just that.

I just finished a conference call for 30 minutes with the 40 employee staff members affected most directly from my office and from the EPW office and Senators JEFFORDS' and INHOFE's office, answering questions. There are a lot of unanswered questions. We will answer those and meet with them and come up with different and better procedures as we go forward.

The fact that the chairman could say the Hart Building is open tomorrow is music to my ears. We were able to open it ahead of schedule. The Russell Building got opened and the Dirksen Building, which is still closed, will be opened Monday morning. It is right on schedule.

I thank everybody for coming together and working through a broad range of both national agencies and agencies here on the Hill. First and foremost is the safety of our Senate employees, and we responded in such a way that I am happy to say nobody has been hurt. Everybody is OK, in spite of the fact we had this assault.

Also during this week, in Chairman GREGG's HELP Committee, we passed S. 1879, an extension of the mammography quality provision. In Chairman COLLINS' committee, we worked on S. 1612, which established a technology equipment and information transfer program with the Department of Homeland Security. We passed that this week. The Senate confirmed a U.S. district judge this week for the Northern District of Illinois. We will be back in Monday. The chairman encourages members to have amendments and contact him. His staff will be working through the weekend.

As the assistant Democratic leader mentioned, we will not be voting on Monday, but we will be working. I will consult with Senator INHOFE and the Democratic leadership as we go forward. I hope we will be prepared for a vote early Tuesday morning. We will keep people posted in that regard.

I did mention this earlier. Do you know what your blood pressure is? Fifty million people have hypertension, which causes stroke and heart attacks. A third of the people don't know they have it. If you know you have it, we have ways to treat it these days. The Medicare bill we passed means you can diagnose it because, for the first, in an entry level physical exam which is part of Medicare, you are going to be able to have hypertension treated. If you don't know what your blood pressure is, go home tonight and think about that and have it checked.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, it is called the silent killer.

Mr. FRIST. Yes. People don't know they have it. Probably about a fourth of the people listening to me have hypertension, and a third don't know it, and they will die prematurely. It is pretty interesting.

Mr. REID. It doesn't make you sick, does it?

Mr. FRIST. It is silent. You don't feel it until you have a stroke or heart attack. There are ways to prevent it. It is the silent killer. That is what the American Heart Association says. February is heart month, and right now the First Lady has a real initiative for women's heart disease. More women die of heart disease than men. I bet you didn't know that. A lot of people think it is more men.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 2004, AT 1 P.M.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 12:38 p.m., adjourned until Monday, February 9, 2004, at 1 p.m.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

HONORING THE FOX CHASE CANCER CENTER

HON. JOSEPH M. HOEFFEL

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. HOEFFEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor the Fox Chase Cancer Center for its 100 years of outstanding effort and achievement in the fields of cancer treatment and research.

Chartered in 1904, the Fox Chase Cancer Center was the Nation's first cancer hospital. Since its inception, the hospital has provided quality care for patients and has developed and refined methods of cancer treatment. The Fox Chase Cancer Center has been recognized for integrating strong basic and clinical research programs with programs of cancer treatment and detection, cancer control and community outreach efforts, and cancer prevention research and services. These efforts have earned the center various honors including a Nobel Prize for medicine, a Lasker Clinical Research Award, memberships in the National Academy of Sciences, and American Cancer Society Medals of Honor.

Founded on a spirit of optimism and determination, the center remains a national leader in cancer care. I congratulate the Fox Chase Cancer Center on its 100 years of dedicated service to the community.

H.R. 2264 CONGO BASIN FOREST PARTNERSHIP ACT OF 2003

HON. JOHN S. TANNER

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. TANNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2264, the Congo Basin Forest Partnership Act of 2003, that the House passed on October 7, 2003. As I said in my statement on that day, I have personally visited some of the areas that this bill will help to protect, and I highly recommend it to the House and hope that we adopt it again today with the other body's changes.

The International Conservation Caucus, of which I am a founding member and cochair, was formed in order to build support for the Congo Basin Forest Partnership initiative and to help with other international conservation efforts around the world. As members, we share a conviction that the United States has the opportunity and the obligation to advance the protection of the worldwide environment for current and future generations. The mission of the caucus is to act on this conviction by providing the strong U.S. leadership necessary to conserve the world's most biologically rich and diverse places. The Congo Basin Forest Partnership Act is one of the first steps in achieving our mission.

Our contribution under the act will focus on providing field-based conservation activities within 25 million acres in Cameroon, the Central African Republic, and the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Equatorial Guinea, Gabon, and the Republic of Congo, Rwanda, Burundi, and Sao Tome/Principe. It is estimated that forest areas in the Congo basin are being depleted at a rate twice the size of Rhode Island every year.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to vote in favor of H.R. 2264, the Congo Basin Forest Partnership Act.

HONORING RON YANKE

HON. C.L. "BUTCH" OTTER

OF IDAHO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with great personal sadness to note the passing of Ron Yanke, a dear friend who left us too soon and whose life and contributions truly made the world a better place.

Ron was a brilliant businessman with boundless energy and passion. He was a visionary philanthropist with unending kindness and generosity. He was a community leader who deflected attention from his many civic achievements. And he was a role model whose honesty, integrity, humility, and positive disposition set the standard for everyone he met.

But more than anything, Ron Yanke was a warm and loving husband, father, grandfather, and friend. I had the joy and privilege of knowing Ron well for much of my life and will forever miss his friendship and counsel. There are few men more deserving of recognition for their accomplishments and few less disposed than Ron was to seek or accept it.

His entrepreneurial talents helped create jobs for thousands of people in Idaho and throughout the Intermountain West with companies like Micron Technology, Yanke Machine Shop, RY Timber, Boise Mobile Equipment, YMC Inc., and Nashua Homes.

His selfless nature advanced such worthy causes as the Peregrine Fund, the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, the Boys and Girls Clubs, and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center.

His personal charm and compassion enriched the lives of everyone fortunate enough to have known him. Mr. Speaker, I am blessed to be counted in that number, and Idaho is blessed to have been home to Ron Yanke. I hope you will join me in extending the sympathies of the House of Representatives to his wife, Linda, and his family.

TRIBUTE TO ANDY DIVINCENZO

HON. LOUISE McINTOSH SLAUGHTER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to a great man who will be sorely missed: Andy DiVincenzo of Buffalo, New York.

Some people seem to have a special talent for success, a kind of Midas touch. Andy DiVincenzo was one of those people. Whether in his business and culinary endeavors, his charitable work, or his family life, Andy imbued everything he did with a special charm, energy, and passion.

Andy was the founder, head chef, and owner of the famed restaurant Billy Ogden's, which opened in the Lovejoy area of Buffalo in 1989. Since opening, both Andy and Billy Ogden's have received numerous four-star reviews. For 10 years running, Andy was selected to represent the Buffalo Bills at the Super Bowl's famous Taste of the NFL, where the Nation's finest chefs, as well as NFL legends, volunteer their time in support of hunger relief efforts throughout the country. Though busy with his restaurant and catering business, Andy also dedicated himself to numerous charitable causes. He devoted time to the Kids Escaping Drugs program and served on the board of the famous Camp Good Days and Special Times, which serves children with cancer and other life-threatening illnesses.

Within the local community, Andy was adored, known for his big heart and willingness to help people. He believed everyone deserved a second chance and worked to help provide it. Buffalo, Western New York, and, indeed, the world are better places for having had Andy DiVincenzo among us.

Tragically, Andy has been taken from us too soon and too young. He passed away in his sleep on January 25 at the age of 52. He left behind a loving family, including his wife, Eleanor, daughters Tara and Adriana, and mother, Viola. These were the women in his life to whom he could never deny anything and for whom he would do anything to please. His siblings, Frank and Donna, as well as cousins, nieces, nephews, and others all join in mourning his death.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to the remarkable life of Andy DiVincenzo and in extending our sincere condolences to his family.

FLOOR ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE HON. DAVID DREIER ON THE AMENDMENT PROCESS FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1561, UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK FEE MODERNIZATION ACT OF 2003

HON. DAVID DREIER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Rules may meet the week of February 9 to grant a rule which could limit the amendment process for floor consideration of H.R. 1561, the United States Patent and Trademark Fee Modernization Act of 2003. The Committee on the Judiciary ordered the bill reported on July 9, 2003, and filed its report with the House on July 25, 2003.

Any Member wishing to offer an amendment should submit 55 copies of the amendment and one copy of a brief explanation of the amendment to the Rules Committee in room H–312 of the Capitol by 2 p.m. on Tuesday, February 10.

Members should draft their amendment to the text of the bill as reported by the Committee on the Judiciary.

Members should use the Office of Legislative Counsel to ensure that their amendments are drafted in the most appropriate format. Members are also advised to check with the Office of the Parliamentarian to be certain their amendments comply with the rules of the House.

ON THE UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY SESSION CONCERNING ISRAEL AND THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

HON. W. TODD AKIN

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. AKIN. Mr. Speaker, December 8, 2003, the General Assembly of the United Nations, sitting in an emergency special session, adopted Resolution ES 10/14, requesting the International Court of Justice to render an advisory opinion on the legal consequences of Israel's security fence.

The placing of this issue before the ICJ as the result of a political campaign within the U.N. General Assembly is a highly unsatisfactory means of dealing with a profoundly complex and contentious issue. If successful, this initiative portends an increasingly political and divisive use of the ICJ.

There is an increasing concern by many countries that the use of the ICJ to obtain an advisory opinion will undermine the stature of the court as well as the role of international law. It is also important that the ICJ continue to abide by the principle of not addressing such contentious issues without the consent of all parties involved. To do otherwise could set a precedent that could serve to weaken the stature of the U.N. by encouraging a new level of politically oriented activity.

This requested abuse of the ICJ would raise the threshold of politically oriented activity. It is important to note that this controversial initiative has not garnered the support of even a majority of U.N. members. Only 90 states, none of them democracies, voted in favor of the resolution.

Israel is a small democratic nation with myriad adversaries bent on its destruction. The undeniable truth remains that Israel, as with any other nation, has the right and responsibility to protect the lives of its innocent civilians from brutal terrorist attacks. Consequently, the question of the preservation of due process with the General Assembly and the preservation of the integrity of the ICJ is essential.

125TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH IN LEWISVILLE, TX

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate The First United Methodist Church of Lewisville on its 125th anniversary. The First United Methodist Church is dedicated to developing a haven for Christian believers to be able to explore their professions of faith in Jesus Christ.

Through its constant growth over the last 125 years, FUMC-Lewisville has helped the extended Lewisville community to live a more active lifestyle of worship, education, spiritual, mental, and physical development. FUMC-Lewisville serves as an example of a long-standing organization that seeks to help others while continuing growth within the church itself.

The Lewisville chapter currently has diverse groups for every member of the community. The motivated individuals who continue these on-going ministries are the reason that the church is able to celebrate its 125th anniversary today. By sponsoring programs such as Trinity Troupe for actors of all ages, 11 music groups, 8 Bible studies, Covenant group for women of the church, My Brother's Keeper for men to meet every month for breakfast and fellowship, marriage intimacy classes and athletic programs, the church has made an effort to ensure that everyone who wants to be at FUMC-Lewisville is welcomed with open arms and has a place to feel at home in fellowship with other believers.

The church was established on January 25, 1879, with Reverend J.S. Sherill as an equal to a District Superintendent, along with three preachers: G.W. Jackson, L.E. Joshua and L.D. Addington. The first building was not constructed until 1881, but the church thrived for three years without an actual place of worship. By 1887, Lewisville had the only Sunday school in the area with a steady attendance of 75. By 1910, the church had moved to a new building, where it survived the wars and depression. With one last move, FUMC-Lewisville found its present home.

We congratulate the efforts of this church and hope to increase the participation of others in the community who wish to follow the example of FUMC-Lewisville. Through this church, the members are able to make a difference in the lives of people of all ages throughout the community by helping them to begin a walk of growth and love that will remain constant throughout their lives. The church should take pride in its hard work and commitment to civic involvement that has spanned the past 125 years. We wish the best for the future of FUMC-Lewisville and hope that the next 125 years will be as blessed as these 125 years have been.

TRIBUTE TO ARTHUR ELLIOTT

HON. JOE KNOLLENBERG

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Arthur Elliott, a dear friend and mentor of mine who passed away.

Art attended Michigan State University and fought for our country during World War II in the U.S. Army for 5 years. Following his education and service, he continued an expansive career in real estate development and building. Holding in high regard civic responsibilities, Art led by example, actively engaging himself in Michigan's political affairs.

Art served as the chairman of the Republican Party for both Oakland County and the State of Michigan. In 1960 and 1964 he represented Michigan Republicans as a delegate to the party's national conventions. Also, Art was a delegate at the Michigan State Constitutional Convention. In addition, he played an instrumental role in the election of Michigan Governor George W. Romney.

Art was an admired counselor and advisor. He shared his wisdom, good judgment, and advice with many, and his political instincts were unparalled. Still, his reputation transcended political lines because of the relationships he fostered with all individuals he knew and worked with.

An advocate of community service, Art served as president of the local chapter of the Rotary International, of which he was a lifelong member. He sat on the board of directors of Lake Superior State University and Trout Unlimited. He was also president of the committee that renovated Traverse City, Michigan's Park Place Hotel.

Art had a passion for traveling, fly fishing, photography and family life. As a husband, father, grandfather and friend he will be remembered for his integrity, dedication, and guidance.

Mr. Speaker, Art was a dear friend who had a strong regard for the individual and Republican ideals. He was admired and will be remembered by all those he knew.

THE COUNTER-TERRORIST AND NARCO-TERRORIST REWARDS PROGRAM ACT

HON. HENRY J. HYDE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, today I am very pleased to introduce, along with TOM LANTOS, the Ranking Democratic member of the House International Relations Committee, and my colleague from Illinois, MARK STEVEN KIRK, a bill, the "Counter-Terrorist and Narco-Terrorist Rewards Program Act." This bill makes some major changes and modifications to the long-established U.S. State Department Rewards Program.

The State Department Rewards Program has clearly prevented acts of terrorism in the past, has helped bring to justice long-sought terrorists, such as the individual who fled to Pakistan after assassinating our CIA employees in Virginia, and has served as a valuable intelligence and information tool in the global war on terrorism. The Rewards Program could do even more, if we enact this bill, with its reforms.

After our experience with the efforts to date to capture Osama bin Laden and to reinvigorate and expand the reach and flexibility of the Terrorist Rewards Program, it's time for a renewed, expanded reward authority in the State Department, one that tackles and contends with the growing links, as recently reported in the press, of the illicit drug trade and the financing of terrorism. Our global terrorist enemies may very well be changing their methods and means, and we need to be even more flexible and creative than they are.

Our statutory changes to the State Department Rewards Program, 22 U.S.C. 2708, as proposed in this bill, would be as follows:

First, a name change, so that the program is hereafter known as the "Terrorism and Narco-Terrorism" Rewards Program, reflecting the growing links between illicit drugs and the financing of terrorism, whether in places like Colombia, Afghanistan, or others around the globe.

Second, clarification that any information provided that disrupts the terrorist financing networks, including information related to illicit narcotics production or international trafficking, is eligible for reward monies. This information need not be tied to any specific act of terrorism, as the State Department now seems to require before any reward for information on illicit drugs can be paid out. We need clarity in the law concerning any link in illicit drugs to terrorism, and more explicit authority for the State Department to pay rewards to those pursuing or reporting the drugs that "support" or help "sustain" global terrorism.

Third, added flexibility in the forms of payment, by providing authority for the Secretary of State to give rewards other than money for useful information related to terrorism and drugs related to terrorism, such as vehicles, appliances, commodities, and other goods and services. In places like Afghanistan, a motorcycle or transport vehicle may be just as valuable as cash in gaining cooperation in the fight against terrorists. The changes more clearly authorize this new kind of reward.

Fourth, added authority for the Secretary of State to conduct media surveys, analyses of media markets and the best means of communication, as well as literacy levels of proposed foreign audiences for the Department's reward efforts. We create the authority to find the best means to get rewards messages out for widest dissemination and effect. We also add authority to create media ads after market analyses and literacy level analyses has been completed.

Fifth, in addition, clear authority is given for the Secretary of State to buy radio, TV, and newspaper ads, and procure any other media means abroad, including public service announcements for the rewards program. For example, the match books and wanted posters we have used in the effort to find Osama bin Laden may be of limited value in some rural areas of Pakistan or Afghanistan where there is 30 percent literacy, but a BBC radio slot with a rewards offer might just reach the audience we need. The authority is now there to pursue greater exposure for these rewards.

Sixth, statutory change is made to reflect a current optional reward set administratively for Osama bin Laden at $25 million today. Current law is raised by the bill from $5 million to $25 million for these terrorist and narco-terrorist rewards. We also provide the Secretary of State the added option to raise to a maximum of $50 million the reward for Osama bin Laden, if events warrant it and it might facilitate his capture. Bin Laden deserves such a high price on his head, and we would welcome the chance to pay this amount for the capture of this global terrorist.

Seventh, finally, we require, 90 days after enactment, that the administration submit a plan to the Congress that maximizes the publicity surrounding the reward for Osama bin Laden's capture.

The bill's text follows, and I asked that it be included in the RECORD with these introductory remarks as well.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Counter-Terrorist and Narco-Terrorist Rewards Program Act".

(a) PROGRAM NAME.—Section 36 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2708) is amended—

(1) in the section heading by inserting "COUNTER-TERRORIST AND NARCO-TERRORIST" after "STATE"; and

(2) in subsection (a)(1) by adding at the end the following new sentence: "The program shall be known as the 'Department of State Terrorist and Narco-Terrorist Rewards Program'.".

(b) DISRUPTION OF TERRORIST FINANCING NETWORK.—Subsection (b) of such section is amended—

(1) in paragraph (5) by striking "or" at the end;

(2) in paragraph (6) by striking the period and inserting "; or"; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(7) the disruption of financial mechanisms of a terrorist organization, including the use by the organization of illicit narcotics production or international narcotics trafficking—

"(A) to finance acts of international terrorism; or

"(B) to sustain or support any terrorist organization.".

(c) MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF REWARD.—Subsection (e)(1) of such section is amended—

(1) by striking "$5,000,000" and inserting "$25,000,000";

(2) by striking the second period at the end; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new sentence: "The Secretary may authorize a reward of up to $50,000,000 for the capture or information leading to the capture of Usama bin Laden.".

(d) FORMS OF REWARD PAYMENT.—Subsection (e) of such section is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(6) FORMS OF PAYMENT.—The Secretary may make a reward under this section in the form of money, a nonmonetary item (including such items as automotive vehicles), or a combination thereof.".

(e) MEDIA SURVEYS AND ADVERTISEMENTS.—Such section is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (i) and (j) as (k) and (l), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (h) the following new subsection:

"(i) MEDIA SURVEYS AND ADVERTISEMENTS AUTHORIZED.—

"(1) SURVEYS CONDUCTED.—For the purpose of more effectively disseminating information about the rewards program, the Secretary may use the resources of the rewards program to conduct media surveys, including analyses of media markets, means of communication, and levels of literacy, in countries determined by the Secretary to be associated with acts of international terrorism.

"(2) CREATION AND PURCHASE OF ADVERTISEMENTS.—After the surveys authorized under paragraph (1) have been conducted and in accordance with their findings, the Secretary may use the resources of the rewards program to create advertisements to disseminate information about the rewards program among populations in countries identified under paragraph (1). The Secretary may purchase radio or television time, newspaper space, or make use of any other means of advertisement, as appropriate.

"(3) ADVERTISEMENT FOR CAPTURE OF USAMA BIN LADEN.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of the Counter-Terrorist and Narco-Terrorist Rewards Program Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate a report documenting a plan to increase advertising to maximize awareness of the reward available for the capture or information leading to the capture of Usama bin Laden.".

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Boy Scouts of America on their 94th anniversary. The Boy Scouts of America was founded on February 8, 1910 through a National Charter from Congress.

The Boy Scout movement was founded in England by British Lord Robert Baden-Powell who would later author and illustrate scouting's first manual in 1908. The Boy Scouts of America would be founded from the good deeds of a British Scout.

In an ironic twist, in 1909 Chicago publisher William Dickson Boyce became lost in London. He was soon approached by a boy of 12 who offered to guide him to the address he was seeking. Boyce offered to pay the boy a shilling for his help, but the boy replied, "No Sir, I am a Scout. Scouts do not accept tips for good turns."

Later in his stay, William Dickson Boyce, and the unknown scout, went to British Scout headquarters to meet Baden-Powell, the founder of the Scouting movement. From that meeting forward, Boyce became determined to start Boy Scouting in America

On February 8, 1910 Boyce filed incorporation papers for the Boy Scouts of America in the District of Columbia. He stated that the purpose of this organization "Shall be to promote, through organization and cooperation with other agencies, the ability of boys to do things for themselves and others, to train them in Scoutcraft, and to teach them patriotism, courage, self-reliance and kindred virtues, using the methods which are in common use by Boy Scouts."

Today, millions of young men aged 6–18 have been involved in Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Venturing.

We congratulate the Boy Scouts of America on this "Scout Sunday" for striving to instill high values and strong leadership skills in the young men of our nation. These men should be celebrated for their high ideals and dedication to their communities. We take pride in the Boy Scouts' hard work and commitment to civic involvement.

IMPROVING THE COMMUNITY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT ACT OF 2003

SPEECH OF

HON. DAVID WU

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 4, 2004

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3030) to amend the Community Service Block Grant Act to provide for quality improvements.

Mr. WU. Mr. Chairman, I held a town hall meeting in Scappoose, Oregon on Monday night. Scappoose is in Columbia County, which has a double-digit unemployment rate.

The first person to speak at that event was a woman who told me that her unemployment benefits will run out this month, she is terrified of losing her health insurance, and she is considering taking a job in California, leaving her children and family behind.

Time after time in Oregon, I hear the heartbreak of a jobless economic recovery.

Oregon has a jobless rate of 7.2% and we have lead the nation in unemployment for most of the past two years. And, it is estimated that as I speak, there are over 34,000 Oregonians who have exhausted all forms of unemployment assistance without finding a job.

These are not just statistics. Each one of these 34,000 people risks losing their car, their home, or being unable to afford college for their children, or vital health care for their family.

Mr. Chairman, all Oregonians hope for an improved economy that creates permanent high paying jobs.

But today, these new jobs do not yet exist in Oregon. And so today, we must show compassion and extend unemployment assistance.

At the end of that same town meeting in Scappoose, a gentleman also talked about the pain of being unemployed and asked me a straight question, who can change this?

I gave him a straight answer. If the President picked up the phone and asked for an unemployment extension we would get it done this week.

I said that before I knew we would be asked to vote the Miller amendment today. So today, I want to say to the President, sir I challenge you to feel the passion, the anger, and the pain of the millions of Americans who are out of work.

Pick up the phone Mr. President, and let's extend unemployment benefits this week.

I call on my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me in supporting the Miller amendment and I yield back the balance of my time.

IMPROVING THE COMMUNITY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT ACT OF 2003

SPEECH OF

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 4, 2004

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3030) to amend the Community Service Block Grant Act to provide for quality improvements.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this amendment. Today the House must once again come together to provide relief to America's unemployed. Much like a year ago, the President says that the economy is improving, but those words are cold comfort to those who have not only lost their jobs but also their unemployment benefits in recent weeks.

It is always the same story with this administration—the recovery is right around the corner. We have been hearing that now going on 3 years. Already this month, 375,000 unemployed Americans have exhausted their state benefits. In my State alone, nearly 26,000 people will have neither a paycheck nor extended unemployment insurance benefits. That is the second highest number of workers who have exhausted their benefits on record. These folks have been left with no job or assistance and believe me—they are struggling to provide for their families this winter.

This amendment extends unemployment benefits for workers for another 6 months retroactively to December 20th, when Congress failed to act before adjournment. Of course, we learned last month that only 1,000 new jobs had been created—despite administration estimates that said a quarter million new jobs would be created that month.

Mr. Chairman, this majority acts as if unemployment benefits were some kind of handout—welfare for working families. But their inability to find work is hardly due to a lack of trying. If anything, it is due to the failed economic policy of this administration, which promised a million-and-a-half new jobs with its last round of tax cuts. That those jobs have not materialized seems apparent to everyone but them.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is the least we can do. Too many families were left out in the cold this holiday season due to the Republicans' refusal to address this issue. This amendment is not enough, but it is better than nothing, which until now is all this majority has supported.

HONORING GIVE KIDS A SMILE NATIONAL CHILDREN'S DENTAL ACCESS DAY

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I rise to commend the American Dental Association for organizing the 2nd Annual Give Kids A Smile National Children's Dental Access Day. Today, dentists from across the country will be generously volunteering their time to provide free screening and dental care services to children in need.

In its inaugural year last year, dentists participating in Give Kids A Smile National Children's Dental Access Day provided free care to an estimated 1 million disadvantaged children nationwide. Beyond providing free dental services and dental health education, this annual effort is aimed at raising awareness about the large number of children that go without dental care each year and the impact this can have on their overall health and wellness.

Give Kids A Smile Day provides a tremendous opportunity for parents who lack adequate health or dental coverage to get needed dental care for their kids. There is a clear need for this. According to a recent report on health care quality, only 38 percent of children in poor health and less than half of all children between the ages of 2 and 17 have seen a dentist in the past year.

Access to good health care is synonymous with access to good dental care and too many children and families are being left behind. Given the impact untreated dental disease can have on a child's health, school performance and overall quality of life, there is no question that we need to improve awareness about and access to dental care.

I applaud the American Dental Association for spearheading this effort. I commend the California Dental Association for their participation and the many dentists in my district from the Southern Alameda County Dental Society and the Alameda County Dental Society for performing this public service. Their contributions now and in the future will go a long way in improving the health of many needy children.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH TEXAS "50 YEARS OF PROGRESS AND OPPORTUNITY"

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the University of North Texas for celebrating 50 years of desegregation on their campus. In the summer of 1954 the University of North Texas accepted doctoral student A. Tennyson Miller as the first African-American student admitted into the university.

Since 1954 African-American students have been scholars, athletes, both homecoming kings and queens, and most importantly leaders. They have shaped and molded the identity and character of the University of North Texas. The excellence of UNT today is directly linked to the diversity of its students.

The year of 1954 was a turning point for civil rights and in particular, for the African-American community. Literally, the doors of opportunity began to open up in America's history. The landmark Supreme Court decision of Brown v. Board of Education sent public institutions in an uproar when it aimed to desegregate public schools.

Within this tumultuous and controversial time, of the beginning of the Civil Rights Movement in the 1950s, the University of North Texas took a giant step forward by opening its doors to African-American students. And it is only appropriate, that during February, Black History Month, that UNT celebrates their own turning point in history with the 50 Years of Progress and Opportunity, 1954–2004 culminating in a celebration on Saturday, February 14, 2004.

In 2004, the UNT is commemorating its desegregation as well as the incredible progress made in during those 50 years. I congratulate the African-Americans who overcame barriers to pave the way for others at the University of North Texas. I also applaud the university's former and current African-American students, faculty and staff for their continued dedication to the Mean Green of UNT.

SUPPORTING TAIWAN

HON. DAVID SCOTT

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support Taiwan, a democracy and a dependable friend of the United States. In fact, the United States is Taiwan's largest trading partner, while Taiwan is the seventh largest United States trading partner. In the year 2000, total U.S.-Taiwan trade was approximately $65 billion, with a Taiwan surplus of approximately $16 billion. Taiwan's chief exports to the United States include clothing and footwear, toys, and various electronic products. In recent years, Taiwanese government officials have attempted to accommodate increased United States pressure on trade issues. They met many U.S. demands for greater market access for U.S. goods and services and responded to U.S. complaints by taking stronger measures to protect U.S. copyrights and other intellectual property rights.

At the same time, Taiwan's political system had undergone dramatic changes, including a transition to democratic political pluralism. The combination of these developments led to subtle changes in U.S.-Taiwan ties, including deepening economic, military, social, and other contacts. Today, the United States is an important investor and trading partner for Taiwan, with United States markets receiving about 25 percent of Taiwan's exports. Taiwan continues to enjoy Export-Import Bank financing, Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) guarantees, most-favored-nation status, and ready access to U.S. markets.

Beijing regards Taiwan as a renegade province of China, and PRC officials have grown particularly upset over the statements and positions taken by Taiwan's democratically elected president, Chen Shui-bian, who increasingly has referred to Taiwan as a sovereign independent country. These statements and positions have contributed to an intense domestic debate in Taiwan over its national status. President Chen also has been a strident proponent of using the scheduled March 20, 2004 presidential elections to hold an unprecedented national referendum on several policy issues. Beijing strongly opposes a referendum in Taiwan, fearing it could be used to gauge support for—and possibly to declare—Taiwan independence.

In recent years, the PRC has steadily increased its missile build-up along the south China coast opposite Taiwan, now deploying close to 500 missiles. As Taiwan faces military threats from China, the people of Taiwan plan to express concern over their wellbeing and security in a proposed referendum on March 20, 2004. Therefore, as the world's leading democracy, we must support the people of Taiwan and their right to hold this referendum.

TRIBUTE TO LINDA WEST

HON. JOHN P. MURTHA

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 6, 2004

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Speaker, I would like to share with you and my colleagues a tribute to a lady from southwestern Pennsylvania who has made a difference in the lives of countless veterans.

When Linda West was in junior high school in Uniontown, in Pennsylvania's 12th Congressional District, she began visiting the homes of housebound veterans as part of a community-service project. This effort marked the beginning of a mission that would lead a coalition of veterans and community organizations in Las Vegas, NV, to honor her with a Lifetime Achievement Award last December.

As a student at the University of Cincinnati, Linda worked with veterans in Uniontown during semester and summer breaks. After graduation, she relocated to Las Vegas and formed new relationships with veterans there to match those she had found so rewarding in Uniontown. She visited veterans in hospitals, delivered food to their homes, assisted with burials and arranged honor guards. In recognition of her efforts, the Chapel of Four Chaplains more than 20 years ago confirmed her as an assistant Nevada State chaplain, the first female lay clergy in the organization. She receives no pay or reimbursement for expenses.

She is a national service officer of Veterans of the Vietnam War, where she has helped veterans with their medical, spiritual and health-care benefits needs for more than 15 years. When necessary, she has practiced suicide intervention with these veterans, especially those suffering from the effects of Agent Orange.

She worked with a Vietnam veteran to ensure passage of the first increase in Nevada's veterans' property tax exemption in the 48 years since the bill was passed in 1953. The legislation, including added benefits for veterans who were more than 60 percent disabled as a result of their service, was intended as a thank-you to the State's veterans but had become nearly meaningless over the years.

She also worked with a veteran to derail legislation that would have ended the teaching of American Government and history in Nevada's public schools, instead adding a mandate for the teaching of the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence.

Here in the 12th Congressional District, we're grateful to Uniontown native Linda West Myers for the generous contributions she has made to our Nation's veterans.

SENATE—Monday, February 9, 2004

The Senate met at 1 p.m. and was called to order by the Honorable GEORGE ALLEN, a Senator from the State of Virginia.

PRAYER

Let us pray.

Eternal Spirit, help us to trust You more fully and to accept our responsibility to bring peace on Earth. Thank You for loving Your creation and for giving us strength for life's burdens. Thank You for protecting us in these dangerous times. And thank You also for listening to our prayers and for guiding our steps.

Lord, help each of us to see the unfinished work that is ours to complete. We lift to You our Senators. Their tasks require more than human abilities. Whisper to them words of instruction to help them find wisdom for these challenging days. Make their words fountains of life. We pray this in Your holy Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable GEORGE ALLEN led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

> I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. STEVENS).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, February 9, 2004.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable GEORGE ALLEN, a Senator from the State of Virginia, to perform the duties of the Chair.

TED STEVENS,

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, today the Senate resumes consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill. We had a good debate on the highway bill last week. Although I know the chairman hoped we would have progressed further, I believe we remain on track to finish this week. Chairman INHOFE and his staff worked with several Senators over the weekend on possible amendments and are making good, steady progress. I appreciate the efforts of the bill managers to work through the weekend in the interest of keeping the bill moving on track. I will consult with Senator INHOFE and the Democratic leadership as we go forward, but I hope we will be prepared for a vote relative to an amendment prior to our recess for the policy luncheons on tomorrow, and Senators should be available accordingly.

This is the last week prior to the scheduled Presidents Day recess. I will be asking for all Senators' cooperation in allowing us to work our way through various issues pertaining to the highway bill.

Again, last week was a challenging week for our Senate community in many different ways, but we are open for business and expect to continue our work throughout this week.

With regard to the closing of the Senate office buildings last week, I am pleased to announce that all the Senate office buildings are back open and fully operational this week.

MEDICARE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I wish to comment on the recent Medicare bill we passed. Last year—this being February—President Bush and Congress made good on our promise to strengthen and expand Medicare for today's seniors and individuals with disabilities. The bill, called the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003, does represent the most significant improvement to Medicare in two generations.

The reason I wish to comment on it today is that as a product of the debate and passage of this legislation, we are starting to see, even right now, impressive results.

Very simply, we said the program would give seniors better health care at lower out-of-pocket cost and give seniors and individuals with disabilities more choices. That is exactly what the bill is doing.

We said the bill would strengthen the program and increase flexibility and choice, and, indeed, that is exactly what is happening.

Dozens of Medicare, managed care companies just recently announced—about 10 days ago—that in 3 short weeks, they are going to increase benefits, enhance benefits; that they are going to reduce or even eliminate premiums altogether; and that they are going to expand their service areas. They tell us they are doing all of this as a direct result of this Medicare bill.

For example, Aetna plans to cut its Medicare+Choice premiums by up to 50 percent to seniors. The action by Aetna will reduce inpatient care fees and physician copayments.

In New York City, Oxford Health Plans is boosting its annual limit on brand-name drug coverage from $250 and $500 up to $1,200. That is more coverage.

Colorado's three Medicare HMOs, meanwhile, will drop monthly insurance premiums by as much as 50 percent. That is less out-of-pocket costs for seniors.

Colorado's PacifiCare, for example, will offer prescription drug coverage to seniors who didn't have it before. That is new coverage, better health care, and then they will add brand-name coverage to many policies.

In Miami, FL, Blue Cross/Blue Shield plans to double its coverage for brand-name drugs. In Broward County, it will add brand-name coverage to its current generic-only plan, and it will drop its monthly premium altogether: Better coverage, lower out-of-pocket expenditures.

When it comes to more comprehensive coverage care, seniors in Tampa with private plans can expect to get new benefits, such as free dental care and reimbursement for transportation to the doctor.

I mention all this because it is only the beginning. Nationally, 5 million seniors with HMO coverage are expected to enjoy better benefits, lower out-of-pocket costs, and expanded options. And this will only grow with time. This is only the beginning.

Not only are these improvements on the way but also we have the prescription discount card that will be available in just a very few months, in June. This spring, seniors will be able to use these new discount cards to get discounts of 10 percent, 15 percent, 20 percent, or 25 percent off their prescription drugs.

For seniors living around the poverty level or up to 135 percent of the poverty level, they will get, in addition to the prescription drug card, an additional $600 in coverage to help pay these drug bills. That is on top of the discount. This is immediate help. This is immediate help to those who need it the most.

Already, private companies have submitted more than 100 applications to be able to participate in the discount drug card process. Immediate relief from high medication costs is only months away.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

I mention this because we hear a lot of the opponents to the bill grumble. Even in the various elections and campaigns going on across the country, we look at what appear to be attempts of very partisan politics trying to gain political points in an election year. I wanted to mention this real progress that is already being made because it shows that at least the concept of the approach of a public/private partnership—which is what this Medicare law is all about—is beginning to work, where we take the very best of the public sector and marry it to the very best of the private sector.

Older Americans who are happy with their immediate care coverage do not need to do anything. They can keep exactly what they have today. In the bill, those who need it the most are going to get the most help. Lower income seniors, people at the lowest income brackets, and individuals with disabilities will pay almost nothing for their prescription drug coverage. Seniors who have very high catastrophic costs, costs that for the most part they did not expect, will no longer have to go bankrupt to get those prescription drugs, the most powerful tool in American medicine today.

Millions of seniors with no current coverage will see their prescription drug costs reduced, on average, by about 50 percent. So we see better health care and lower out-of-pocket costs for seniors who are listening to me at this juncture, and they will see more choices of coverage that better suit their individual needs.

Yes, the Medicare Modernization Act is expanding these choices and opportunities to obtain quality health care. This bill includes preventive care in a substantive way for the first time in the history of Medicare. For the first time ever in Medicare, we are offering disease management for chronic illnesses such as Parkinson's and Alzheimer's disease. It also takes a number of steps to improve the overall quality of care available to seniors.

We do need to continue to educate both ourselves and the American people about the progress that is being made to date. We will continue to work with organizations such as AARP and organizations of nurses, doctors, hospitals, and patients to really get the news out as this program unfolds. We will make sure that every senior who is entitled to these new drug discounts I mentioned, and who have the availability of that improved access, find out about it so that they indeed can take advantage of these improvements.

From time to time, I will come to the floor to comment on the progress that is being made as this program unfolds.

I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

PROGRESS ON THE HIGHWAY BILL

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I will comment briefly on the current status of the highway bill and the related debate about the budgetary implications of it and the budget proposal made by the administration over the course of the last week.

This is our second week of debate on the highway bill. I find myself expressing the hope, as the majority leader just did, that we can finish our work on the bill this week. This bill is long overdue. Many of us hoped we could have passed it last fall. We are told that the result of not having passed it means a loss of over 90,000 jobs so far.

We are also told that if we pass this bill soon, we could create nearly a million new jobs. So the economic implications could not be more consequential.

We also understand the difficulties our country faces with regard to its own infrastructure. We are told we have an infrastructure deficit of hundreds of billions of dollars, which is causing more congestion, more pileups, more time en route, more commuting, than at any other time in our Nation's history.

So with the infrastructure deficit, and with the need to create jobs, I cannot think of a more important bill than this one. I hope we can continue to demonstrate some real movement as we work to complete this debate sometime soon.

The bill's managers are in the Chamber and we are prepared to entertain amendments. I hope we can get on with the substantive discussion and consideration of whatever amendments could be offered.

I am troubled by those who argue that this bill is too expensive. I did not hear that debate when we were discussing how much to commit to Iraq over the course of this fiscal year. This country has now spent $167 billion in Iraq, with no offsets. I did not hear one comment from people on either side of the aisle about how expensive that bill was.

There are proposals in the President's budget to make the tax cuts for those at the top of our income scales permanent. CBO estimates that will double the size of our deficit over the course of the next 10 years. We now expect a deficit of $600 billion and we are told we are going to be ringing up a debt of a million dollars a minute. According to the Budget Committee, the debt will increase at $1 million a minute. So there is legitimate concern for how much we are spending and how much we are not taking in.

I find it amazing, this selective process of deciding which ought to be pared back and which ought to be provided without any offsets whatsoever. There are tax cuts of $2 trillion over 10 years with no offsets. Iraq, as important as it is, a commitment to this country and to our efforts abroad, has no offsets. Highway construction, creating a million new jobs, has to be pared back. We are told all of the discretionary spending in this year's budget could be eliminated, every single dollar, with no money for education, health care, highways, or infrastructure of any kind, and we would still have a $150 billion deficit in this year's budget.

As I look at the decisions and the choices made by this administration, there is a $140 million loss in the funding for conservation efforts, which, in a State with fragile lands such as South Dakota, is a big deal. We lose thousands of acres every year to wind erosion. Conservation is vital, and to cut back $140 million in 1 year alone means we are going to lose a lot more. This budget the President proposed a week ago represents a $3.9 billion cut in aid to small towns and rural communities, $3.9 billion in losses that would otherwise go to improving the economic circumstances of small town main street. That, too, in the interest of balancing a budget that is lopsidedly in favor of foreign policy, tax policy, and against the priorities of policies at home. Even the basic programs to provide water and sewer services have been cut in the President's budget.

About two hundred million dollars in grants, to small cities and towns, that provide water and sewer assistance were cut in this budget. So I simply say that the priorities represented by some during the debate on the highway bill, as well as the priorities reflected in this budget, are not the priorities I hear when I go home to South Dakota, not the priorities I hear when I talk to those who are concerned, as I am, about the implications of the extraordinary deficit created over the course of the last 3 years.

The debt, and the incredible debt service we are paying, will be something my children and grandchildren will pay. We had a projected surplus of over $5.5 trillion 3 years ago. Now we have a projected debt of over $3.9 trillion, a shift of about $9 trillion in 3 years.

We are told that to pay it back requires $3 for every $1 we have borrowed. What is amazing is we have gone to the Social Security bank and we have taken all of that, we have gone to the Medicare bank and we have taken all of that, so now we are going to the banks of the Chinese and the Japanese and the Taiwanese and South Koreans and we are borrowing at rates unprecedented to make up for the debt that we are accruing at $1 million a minute.

We ought to have a good debate about the budget. We ought to get this job done, this highway bill, so we can move on to other important matters. But I must say, I can't think of anything more important than finishing this bill, than committing the resources to create those jobs, to deal with at least one of the deficits we have in this country, the infrastructure deficit. If we do that well, we can turn, hopefully in a bipartisan way, to address these other challenges before the end of this session.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

SAFE, ACCOUNTABLE, FLEXIBLE, AND EFFICIENT TRANSPORTATION EQUITY ACT OF 2003

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of S. 1072, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1072) to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Modified committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

Gregg amendment No. 2268 (to amendment No. 2267), to provide that certain public safety officials have the right to collective bargaining.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, let me thank all the Members who had their staff come down, and some Members came down over the weekend, brought their amendments, and met with my staff and met with Senator JEFFORDS' staff and I believe with Senator REID's staff. We got into a good discussion on the various amendments. We discussed with them our amendments. I am pleased with the response of those Members who understand how important it is to pass this legislation and have come to us in the week that this bill has been on the floor.

To date, I believe we have met with about 30 Member offices. We are all looking forward to working hard to accommodate the needs of these offices with as many amendments as possible. I encourage anyone out there who has amendments to bring them down, talk about them, and let's get some of this debate started.

The chairman, ranking member of the full committee of the Transportation Subcommittee—we are all ready to work with those Members.

I wish to take a moment to congratulate Senator GRASSLEY and Senator BAUCUS for their work on the finance portion of this legislation. They have done a tremendous job in meeting the financial needs of this bill without increasing taxes or deficit spending. They have also brought integrity back to the highway trust fund and to the commitment we made to the American people.

The trust fund is, in essence, a user-fee-based program. You pay a gas tax and that money is then used for transportation purposes. Unfortunately, the trust fund has been used for many years for other purposes, including shifting the burden of tax policies from the general revenue to the trust fund. These tax policy benefits have nothing to do with highway use and should not burden the trust fund.

I look at this, and I have said it many time before, as a moral issue. We tell people when they pay—and they don't mind paying new taxes, even higher taxes. They are willing to pay the taxes because they want to have better roads and they assume that money is going to go into building roads. But it is not. They have been raiding the highway trust fund now for as long as I can remember.

So the Finance Committee sought to fix this unfairness to the taxpayer and has come up with a proposal to right this wrong.

Included in these proposals is a repeal of the partial exemption for ethanol-blended fuels. The tax benefit for ethanol, like nearly all energy production incentives, is transferred to the general fund through a tax credit. The same effect is applied to refunds for special categories of users such as State and local governments. These are changes that never should have been necessary. We should no more raid the highway trust fund than we should raid the Social Security trust fund. These are commitments made to the American people.

However, by bringing integrity back to the trust fund, the general fund lost a source of revenue, albeit a source that never should have been used in the first place. So in order to avoid deficit spending, Chairman GRASSLEY closed a number of loopholes in the Tax Code and kept the general fund whole—in other words, no deficit spending.

There are those who have questioned the manner in which this was done, but I trust the chairman and the ranking member of the Finance Committee and take them at their word. They should be congratulated. I am here to thank both of them.

Because of the work of the Finance Committee, we have a bill before us that will provide over 2 million new jobs to repair our Nation's infrastructure and do so without deficit spending.

I think it is very important to keep talking about this. There is not a Member in here who cannot remember at one time or another raiding the trust fund, to take some of this money to put it in toward reducing the deficit. That was done in the 1990s.

This is an opportunity we have, not just to pass a very aggressive highway bill and provide the jobs that go with that but also correct this wrong that has been out there for a long period of time.

Let me emphasize, we invite Members to come down and bring their amendments. While we cannot be introducing them and voting on them right now, we can still get a lot of the discussion out of the way. I think it is very important we do so, now.

Let me defend the formula. There have been a lot of people coming down and objecting to the way it was put together. I remind my colleagues what happened in TEA-21. I was here for TEA-21, here in the Senate, here in the committee working with my good friend, Senator JEFFORDS. We watched the way that formula worked.

In that, they had a minimum guarantee program. A minimum guarantee program is nothing but a chart: it is called section 1104. It took all the States and put a percentage down. As soon as they got 60 people happy, they figured: there is our 60 votes—and this is no way to do it.

Instead of that, we looked at donor status. We have several States such as my State of Oklahoma that have been in a donor status for many years. We looked at States that are fast growing States. We put a ceiling in there, so they could not get so much of the money there would not be anything remaining for other States. We have a floor in there. I think we have done something that is very good.

I guess you could say there are four goals that interest a lot of people, one being the donor States, those of us who have been donor States for so long we can remember when we were 70, 75 percent donors. ISTEA came along and brought the floor up to 80. Then TEA-21 brought it to 90.5. This is going to bring every State, all 50 States, at the end of this 6-year period, or by the end of that period, up to 95 percent. That is very reasonable. It is a very ambitious goal but one with which I think most of us, I am absolutely convinced, agree.

We have introduced streamlining measures in this bill that will allow us to use the dollars we have and use them to build more roads, to do more in a shorter period of time.

We are concentrating on safety. We have not concentrated on safety as much as we should have in the past. I know the senior Senator from Virginia is one who has been concerned about safety for a long period of time and is very pleased with a lot of the provisions that we have in this bill.

We haven't really focused on freight movement until this bill came along. So we are getting into all of these areas.

I just hope our colleagues understand that Senator JEFFORDS, Senator REID, Senator BOND, and I have been working on this bill for over a year. That is a long time. Obviously, you will never have a formula that makes everybody happy but you can certainly have one that is fair. And we have achieved for the first time in the history of this process what I consider to be a very fair formula.

I would like to ask if Senator JEFFORDS has any comments he would like to make at this time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President. I do.

Mr. President, S. 1072 will send billions of dollars to the States. It provides the resources to maintain the transportation infrastructure that we use and enjoy every day. Literally hundreds of thousands of jobs are at stake. It is imperative that we pass this bill this week.

Our staff has worked diligently for many months to prepare this comprehensive proposal. They have addressed concerns raised by various Members. It is time for us to complete this bill and send it to the House.

I would like to continue the discussion I began last week and speak for a few minutes about some of the key provisions of the transportation bill. As I have mentioned in earlier statements, our Environment and Public Works Committee conducted a very thorough hearing process as part of our preparations of S. 1072.

A consistent theme from those hearings was that the national transportation program has worked well over the last 12 years, following the principles set forth in ISTEA and enjoying the funding guarantees established in TEA-21.

We therefore sought to refine rather than revise the program. A key reflection of that decision is the pattern of resource allocation in the bill.

We grew each of the core programs—interstate maintenance, national highway system, bridge, surface transportation, and congestion mitigation and air quality improvement—in proportion to its funding in current law. We could have played politics with these funding allocations, but we chose to maintain the overall balance of the program.

Also based on consistent testimony from our many witnesses, we retained the flexibility that has become a hallmark of the surface transportation program.

Rather than make political adjustments in Washington to suit the needs of an individual State or region, we yield to State and local officials, working through an open planning process, to move funds among the core programs as best fits their unique and individual needs.

Further, under current law and reinforced in S. 1072, we permit money to be "flexed" among the various transport modes—highways, transit, bicycles, pedestrians, intermodal transfers, and rail.

By maintaining balance among the core programs along with flexibility on program and modal spending at the State and local level, we seek to foster a more balanced and "right fit" outcome on the ground.

The right combination of investments will vary from place to place. And a single solution—roads only or transit only—is likely to be a poor fit for a diverse and dynamic modern American community.

As I traveled our Nation over the past 2 years, I saw intermodalism on the rise. In place after place, the solution to traffic congestion and the solution to freight mobility combined roadway and rail investments with improved operations.

The balance and flexibility in S. 1072 will be essential to support these complex and ambitious solutions.

I yield the floor.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, first let me thank the ranking member of the committee for all the hard work and effort he has been put into this bill.

I remind Members that we spent the weekend working on amendments. We actually had an office in the Hart Building that was open and staffed by both the majority and the minority. They waded through a lot of amendments.

To move this bill along, I again encourage Members to bring their amendments down. I will not mention the names of the Senators because it may not be appropriate. I encourage Members to come down to speak on the amendments which are going to require some discussion.

We have an amendment to clarify the travel reimbursement for troops retroactive to September 25. We have an amendment on seatbelts which imposes sanctions on States that don't have primary seatbelt laws. We have amendments such as one on sanctions relating to drunk drivers, an amendment on changes to the Indian roads program, an amendment to clarify the new highway safety core program dollars which can be used for additional lanes or two-lane roads, and one to grant exemptions for 90,000 pounds on Federal aid highways—to a higher level to allow for lumber trucks and garbage trucks going to landfills.

We have a lot of amendments. I think there are about 35 amendments because staff came down and worked over the weekend on those amendments. I think it would be appropriate for them to come down right now, and not to offer their amendment but to discuss their amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THOMAS. I ask unanimous consent to speak for 10 minutes as in morning business.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I will discuss a subject other than what is before the Senate, but before I do that I am pleased we are moving forward with the highway bill. I am on both committees, the Environment and Public Works Committee, as well as the Finance Committee, and we have spent a great deal of time on this. Taking care of our infrastructure and seeking to provide more jobs in a short period of time is one of the most important issues we have. I certainly hope we can move forward and do so quickly.

ENDANGERED SPECIES ACT

Today I will comment on an issue in which I have been very interested, and as a matter of fact, I have a bill pending regarding the Endangered Species Act. I suppose most everyone favors the idea of protecting endangered species. That is something we all like to do. However, it has been in place now for more than 20 years, and frankly it has a different impact in different parts of the country.

I come from a State where 50 percent of the State belongs to the Federal Government. We have a lot of conflicting issues, both with the Federal Government and with the State government. It becomes quite difficult from time to time. Like many programs that are in place, I wish, when we pass them, we would say it has to be reviewed again in another 8 or 9 years to see if it is working and make necessary changes. This program needs some changes. It has not worked the way we would like to have seen it work. We need to review programs after there has been time to try them out and see how they will work.

What has happened, to a large extent, the emphasis has been on listing, rather than the recovery aspect. As a matter of fact, we have listed nearly 1,500 various species. plant and animal. We have recovered about 12. So the idea and emphasis ought to be, it seems to me. on the recovery of these species and not simply on the listing of them and letting them go on forever being endangered and having to be managed in that way.

Part of the problem, of course, has been the idea that anytime somebody is making decisions or regulations with regard to natural resources—in this case, endangered species—they end up in court. Instead of doing it on the basis of science and what is the best decision to be made, we end up in court and then letting the court manage it. It becomes a very difficult situation.

I sympathize with those people who are involved in the management of these programs. In everything they do, they can think about what is good for the program—in this case. what is good for endangered species—but, wait a minute: We have to take a look over here to see how we are going to get by the court.

I might add as an appendix. one of the difficulties in our case is, we are in the Tenth Circuit Court. and when things happen in Wyoming or Yellowstone Park, or wherever, then they go to court in Washington. There ought to be some sort of limitation to where the issue can go. If the issue occurs in a particular circuit, that is where the judge ought to be, that is where the court case ought to take place. At any rate. that, again. is one of the problems.

One of the other problems for States such as ours. where we have lots of public lands—and we have some unique problems that follow along the Rocky Mountain Ridge; and there are 10 or 12 States that have a lot of things in common. And I understand if you are on the east coast or even on the west coast, you don't have much interest in what is happening in our area, but our issues are sometimes unique, so there needs to be a good deal of local input into these kinds of issues to make them workable because there are different kinds of circumstances that appear.

One of the listings we had some experience with recently is the so-called jumping mouse in part of the southern part of our State and part of Colorado. It turns out, after about 5 years. that they really did not have the scientific basis for listing these critters at all, and they were not even in the same family of mice that they thought they were. Now we are in the process of going away from that whole thing after this whole problem of people having to manage their lands differently. So obviously there needs to be something done differently.

One of the issues we are dealing with at the moment is grizzly bears. What you generally do with an endangered species listing is you try to figure out how many there are, and then you put forward some goals as to how many you would like to achieve in the recovery. We have passed the recovery numbers for almost 10 years in Yellowstone Park—and, of course. the grizzly bears do not stay in Yellowstone Park—but still we have not gotten them delisted. It just seems as if it takes forever to do this.

Actually, however, the current specie we are dealing with is the gray wolves. Wolves, of course, were there years ago; then they were not there for a while; and they came back in the 1990s. There was a reintroduction of wolves from Canada into Yellowstone Park. Again, nobody would have guessed they were going to stay in Yellowstone Park, and surely they did not.

So now we are in a circumstance where the wolves have moved into Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming, as well as the park, and there finally has come a time when they have exceeded the numbers substantially to where there is a plan in effect, and hopefully moving into effect, where the three States would set up their own management plan, and then the wolves would be delisted and managed by the States, with certain agreements in there.

What we have now is Wyoming has put together a plan—as have Idaho and Montana—and they have been really very tough to deal with. I think last year we had 47 cattle that were proven to be killed by the wolves and at least that many that were suspected to have been killed by the wolves. But the Fish and Wildlife Service does not agree with the plan Wyoming has, so now we are waiting to see if we can get some agreement on that. As a matter of fact, part of the plan was passed by the Wyoming Legislature, but it does not seem to be acceptable. We have met with the Secretary and with the head of the Fish and Wildlife Service to see if we can find some flexibility there, and it is mostly over the semantics of what is in the plan. But the fact is. we do need to get them delisted so the State can have control over their management. That is really where we are.

I guess my point is, we have a program that all of us would like to maintain. We like the idea, but it is not working very well, and yet it seems to be very difficult to do anything about it. Sometimes it seems to me when we pass a bill, we ought to say it ends in 5 years and has to be renewed so that we can take another look at it at that time. First of all. times change; secondly, sometimes it is not managed properly and it could be changed. Anyway, we have not done that.

I have a bill introduced—introduced for several years, as a matter of fact which we have not been able to move. Oversimplified, it simply says when you list a critter or a species, you have to have scientific information. You have to have a real basis for doing it, and the people who list it have to provide some scientific data so that a jumping mouse is really a jumping mouse. And the second part is that at the time of listing, there also has to be a plan for recovery. That really has become the problem.

It is easy to list. People can send in recommendations for listing, and suddenly it happens, but there is no real plan as to how the recovery is going to take place. there is no area that it is designed to cover, and those kinds of things, and it becomes really very difficult to get this done.

I am going to push once again to get this done. Senator CRAIG and Senator HAGEL are cosponsors of the bill. We are going to try again to see if we can get this done. This is designed not to do away with the Endangered Species Act but indeed to strengthen the program so that it will work in more places than it does now. So that is an issue in which I am very much involved.

In closing, we have a lot to do this year. It seems a little frustrating sometimes that we have difficulty in moving forward. I wish we could really take a look at where we are, to try to set some priorities as to the kinds of issues with which we want to move forward.

We end up with endless debate, which really keeps anything from happening. We end up with unrelated amendments being put on bills that keep us from moving forward. I think everyone here would say: Hey, our job is to accomplish some objectives. I understand there are different views. and that is why we vote. But the idea of just simply resisting moving forward, the idea of resisting going to conference, for example, certainly is not a good way to manage here in the Chamber.

Of course, politics in this place is not a brand new idea, but we have gotten so that everything we talk about is related to the 2004 Presidential election. Well, that is not really why we are here. We have different views. We ought to reconcile those views or at least decide what the majority seeks to do here and do that.

Also, I think most of us generally have the notion that we ought to try to make the Federal Government smaller rather than having it growing. Yet that does not seem to be what we do. We resist talking about competitive outsourcing, doing any of these kinds of things. We need to have some rules related to our spending so we are limited in what we do. We are facing a deficit now that none of us like. I think it is justifiable because of all the emergency things we have been in, but now is the time to do something about that.

We need to do something about adding issues to bills when they go to conference committee that have not been passed by either House. This is not the way things ought to be done.

So I hope—and I know our leadership is working on this—we can see if we can move forward some more on the priorities of things we ought to be doing and ought to have done. We are in the midst of one now that everyone agrees we need to do. We need to move forward and do the things that are before us that we all want to do, and that is to make this a stronger country, and not have an overbearing Federal Government but have an equal division of responsibility in determining what the role of the Federal Government is as opposed to local and State governments.

So, Mr. President, thank you very much for the opportunity to speak as in morning business.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CHAFEE.) Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, as Senator INHOFE has already stated, our staffs worked hard over the weekend on amendments people have to this most important legislation. We have gone over many amendments, but have approved 34 amendments we would accept. These are good amendments. They have been reviewed closely by both the majority and minority. A lot of progress has been made. We hope people who have problems with the substance of this legislation, who want to offer amendments, will come and talk to us about it today. We are arriving at a point where there is not going to be a lot of time. Tomorrow we hope to be in a position to do the managers' package—the finance, transit, and EPW aspects of the legislation—and move forward, but we hope Senators who have concern about the legislation will come forward so we can move more quickly. We are running out of time on this very important legislation.

MEDICARE AND PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, in 1965, when Congress created Medicare to provide health care security for our senior citizens, it took less than a year for that to be considered and then put into full operation; in fact, 11 months. That was back before we had computers. All we had then were slide rulers and some adding machines.

On the legislation with which we are dealing now, the new Medicare prescription drug benefit, the new Medicare revision, we have a different situation. We are told this legislation we passed—and that was signed by the President and deals with our senior citizens—is going to have to wait for more than 2 years before it can be implemented. Today our senior citizens need help with soaring drug prices. They deserve the security of knowing they will be able to buy the medicine that can keep them healthy and happy. The American people want to know that when their Government wants to get things done, it can act quickly.

This law is a bad deal for senior citizens. That is why the main provisions of this legislation won't take effect until after the election. That is wrong. I suppose the administration thought our senior citizens would be grateful a bill passed, no matter what was in it, and that they wouldn't bother to find out what was in it. But they did find out. They already know. The President has underestimated our seniors.

I have met with seniors throughout the State of Nevada, and they know what is in this law. They don't like it. I read on the floor last week a meeting that was held by people from the State of Nevada to describe what is in this bill.

More than a hundred people showed up and all hundred were there to complain about this legislation. They don't like the fact that this will make many of them pay more for their drugs than they already have to pay. They don't like the fact that many who have drug coverage under private plans could lose their benefits because of this legislation. They don't like the provision in the law that forbids Medicare from negotiating with drug companies to get better prices. Insurance companies can do it and HMOs can do it. But Medicare—the largest health care delivery unit in the world—cannot negotiate with the drug companies to get lower prices.

Instead of working with Congress to address these and other concerns, the President has threatened to veto any change. Then he turned to his reelection campaign and asked them to help polish the image of this new Medicare law. So a company that is part of the President's reelection campaign is now doing the ads even with Medicare.

Fair enough, you might say. That is politics. Except the President is waging this ad campaign at taxpayers' expense. Simply, that is not fair. I am told he is planning to raise $200 million for his campaign this year. But apparently that is not enough because the administration is spending as much as $22 million of the taxpayers' money for this publicity campaign.

I have no doubt that senior citizens need information about this new Medicare law, and education and awareness about a new program is a legitimate use of taxpayer dollars; but these ads they are pushing are misleading. They don't tell seniors what they need to know about the bill. These ads don't shoot straight with the American people. They give our senior citizens false assurances, not facts.

For example, the ads reassure seniors that they can keep their Medicare coverage and the right to choose their own doctor. But the fact is many seniors, including many in Nevada, could be forced into demonstration programs that will make them pay higher premiums if they want to stay in traditional Medicare, and they will not be able to choose their own doctor.

In the same fashion, the ads don't mention that seniors will be prohibited from using their own money to purchase supplemental coverage to fill the gaps in the new law.

As part of this advertising campaign, the administration is also running print advertisements. I was surprised and perplexed when I saw an ad in the newspaper that runs on Capitol Hill, Roll Call. This newspaper is aimed at Senators, House Members, and Capitol Hill staff, and it is also aimed at lobbyists and so-called Washington insiders. If the President is trying to educate senior citizens about this new law, why would they place ads in Washington newspapers where less than 3 percent of the readership is over age 65? It is for obvious reasons.

The last straw was when I learned these ads are being produced by the same company that makes President Bush's campaign commercials. But that makes sense because they are simply campaign commercials—except his campaign isn't paying for them; you are, the American taxpayers.

These ads are political and that is clear. They are not intended to help seniors understand this complicated Medicare law. They are intended to offset the negative public reaction to this bad law.

The President has every right to defend this law, which he urged Congress to pass, but he doesn't have the right to make the taxpayers pay for it.

Mr. President, again, I see my friend from North Dakota, who has an amendment, and he has been waiting to get a vote on it. I hope the Senator from North Dakota will get a vote on it soon.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I have just talked to the managers of the bill. My understanding is there is nobody waiting to speak on the bill. As a result of that, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for 15 minutes, with the understanding that I will relinquish the floor if the managers have Senators who wish to offer an amendment to the bill. I don't want to delay the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRADE AGREEMENTS AND JOBS

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I wanted to speak for a moment about the issue of jobs. There has been an especially vibrant debate recently about the number of jobs that are being created in this country and the number of jobs that are moving overseas from the U.S. to other countries. I wanted to talk about jobs specifically today because there was an announcement that the U.S. has finished a trade agreement with the country of Australia.

We have already had the completion of the Central American Free Trade Agreement, CAFTA; we have had NAFTA, the North American Free Trade Agreement with Canada and Mexico; we have had GATT, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade; and the WTO. We have all of these agreements and the fact is they are not working out well.

Despite that, instead of correcting the problems in previous trade agreements, our negotiators are continuing to move ahead to negotiate new trade agreements.

Let's consider NAFTA. NAFTA was negotiated with Mexico and Canada. Prior to NAFTA being negotiated, and then approved by the Congress, the United States had a very small trade surplus with Mexico, nearly a $2 billion trade surplus with Mexico. Now, 10 years later, we have a $40 billion deficit with Mexico. I will say that again. In 10 years, with the North American Free Trade Agreement, we took a small surplus with Mexico and turned it into a very large deficit.

Again, when we negotiated the trade agreement with Canada—it was with Canada and Mexico—we had a $10 billion trade deficit with Canada, and that is now $50 billion.

With Mexico, we took a small surplus and turned it into a big deficit. With Canada, we had a modest deficit and quintupled it, from $10 billion to $50 billion. We still have people walking around this town thumbing their suspenders, between puffs of their cigars, and saying this trade agreement was wonderful for our country, it has worked well.

I decided to check which companies certified to the Federal Government the movement of jobs, or the loss of jobs, as a result of NAFTA. I have just received the information from the Congressional Research Service. It is the first time anybody has catalogued this job loss, in this level of detail, as far as I know. But here is what you have.

Now, NAFTA allows for transitional trade adjustment assistance. That is a fancy way of saying, if you are going to lose your job because of this trade agreement, we will give you some supplemental income to help you over the tough spot. The anticipation was people would lose their jobs, and we would try to provide some help, transitional trade adjustment assistance.

In order to get transitional trade adjustment assistance, the employer has to certify that jobs are going to be lost in their company as a result of this trade agreement. That certification goes to the Department of Labor, which keeps track of those certifications.

Let me describe what we found with this Congressional Research Service study, based on Department of Labor data. This is the first time a study has been done in this level of detail.

It says the No. 1 company that certified jobs certified they had 16,095 jobs that they lost either because they moved the jobs to Mexico, in most cases, or because of additional imports from either Mexico or Canada that displaced their workers here.

No. 2. Levi Strauss: 15,676 jobs over this nearly 10-year period. Levi Strauss, now, that is everything that is American, right? Just go buy some Levis. Levis used to be made in the United States. Not anymore. Levis left, and the workers who used to make Levis in this country were able to get some transitional trade adjustment assistance. That is a fancy way of saying: By the way, we are going to sew those Levis in Mexico, and we will give you a few bucks as your job leaves and goes to Mexico. That is what it said to American workers.

There is a whole series of companies, as one might imagine. Fruit of the Loom is seventh on the list, 5,350 jobs. I remember when I saw the actual notice in the paper that Fruit of the Loom was shutting down its U.S. manufacturing plants. I spoke on the floor of the Senate. I said: It is one thing to lose your shirt, but Fruit of the Loom is gone. They are making shirts and shorts and underwear in Mexico. I understand even now that labor costs are too high, and now it is moving to Asia, in some cases.

How about Fig Newton, Kraft Foods? Eat a Fig Newton and you think you are eating a Fig Newton cookie from the U.S. I am sorry, think again. It is Mexican food; Fig Newtons made in Mexico. It left this country, and the resulting layoffs of U.S. workers meant they received transitional trade adjustment assistance.

What does that mean? It means they got laid off. They made a good Fig Newton cookie, but they don't make it here anymore. American employees lost their jobs, and Fig Newtons are now made in Mexico.

This is a list of 100 companies from the Congressional Research Service. This list can be derived from Labor Department data because the companies had to certify job loss. This is slightly over 200,000 employees who lost their jobs. In fact, if you included in the list all who certified, it would be over 400,000 American workers who lost their jobs because of NAFTA, the free trade agreement with the United States, Canada, and Mexico.

Some say other jobs were created. Maybe so. Ask yourself this: If we took a small trade surplus with Mexico and turned it into a very large deficit, and a modest deficit with Canada and turned it into a very large deficit, isn't it inevitably the case that we will have lost a lot of jobs? The answer is clearly yes. It doesn't matter what all the other folks say. We have lost a lot of jobs, and all of these folks—these are just numbers on a chart, but of these 200,000 people, every one of them had to come home, perhaps some evening after work, and say to their spouse: Honey, I lost my job. I did good work. I had good evaluations all of my career with this company, but they have decided to shut the doors in this country and move to Mexico.

The reason I wanted to point this out is to say there is precious little attention paid these days to the question of what is happening with jobs being so-called "outsourced." I recently visited with a fellow who is founder and CEO of a very substantial company. He said to me: All of my competitors have now moved offshore. All of my competitors have moved offshore, and I have not. He said: I am not going to at this point, but I want you to know it puts me at a dramatic competitive disadvantage because I am paying American wages, and they are in India or Bangladesh or Sri Lanka or China, and they are paying pennies on the dollar for those wages and it makes them much more difficult to compete with.

I said: Good for you for keeping your jobs in this country.

He said: Yes, but somebody has to do something.

The question of this globalization is not just about whether we are globalizing, whether the economy is becoming increasingly global, because it is. The question is, Are there rules attached to globalization? What will the rules be for globalization? Is it OK to move jobs to a country where you pay them 16 cents an hour and work them 16 hours a day and 7 days a week? Is that something we should aspire to have American workers and American companies compete with? Yet that is exactly the case today. The answer so far has been, yes, that is fair trade.

It is not fair trade where I come from. This economy will not be the economy that produces jobs and represents the economy of the world's biggest and most vibrant economic engine if it does not retain a strong manufacturing base. No country will remain the dominant economy in the world without a dominant and strong manufacturing base.

For 42 straight months, we have had reductions in the manufacturing job base. Why? Because of outsourcing; moving jobs overseas where you can hire people for pennies on the dollar.

Let me go through a couple of charts that show where we are with trade.

This chart shows trade with Mexico. We can see where we were just before our trade agreement. What has happened since that time? A flood of red ink every single year; more and more trade deficits with Mexico.

This chart shows our trade deficit with Canada. I mention both of these only because this is NAFTA, the North American Free Trade Agreement. There is a flood of red ink. We negotiated the trade agreement in 1993, and we can see what is happening. And we still have people saying this has been a great free trade agreement.

This chart shows our trade deficit, which is completely out of control. The President's budget last week asked the Congress to approve a budget that has a dramatic budget deficit. In it, he predicts in the fiscal year in which we now work, the budget deficit will be roughly $530 billion, roughly $530 billion. But in order to get to that, he had to take the Social Security trust funds for the year and use them as other revenues to make the deficit look lower than it really is.

The budget deficit this year is going to be about $660 billion. That is the budget deficit. Add to that a nearly $500 billion trade deficit, and we can see where this is going—higher, higher, and higher. We have a Government with a combined budget deficit and trade deficit that is over $1 trillion, and people walk around as if nothing is going on. This is serious for this country. This is a burden that must be repaid.

Let me talk for a moment about a couple of specific trade issues to show the absurdity of what is happening. This chart shows cars to Korea. Korea sent to the United States 620,000 cars to sell in our marketplace, and we sold to Korea 2,800.

Let me say that again, Mr. President, 620,000 Korean cars came to the U.S. We were able to sell 2,800 in Korea. Why? Because the Korean government doesn't want U.S. cars sold in Korea.

Beef? We can't sell beef in Europe. Why? Because $100 million of beef is banned from the EU each year due to bogus reasons, and we have a very large trade deficit with the EU. Here is the way they characterize U.S. beef: A cow with two heads because of growth hormones.

Guess what. We said to Europe: If you are going to take that action against us, we are going to take action against you. And in the first small semblance of direct action on trade, the U.S. Government decided to take action against Europe.

What did we do? We are going to slap Europe around. We decided to slap Europe around by imposing duties on Roquefort cheese, goose liver, and truffles.

That will strike fear into our trade adversaries, and I say adversaries because when they take unfair action against us, we have a right to take action against them. What do we do? We slap import duties on truffles and goose liver. I am sorry, that does not seem to me to be the kind of action that is very effective against trade partners that are engaged in unfair trade.

I could go on at great length about the issue. The issue, to me, comes down to the subject of jobs. This is a BusinessWeek article of February 3, last year. It talked about U.S. jobs moving offshore. They talked about the official estimate of 3.3 million white-collar jobs moving offshore in the near future. They are talking about in the coming 10 to 12 years an additional 3.3 million jobs. These are not factory jobs, manufacturing jobs. These are white-collar jobs that will be moving offshore.

On the cover of BusinessWeek Magazine recently, it states: "Is Your Job Next?" A new round of globalization is sending upscale jobs offshore. They include chip design, engineering, basic research.

Recently, in the last couple of weeks, a Wall Street Journal article talking about documents from the IBM Corporation gives a rare look, they say, at "sensitive plans for offshoring."

They got ahold of IBM documents that show the company is acutely aware of the sensitivities involved when they ship jobs overseas. These are white-collar jobs. They say:

> Do not be transparent regarding the purpose/intent, and cautions that the terms "onshore" and "offshore" should never be used. The memo—

Which talks about moving jobs offshore—> suggests that anything written to employees should first be "sanitized" by human-resources and communications staffers.

In the draft prepared for managers at IBM they suggest workers be told:

> This action is a statement about the rate and pace of change in this demanding industry. . . . It is in no way a comment on the excellent work you have done over the years. . . . For the people whose jobs are affected by this consolidation, I understand this is difficult news.

It is a rare look at companies that are now moving high-skilled, high-wage, white-collar jobs overseas.

We have some serious problems to deal with. This issue of the movement of American jobs overseas is a very serious issue. We can talk about the issue of globalization, and I am somebody who believes this is an increasing economy—I understand that—but I also believe there needs to be standards: What is the admission price to the marketplace of a developed country, a country that fought, for example, for the right of workers to organize, a safe workplace, the ability to prohibit the dumping into streams and waters and the air, poisons and effluents?

We fought for years about those things: Child labor laws, fair labor standards, minimum wages. Now, with just an airplane ride and a decision memo by a company which said we will just pole vault over all of that, we do not have to worry about that, they move our jobs to Bangladesh or Sri Lanka, or to a place where they can hire 12-year-olds, pay them 12 cents an hour, and work them 12 hours a day, 7 days a week. And they do. Then they will ship the product back to Toledo, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, and Fargo. They say that consumers will be advantaged by that because they will get lower priced commodities.

I conclude by telling one story that I have told previously. It is about Huffy bicycles. Most people are familiar with Huffy bicycles, 20 percent of the American marketplace sold at Wal-Mart, Sears, Kmart. They used to have an American flag as a decal between the handle bar and the front fender. That was when they were made by workers in Ohio who made $11 an hour producing a Huffy bicycle.

I do not know any of those workers, but I am sure they were proud because they had good jobs and produced a good bicycle. They were all fired. Huffy bicycles are now made in China. The workers in Ohio were making $11 an hour. That was too much, according to the company. So Huffy bicycles are made in China for 33 cents an hour by people who work 12 to 14 hours a day for 7 days a week.

No, there is not a flag anymore. That little tin decal between the fender and the handle bar is not an American flag. It is now a picture of the globe.

The question for this country is: Are we going to have any manufacturing jobs left? Is it fair competition to ask an American worker to compete against 33-cent-an-hour labor? We have to answer these questions.

I am not suggesting it is not an increasingly global world, but we need rules for globalization. What is fair competition for the American worker and for American businesses? That is something the Congress has been unwilling to deal with and recent trade agreements have ignored. In fact, the trade agreements have been fundamentally incompetent, the ones with China, NAFTA, and others.

I have spoken about those agreements at great length previously. Today, what I wanted to do was simply show the chart that shows the 100 companies that have exported jobs, and they have certified that the export of these jobs came about as a result of our trade agreement. This certification is not some speculation on my part. This is certification by each of these companies about the number of jobs that no longer exist in this country because they either moved to Mexico or they displaced imports coming into this country.

This certification that has been made and the CRS has compiled for me is on my Web site, Dorgan.Senate.gov. if someone wants to see the list of companies. I think it is important for people to understand this is what is happening. The question is: Does it matter? For me, it does.

If we are going to have a strong manufacturing base, we have to worry about this. No country will remain a dominant economic power without a strong manufacturing base, in my judgment.

I have more to say about trade. I will do it at a more appropriate time. I understand my colleague wishes to speak on the bill, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. First of all, I thank the Senator from North Dakota for yielding. He will have ample time to come back and do that. I appreciate him allowing us to get back to the bill.

The Senator from Ohio has an amendment to talk about, but I encourage all Members to come down to the floor. We have time now. Later on, time is going to become very precious. As I said last Friday, come to the floor. We stayed open all weekend to work with Members on their amendments. We are doing that as we speak. We would encourage Members to come down and talk about their amendments—now that we have worked out amendments—so when the appropriate time comes, if they wish to file those amendments and to debate them and get votes on them, they will be light-years ahead if they come down now.

I want to issue that as a very strong suggestion to those members who have amendments. I thank some 30 Members who brought their amendments down over Saturday. A lot of those have been accepted in the managers' amendment.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. INHOFE. I will be glad to yield.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I have been here a long time, as the Senator from Oklahoma has. Have we had anybody come down?

Mr. INHOFE. Senator DEWINE is waiting to speak now on his amendment, although I think the Senator is making a very good point. We have been talking about this since Friday, and we encourage people to come down.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Well, I hope the Senator from Ohio will get such enthusiasm created with his speech that we can spend the rest of the time making some progress.

Mr. INHOFE. I can assure the Senator he always does.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Yes.

Mr. INHOFE. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to thank the leaders of the Environment and Public Works Committee, Chairman INHOFE, Ranking Member JEFFORDS, as well as Senators BOND and REID, for all the hard work they put in to produce this transportation bill. This is really a transportation bill that does a number of different things, but one thing it does do is stress the importance of safety programs.

The bill before us today is a revolutionary bill. It is known as SAFETEA. That is what we are calling it. In many respects it certainly deserves this title. I salute my two colleagues, whom I see on the floor, and thank them for their fine work in this area.

A strong emphasis on safety programs is vital because in the year 2002, the last year for which we have complete records, over 42,000 of our fellow citizens—in fact, the exact number is 42,815—were lost in this country. That is how many fellow citizens were killed in auto fatalities.

The No. 1 killer of Americans between the ages of 4 and 34 in this country is auto fatalities. That is an amazing thing when you think about it. Think about all the other diseases and problems there are in this country, whether it be cancer, all the other things someone could die from, but the No. 1 killer of our young people today is auto fatalities.

If you look at the age group of 16, 17, 18, 19, the figures go off the charts for that age group. That is what is killing our young people today—automobiles.

In the next 12 minutes, to be precise, at least 1 person will be killed in an automobile accident in this country, while nearly 6 people will be injured in just the next 60 seconds. Tragically, within the last 2 weeks, in my home State of Ohio, two of our soldiers were killed in automobile accidents, one of whom was just back from Iraq on a 2-week pass.

Sadly, though, it seems these deaths are something we as a society take for granted. We tolerate it. We put up with it. Frankly, we don't pay much attention to it. How many times every night when we turn on the news do we hear about someone being killed? Unless they are from our local community, unless we know them, we don't think a thing about it. We tolerate it.

If a foreign enemy were doing this to us, we would not tolerate it. We would be up in arms. Someone has said these automobile deaths are the equivalent of a 747 going down every 2 days in this country. If that were happening, it would, of course, be on CNN. It would be breaking news. We would be literally up in arms. We would be demanding the President of the United States and this Congress do something about it. Yet these auto fatalities that occur hour by hour, day by day, minute by minute, go on and on and for some reason we have become immune to it, hardened to it, really. Tragically these deaths just continue.

That is why I am so pleased the bill before us does go a long way to help to address several safety concerns that can make a difference and can save lives on our roads. The EPW Committee leaders deserve praise for elevating safety programs to core status among highway programs. In the past, safety programs were of a derivative nature, drawing their funding as a percentage of one of the core programs. This framework enabled some States to overlook safety and focus funding and efforts on other areas. With the new core designation, safety will take its proper place at center stage. The EPW Committee leadership deserves praise for taking this quantum leap forward.

Let me again thank Senators INHOFE, JEFFORDS, BOND, and REID for making their staffs available this weekend for work on my amendments. I am pleased with the progress that has been made so far, trying to work on these amendments. One of my amendments has already been accepted. I thank them for that. That amendment has been integrated into the proposed managers' package.

I have another amendment relating to traffic signals that I believe we will have cleared in the near future.

I wish this afternoon to take a few minutes to share with the Members of the Senate what these amendments will do, because I believe they will help put us even further down the field in terms of saving lives and promoting greater emphasis on safety.

I have further additional safety-related amendments I will be offering to the Commerce Committee portion of the highway bill, and I will be offering those in a future speech when we get to that section of the bill, we hope later in the week. I thank Senator MCCAIN for his leadership. I look forward to working with him and the Commerce Committee on that section of the bill.

The first amendment the EPW Committee has accepted contains two parts. First, it would require the States to identify and rank and disclose their most dangerous intersections. That might not sound like a revolutionary thing to do, but not every State is doing that now. It is the right thing to do: to rank them, to identify them, and then to make that information public so the consumers, the citizens will know what that information is and will then be able to act upon it.

A second part of our amendment we are still negotiating with the leadership would increase the timely and efficient expenditure of Federal safety dollars by the States.

Let me first talk about the dangerous roads and intersections amendment. The Environment and Public Works Committee bill focuses some resources on these problem areas and this amendment builds on the committee's fine efforts. Most States, fortunately, do take steps to identify and track the dangerous roads and intersections. They keep a list of the bad ones, the ones with high fatalities and high accident rates. But, amazingly, there are many States that keep this information secret and do not tell the public or, in some cases, do not even keep this information at all.

My amendment is very simple. It requires States to systematically rank and disclose their most dangerous roads and intersections. It requires them to do so in terms of dangers to human beings, in other words, in terms of the number of deaths and the number of injuries that occur on these specific roads.

Further, my language asks the States to disclose at least the top 5 percent of the most dangerous roads and intersections in their States, and that they identify to the Secretary of Transportation this information and therefore ultimately to the driving public.

We need to get information on dangerous roads and intersections out to the public and to the people we are charged to protect. My amendment would help assure that this in fact happens.

Consumers have a right to know this information. As a parent, I might tell my 16-year-old or 17-year-old not to go a certain way to a movie. Don't go on that dangerous intersection. Don't go by that dangerous curve. At least, if I had that information, I could make an intelligent decision about it. It is wrong for a State department of transportation to have that information and to deny me, as a citizen of that State, that same information. I should be able to tell my child, "Don't go that way. It may take another 10 or 15 minutes, but go a different way—be safe."

I would like to briefly tell my colleagues about a woman by the name of Sandy Johnson and her mother Jacqueline. On October 5, 2002, Sandy and Jacqueline were killed. They were killed in a car crash at a dangerous intersection near Columbus, OH.

What they did not know as they drove into that intersection—and what countless other area residents who used the roads that cross through it did not know at the time—was this particular intersection was known at that time by the State department of transportation to be a very dangerous area. In fact, the State department of transportation had indeed known that information for quite some time. Perhaps if Sandy Johnson had known that she would have taken a different route that day. We will never know. Perhaps she might have slowed down to see traffic coming from the other direction. Tragically, we simply will never know.

This particular intersection was dangerous because of the close proximity of a house to the intersection, making it difficult for drivers coming from each direction to see those approaching from the other way. The fix to this problem, the installation of four-way stop signs and ultimately removal of a house to improve sight lines, took quite some time to be implemented. But eventually, these steps were in fact taken.

Following the tragic death of his wife and his mother-in-law, Dean Johnson initiated a campaign to tackle the issue of dangerous roads and dangerous intersections, not just in Ohio but across the country. He has tried with varying results from State to State to get information on dangerous roads and intersection locations out to the public so tragedies like the one involving his wife could be prevented.

Today on the Senate floor, I thank Dean Johnson for his dedication to this very important public safety issue and for the progress he has made in my home State of Ohio and elsewhere in terms of getting critical lifesaving information out to citizens through the Sandy Johnson Foundation. I must say to him that his work is a real tribute to his love for his wife and for her memory.

Clearly, tragedies like the one involving Sandy Johnson can be prevented in many cases through means as simple and as inexpensive as disclosure to the public of what State departments of transportation already know—the disclosure of where the dangerous roads and intersections are located. The States should provide this information. They already know it. They simply should provide it.

The second part of our amendment focuses on how States spend their safety money. In this respect, my staff is working with the committee to develop additional mechanisms for the timely and efficient expenditure of Federal safety dollars. In the past, there have been problems with getting States to spend their safety money on safety. The EPW Committee bill goes a long way towards helping ensure those safety dollars do in fact get spent on safety. My efforts in this area are aimed at further strengthening this portion of the bill. It is simply so very important that these dollars be spent on safety—to straighten the road that is killing people or to change a dangerous intersection. This money can be very well spent and should be spent on things that will save lives. It is very cost effective.

Let me talk about another amendment. My staff and I are continuing to work with the managers and their staff on accepting the second amendment that has to do with keeping our intersections safe with regard to the safety of first responders as they engage in their daily work. This amendment is derived from legislation I introduced last year called the Safe Intersections Act of 2003, S. 1825.

This amendment would prohibit the unauthorized sale or possession of traffic signal preempting devices, commonly known as MIRTs. This type of device is a remote control for changing traffic signals. Members of the Senate may have read about these. They have been used for years by ambulances, police cars, and firetrucks, allowing them to reach emergencies faster. As an ambulance approaches the intersection where the light is red, the driver engages a transmitter. That transmitter then sends a signal to a receiver on the traffic light which changes the light from red to green within a few seconds. It is a very useful tool when properly used in emergency situations by someone in an emergency vehicle.

In a 2002 survey, the U.S. Department of Transportation found that in the top 78 metropolitan areas, there are 24,683 traffic lights equipped with these sensors—in other words, equipped with sensors that can be triggered by emergency vehicles.

In my own home State of Ohio, there is a joint pilot project underway by the Washington Township Fire Department and the Dublin Police Department to install these devices. Other areas in Ohio where they are in use include Mentor, Twinsburg, Willoughby, and Westerville. In Ohio and across the country, law enforcement offices, fire departments, and paramedics are investing in this technology to make their communities safer.

So what is the problem? Recently, it has come to light that this technology is being sold to unauthorized individuals—who use this technology in their own private cars and private vehicles to bypass red lights during their commute to and from work or just in their everyday driving. Clearly, preemptive devices were never intended for this type of use. This technology in the hands of unauthorized users could result in traffic problems such as gridlock or, much worse, accidents in which people are injured or killed. We know of at least one incident in Modesto, CA, where paramedics on an emergency run used a preemptive device to clear the way through a busy intersection only to see the light change back to red in their direction due to use of a MIRT by a nearby driver.

My amendment is simple. It would restrict the sale of preemptive devices to government-authorized users such as ambulance drivers, firetruck drivers, and police. Clearly, these devices should not be available to casual drivers wishing to make a total end run on civil order by changing traffic signals to make their commute a little bit shorter. It is a very simple amendment.

The two amendments I am offering will go a long way towards improving transportation safety. They are commonsense, they are practical, and they will in fact make a difference.

These efforts are a continuation of my work in this area—something I have been interested in for many years, going back to a time in the early 1980s when I was in the Ohio State Senate. A little boy named Justin—I think Justin was 7—was killed right outside his school in my home county of Greene County. We decided at that time that Justin had been killed by a driver who had been drinking, a driver who had a very bad previous record of drinking and driving. We decided, frankly, we had had enough of this and we had to do something about it. I introduced a very tough drunk driving billing in Ohio. I researched the law and saw what other States and foreign countries had been doing. Ultimately, the bill became Ohio's tough drunk-driving law. I have been interested in highway safety issues ever since. I have worked in the Congress with many of my colleagues. I have worked in the State Senate. I saw this firsthand when I was county prosecutor. I used to go into county courts and prosecute drunk drivers. I saw the carnage and horrible tragedy drunk drivers cause. I have been interested in highway safety issues for many years. I know many of my colleagues are as well.

I again thank Senator INHOFE for his great work in this area to make this a very strong highway safety bill. It has some very strong highway safety components.

I think the amendments I have talked about today will go a long way to help make this an even better bill in regard to highway safety. I will be back on the floor later this week as the bill continues to progress with some additional amendments in regard to highway safety. I will be talking more about them.

I thank my colleague for his great work on this bill, and Senator JEFFORDS, as well, for his great work.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. DOLE). The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, I appreciate the comments of the Senator from Ohio and his interest in safety issues. I share his concerns. When you have lost a loved one in an automobile accident—in the case of my father, because of a narrow, two-lane road—and you know that such a tragic accident could have been avoided and lives saved through things such as safety striping, laws, or additional safety devices at railroad crossings, you can fully appreciate the need for the attention the Senator has given to this important issue.

I also thank Senator INHOFE from Oklahoma, chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, for his leadership. Producing a highway bill is not an easy process. I have dealt with transportation issues closely as a Member of the Senate for several years now. I can remember when TEA-21 was on the floor how difficult it was to pull together the bill with the divergent committees—the Finance Committee, the Appropriations Committee, the Budget Committee, and the Banking Committee all had a say in the outcome of the bill. All the Members of the Senate had their oars in the water and we had to have bipartisan meetings in the various committees to produce a bill that could get through the process and be signed into law.

It is not easy to get the reauthorization bill to this point. I commend Senator INHOFE for the work he has already done on SAFETEA, the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, and Efficient Transportation Equity Act of 2003. Coming up with that good title alone deserves commendation.

I also thank the Senator from Vermont for his efforts. As a member of the Finance Committee, as well as the Environment and Public Works Committee, he has worked with Senator INHOFE to try to get this bill done. He has made it a point in the Finance Committee that we need to complete action on this legislation because it is important for our country.

We do need to come up with an acceptable financing plan for the costs of this bill. It will take cooperation and teamwork to get it done. I know Members of the Democratic leadership support this legislation and I believe we are getting off on the right foot. But we spent a week positioning and making speeches. I hope now the Senate will begin to have some votes and conclude action on the bill as soon as possible so that we are not faced with another extension. We need to move this legislation through the Senate, show leadership, and be prepared to go to conference with the House of Representatives.

In my opinion, there may not be a more important bill we can pass this year. This is not going to be a prolific year in terms of monumental legislation. Frankly, that is not all bad. Some of what we passed last year we should have left unpassed. Sometimes we should get credit for what we do not do. But this bill is one we need to complete this year for a variety of reasons.

First of all, SAFETEA is about jobs. Very few bills we pass in the Senate actually produce something. This is a bill that is actually going to produce jobs, not just next year but year after year. There are projects in North Carolina, Oklahoma, Vermont, Mississippi, and all over this Nation, ready to go right now. We need to get this legislation passed as soon as possible so that the funding it provides can be fully utilized during the construction season. If we wait too long and let this drag out, if we get stuck in the Senate or get stuck in conference, we will lose another construction season.

This bill will create jobs. Not all of the jobs will be high-paying, but they will be jobs just the same. There are very few Federal programs that create more jobs, from engineers down to the guy shoveling the gravel or moving around the dirt, all of which are very important.

We need to pass this legislation for its job creation impetus. We talk about how we need more jobs in this recovery; this is one way to get them.

SAFETEA is also about infrastructure. When you get through, you have something you can see—an interstate highway, a bridge, a safety device. Maybe even mass transit facilities in some of the larger cities. But we have a product we can look at.

I found out through my 31 years in Congress, there are few things we do for our constituents that are more important than highways and infrastructure. If you do not have roads, if people cannot get there, they will not come. That is a brilliant statement when you think about it, but if companies do not have access to good roads and bridges, railroads, airports, ports and harbors, they will not locate a plant and create jobs anywhere in this country. When you are dealing with a major international corporation, they want to know: Are we going to be on an interstate highway? Are we going to be close to an international airport? Do you have good schools? It starts there. Then you work from there to questions such as: Is the geology good? Will we have water and sewer systems? Do we have access roads or existing buildings?

My poor State of Mississippi has been making some progress. Why is that? Because we finally figured out that we were trying to fix everything and we were actually fixing nothing. We were shooting shotgun blasts and trying to do good things up and down the economic spectrum to help our State. It was not working because the money was disappearing. People were not getting better off. So we decided to focus. And we focused on education, particularly higher education and community colleges, to create workforce training programs for local communities. And we worked to improve our elementary and secondary education systems, as well.

Second was highways. Highways is a code word for infrastructure. It is the whole package: The industrial site, water, sewer, railroad spur. If a community does not have good highways, economic development will not happen. We have a major industry right now in my State, Viking Range Corporation, that makes the best ranges and some of the best kitchen equipment in the world. But to get to their manufacturing plant, visitors actually have to travel on a dirt road. This is severely hampering the company's growth.

The third thing we focused on in my State is economic development. We decided to aggressively go out and pursue jobs. This bill is an important component of that effort. SAFETEA is about jobs, it is about infrastructure, it is about quality of life, and it is about safety.

I don't want to demean this title. We talk about safety on the highways, safety on the roads, safety on our bridges. We have bridges all over America crumbling and being shut down. I admit, some of them are local or county bridges, which, in an ideal world, should be maintained by the counties. But at a minimum, shouldn't we continue the policies that started way back in the 1950s—actually back in the 1800s, with Henry Clay, to develop and federally maintain an Interstate Highway System.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and to give the leaders of this committee the support to which they are entitled. Someone asked last week: We have all these problems, what do we do? I said, support the chairman and ranking member. They have a tough job, an important job. We should help and support them and try to shape the legislation with them, not just because we want projects in our State. Yes, we all do. But if we did not get one earmarked project in our States, we ought to support this legislation because of what it means for our country.

Now, there is a lot of pontification developing, as often happens with the highway bill, but even more so this time. People are showing up, all of a sudden, worried about the costs of this bill. Lots of people are saying: Wait a minute, this may add to the deficit. Where have they been over the last 2 or 3 years? Where were they on the prescription drug bill when we were developing a bill that would cost $600 billion or $800 billion or who knows how many billions of dollars? They were not worried about the deficit until the highway bill came up. And they said, wait a minute, the highway bill may cost too much.

The Finance Committee has struggled with how to pay for this bill. Is it perfect? No. But it was a major effort and we are within a close enough range where we can continue to make some adjustments as we go through the legislative process. Some people say: Once it goes through the process, we may have to vote. That is exactly right. And we will have to look at the final product. Is it something the Republicans, Democrats, Senate, House, labor unions, the White House can live with? We will never know until we move forward on it.

So we have people now saying that after ignoring the amount of spending last year—in bill after bill after bill—we are going to plant our flag on this hill, and we are going to fight excessive spending on the highway bill. They picked the wrong bill. This is a positive bill, and we will make it work as the process goes forward.

People will say: Well, wait a minute. There may be some earmarking in some of these bills before it is over. Yes, there may be. Fine. And I am going to fight for my own State to get its share because I do not necessarily believe that all wisdom reposes in the Department of Transportation in Washington, DC. I happen to know a little bit about some of the real crises, projects, and problems in my own State, and I trust Senators—men and women—from their own States to identify some of the needs that must be addressed in their home states.

Then there will be those who will say: This bill doesn't put enough funding into mass transportation or it doesn't put enough funding into one project or another. Let me point out a couple of things we are dealing with.

Our Interstate Highway System is nearly 50 years old. Thirty-two percent of our major roads are in poor or mediocre condition. Twenty-nine percent of our Nation's bridges are structurally deficient or functionally obsolete. If we do not complete action on this legislation, we will wind up with a 1-year extension and we will be back next year. Some people would say, maybe we could do a better job in a nonelection year.

But I believe we need a carefully thought out, multiyear, multifaceted federal highway and transportation program, and we need it now. We are having difficulty on other bills, such as the energy bill. We are trying to decide, what bills can we get done this year? Well, there is one thing we should not leave undone this year, and it is this highway bill.

I urge my colleagues to work together to try to come to a conclusion this week. If we have to have a cloture motion filed in order to make progress, let's do that. I believe it will pass with a bipartisan vote. It should. And then we can make progress on this bill and be ready to go to conference with the House of Representatives where we can get the job done.

I know we are going to be getting calls with suggestions of delays. Some people do not like the formula. It is tough to come up with a formula that is fair to everybody, especially if you have been a big donee State. If you are a small State or a big State that has been getting back $1.21 for every $1 you pay into the highway trust fund, you don't want to lose any funding. But if you are from a poor State that has been getting only 50 or 75 cents on the dollar that your constituents pay into the Highway Trust Fund, you want a fairer deal. But it is not easy to try to come up with a formula that is fair to Texas and New York and Rhode Island and Oklahoma all at the same time. It is really a balancing act.

I looked at the formula. I don't think the formula is as good as it ought to be for Mississippi. We are just kind of in the middle. And when your state has been neglected for 138 years it needs to do a little better than being in the middle. But I prefer the progress we make on this bill, to nothing. It is progress. So I do not think I have any more room to complain than anybody else.

But, again, we have some people who do not want to move toward a fairer formula for everyone. They do not want to give up anything they have. But I think the formula Chairman INHOFE and Senator JEFFORDS have come up with is good enough. Can they still tweak it a little bit as the bill moves forward through the process? Yes, they can; and I am sure they will.

So I hope my colleagues will not start blocking this bill with procedural motions because they do not like the formula. I hope they will keep working with the chairman and ranking member, as I will. I am going to curry favor with the chairman of the committee until the last dog dies to try to complete action on this bill in a way that will be fair to my constituents and good for the country. But I hope my colleagues will not use the formula as an excuse to block the bill. I hope they will not use this newfound fiscal responsibility to hammer out the worst possible bill. If we will proceed together, working with the chairman and ranking member, we will complete action on this bill, and it will be one of the best things we can do this year.

I thank the Senate for the opportunity to comment on this bill. I thank the leadership for what they are doing. I was growing concerned that too many people were possibly trying to conjure up some way to block this legislation.

So let's keep the process moving. It is not just for the sake of the process, no. It is for better and safer infrastructure in this country. It is for jobs. I wish the leadership of the committee the best, and I am going to be here trying to help them every step of the way.

I yield the floor, Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, that was a great statement by the Senator from Mississippi. I appreciate it very much. It is a recognition that a lot of people will think all of a sudden we came up, last week, with a bill and a formula. They don't realize we have spent a year—a year of our lives—working on a formula, looking into the same things the Senator is talking about.

I am from a donor State. We have been a donor State as long as I have been up here. The Senator talked about working on TEA-21. You also worked on ISTEA in the beginning because I was there with you. Those formulas were not as good because they were based on minimum guarantees. A minimum guarantee is you figure, how do I get 60 votes, and then we don't care what happens to the rest of you. We did not do that.

We considered the donee States, donor States, the fast-growing States, because there is a ceiling in there for them, and then there is a floor for some of the States that have either a low population or are low-yield States. All these things were taken into consideration.

So anything that is as complicated and long as this is, you can pick it apart. But I can tell you right now, we spent a lot of time on it. There are people who are interested in the transit part of it. There are some, such as the Senator from Ohio, who have been very much concerned about and made great contributions to safety. Some of them are concerned about freight and the obstacles that are out there. But we have it all in this one.

I feel good about this bill. It has taken a year to get where we are today. Frankly, you just cannot start readjusting a formula of which you took every consideration in putting together. You have something that is fair. You cannot then start readjusting it. If you change one State, it changes all the other States, and then you have to go back and start all over.

I think there are those who would prefer we would have to do that because they don't want to have a bill. But we are not going to operate on extensions, and I have every expectation we will get a bill this week.

People say: What about the House? They are going to want an extension. They are not where we are. Well, you are not going to get them to do anything until we do something, in my opinion.

I appreciate very much the Senator from Mississippi making his comments about this bill.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Madam President, I also add to the accolades to my good friend from Mississippi for putting in perspective where we are and what we must do to make this a reality. This Nation cannot wait much longer to have the funds that will be available under this bill in order to enhance the employment growth as well as the needs of this Nation to be more efficient and effective in all categories of life. We must work together. We must work quickly. And we should start today.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. INHOFE. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McCAIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. McCAIN. Madam President, while the Senate began debating S. 1072, the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, and Efficient Transportation Equity Act, known as SAFETEA, nearly 1 week ago, I am not sure some of my colleagues have been informed about how this bill would impact their State's highway funding. While perhaps we have all taken a look at the tables distributed by the committee of jurisdiction a few weeks ago, these tables omit some very important facts, including the fact that the number of donor States would actually increase under the pending legislation compared to the last reauthorization bill, TEA-21.

Instead of giving greater parity, it appears to be going in the opposite direction, as I will explain in a few minutes. Before I go too much further, I understand that after my colleague from Arizona was on the floor last week in opposition to this legislation, the Senator from Oklahoma went through some routine about how Arizona would do well under this legislation. Rather than subject my colleague from Oklahoma to that again, I would suggest we swap formulas between Oklahoma and Arizona. If the Senator from Oklahoma is not willing to do that, then please don't waste my time and his in trying to convince me this is a good deal for the State of Arizona.

First, I think it might help to put the bill in context by quickly reviewing the history of the Federal highway program, which I briefly mentioned on the floor last Monday evening. Nearly 50 years ago, the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956 was enacted. As you can see, it was a deceptively inconspicuous-looking piece of legislation. It was 29 pages, but what it accomplished truly changed this country. The 1956 act created programs that constructed the interstate highway system, the largest civil works project ever undertaken by the United States. The act established the highway trust fund, financed by taxes paid by motorists—financed by taxpayers, not by general revenue—which is an important aspect to look at as we consider this legislation. It required that the interstate be built using a uniform design that would be safe within most U.S. highways in existence at that time.

The program to construct the interstate was first proposed by President Eisenhower in 1954 and signed into law in 1956. Today we are all the beneficiaries of the foresight of President Eisenhower and a Congress that helped to shepherd this bill through to enactment. The interstate system is 47,000 miles long, comprised of 62 superhighways crisscrossing the Nation in a grid. Twenty-four percent of all travel occurs on the interstate, and it has obtained a record being twice as safe as other highways.

Unfortunately, when people look back 50 years from now at the highway legislation currently before the Senate, I don't think history will be as kind. We reauthorize the multiyear highway transit safety programs about every 6 years. We last reauthorized these programs in 1998 with enactment of TEA-21, the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century, following extensive debate in the Senate. The highway program reauthorization measure is a bill second to none in terms of attracting Members' interests. We all want to know how much our States will receive in highway funding under the byzantine formula distribution being proposed during each authorization debate. Therefore, because of its significance, it is important that each and every Member have an opportunity to know what the bill would do and how it would do it.

At this point, what exactly do my colleagues know about the real impact this bill would have on their States? I recognize the difficulties this reauthorization poses for the bill managers. I would prefer to be in a position to support their legislation. But in its current form, I cannot.

The bill would increase highway funding by over $60 billion over the TEA-21 enacted level, again, over $60 billion, for a total of $255 billion. At the same time, the bill not only perpetuates the donor/donee discrepancy that we donor State representatives have battled during every highway bill reauthorization, but it actually expands it. The 28 donor States under TEA-21 will have the company of another three States—New Hampshire, Oregon, and Wisconsin—if this proposal is approved.

I guess I could say something about misery loving company, but I don't want more States to be shortchanged. Instead, I want all States to be treated more fairly. It amazes me that an additional $60 billion still can't enable the authorizing committee to develop a fairer formula but, as demonstrated by EPW's funding tables, they cannot or perhaps simply will not. Where will this extra $60 billion go?

While the EPW Committee argues its bill would get every State to a 95-percent rate of return by 2009, the sixth year of the authorization, I remind my colleagues that under TEA-21, the formula increased the minimum rate of return from 85 percent to 90.5 percent in the first year, and it continued throughout the authorization period. Yet, again, the EPW bill we are considering doesn't raise the floor to 95 percent until the sixth year. So, again, where exactly will this $60 billion go?

The committee proposes a new so-called formula. I say that because it is not actually a formula but instead is a series of five calculations consisting of funding caps and floors. This Rube-Goldberg-like funding contraption is grossly unfair and would result in 31 States getting back significantly less funding than they contribute to the highway trust fund. Further, while a number of the current bottom-of-the-barrel donor States would receive an immediate step up from the smallest of 90.5 percent rate of return, including a number of donor States with members on the committee, six States would receive almost no percentage increase until the last year of the authorization in 2009.

Under this formula, Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Maryland, and Texas would be held at the very bottom, while many other States also would continue to get shortchanged.

This is not the right approach. It is unfair. We should do everything we can to try to ensure that any bill voted on is more equitable for all States. Again, it isn't just these six States that I mentioned that are being asked to contribute more to the highway trust fund than they will get back. I asked the Department of Transportation to provide an analysis of the formula. I thought it would be revealing to first learn how much each State would receive if the formula funds in the EPW bill were distributed proportionately back to each State based on their contributions to the highway fund.

According to the Department of Transportation, 31 States are donor States under this formula, while 19 get back more than they pay in, according to this chart.

Let me give some examples. The people of California are being asked to send almost $2 billion to Washington, DC, so that it can be redistributed through some arcane funding scheme to the lucky 19 States that would get back more than they put in.

For Arizona, $364 million of its contributions would be sent away to the 19 States. You know, it is interesting, Arizona and California, neighboring States, have something in common that, frankly, neither Vermont nor Oklahoma have, which is high growth. Obviously, it puts on greater pressure when you have a high-growth population, which actually argues for increased funding. Instead, we are being shorted.

But here are other examples of funding. Florida, another high-growth State, would send away a billion dollars; Georgia would send away $643 million; Illinois would send away $403 million; Kentucky would send away $304 million; Michigan would send away $383 million; Missouri would send away $286 million; New Jersey would send away $547 million; Ohio would send away $517 million; and Texas would send away $1.7 billion.

The list goes on and on. It is remarkable.

I fully realize that during the era when the Federal Government was building the Interstate System, a redistribution of funding between the States may have made sense. Clearly, it would have been difficult for Montana, for example, with fewer than a million people, to fully pay for building its share of the Interstate System. But that era is over.

Congress declared the construction of the interstate complete in 1991. Yet here we are, 13 years later, and donor States are still being expected to agree to the redistribution of hundreds of millions, if not billions, of dollars to other States, regardless of the already enormous transportation needs in donor States. Why?

I am sure we will hear about the great transportation needs of the States that receive more than they contribute. I have no doubt that those States do in fact have such needs. But how is it determined that California should have nearly $2 billion of its funding redistributed? Why aren't California's transportation needs as worthy of receiving the same percentage of Federal funds as provided to meet the transportation needs of New York, for example, which will receive $989 million more than it contributes over 6 years? Where is the logic? I am afraid there is none.

Let's consider New Hampshire and Vermont. These are two very similar sized neighboring States. Both have about the same total road and street mileage—around 15,000 miles. But under this EPW formula, New Hampshire is a donor and Vermont is a donee, getting a windfall of almost $500 million, or almost 190 percent of what it contributes. In fact, Vermont would even receive more in total dollars than New Hampshire. There can be no policy rationale for that—none.

I will admit that I have a certain affection for the State of New Hampshire—a great deal of affection for the State of New Hampshire. But to have this kind of disparity between two States is rather remarkable.

Madam President, this bill is suspect. In fact, the tables that have been circulated by the EPW Committee actually raise more questions than they answer. For example, what affect will new air quality standards have on State allocations? The new formula included in the EPW bill for the congestion management and air quality improvement program, a program totaling $13 billion, is not reflected in the tables.

What happens to State allocations if the bill is not fully funded? The promise that your State, if you are a donor, will finally achieve a 95-percent return by 2009 may be empty. In order to achieve a 95-percent rate of return for all States in 2009, it would require a 1-year increase of $5.5 billion in 2009. How likely is that to occur, taking into consideration the projected fiscal year 2005 budget deficit of $1½ trillion continued budget deficit projections well beyond 2009?

Here is a fundamental question, one I think the President is seriously considering: Are we really paying for this bill? The Finance Committee has proposed what many of us consider to be accounting gimmicks to make the highway bill appear to be fully paid for. But appearances are often deceptive, as several colleagues have already discussed on the floor. How will the Finance Committee's proposed accounting changes for gasohol taxation impact your State's share? I am told it will be dramatic for some States. Should the EPW Committee's funding tables not be updated to reflect any and all changes so that we all know the real impact of what we are being asked to vote on?

What affect will provisions in a potential managers' amendment have on your State's funding? Last Friday, on this floor, the chairman of the committee announced that Members' staff should bring all of their amendments to the committee staff on Saturday to determine if they will be incorporated into the managers' amendment. Today, it was announced that the EPW Committee staff met with 10 Members' offices over the weekend. The Democratic bill manager announced this afternoon that 34 amendments have been accepted by the managers. What amendments are being accepted? I am sure we will know when we read the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Should we not all be informed? Clearly, the managers' amendment needs to be made available for review prior to us being asked to vote on it. And will the EPW Committee distribute tables showing the impact of any funding changes that will occur under the managers' amendment? Again, we should all want to know exactly what is being proposed and how it will impact our State's funding.

I strongly support a long-term reauthorization of the Nation's surface transportation programs and understand the vital nature of this funding to our States. This legislation only comes before the Senate every 6 years. I urge my colleagues to start asking some questions and ensure that they fully understand how the safety legislation would impact their State before it is allowed to pass the Senate.

We also have been told that at some point in the next few days, before we vote cloture on this bill, we will add a "slimmed down" energy bill to the highway bill. Now, I will freely admit—in fact, I will testify to the fact—that many times in our Nation's Capital we either are immune to, or insensitive to, the concerns of the American people. Here we are looking at massive deficits, massive overspending, massive growth of Government, unseen in the history of this country, and what are we going to do? We are going to add a "slimmed down" energy bill.

I understand that it has gone from $31 billion to $18 billion or $13 billion—you know, only in the teens of billions of dollars. This is a remarkable exercise. Adding an energy bill that was basically rejected—thank God—by this Senate, because of its hooters, looters, and polluters provisions, and now we are going to stick it on to the highway bill.

What does the energy bill have to do with the highway bill? Nothing. Do we have no shame? Is there no embarrassment whatsoever about the way we are doing business around here?

Madam President, I will continue to struggle and fight to see that for these 19 States, the percentage of what they are getting, as opposed to what they donate, is also important, as opposed to the 31 States which will be donating, and that we try to correct this inequity. Really what we should do is have a 1-year extension of the existing legislation and go back at this again next year. I think that would probably be of benefit to the taxpayers of America, who are deeply concerned about our overspending.

I also point out that I think the attention of the President of the United States is on this issue. I have heard—not directly but indirectly—that he would contemplate a veto of this legislation. I can think of no single act that might be more important or popular with the American people than for him to veto this bill, because at least the funding should come out of users fees, which was the fundamental principle behind the original highway bill.

If this Congress, in its wisdom, because we need more money for highways, thinks we need to increase the gas tax, I think that is a subject for discussion and debate. The American people are getting a little weary of this smoke and mirrors of passing a $400 billion Medicare prescription drug bill and finding out within weeks that it is $130 billion more expensive, to see our deficit skyrocket from surpluses of several trillion dollars and deficits of several trillion dollars. And no one—no one—no economist believes we are going to have the deficit within the next several years because, guess what, Madam President. We are going to be coming back—among other overspending, including this one—we are going to be coming back next year for another emergency supplemental for our operations in Iraq which will probably be in the range, at minimum, of about $50 billion.

I am hopeful that the American people will call a halt to this overspending. I am hopeful that the American people, particularly in these 31 States, will recognize that for every dollar in taxes they are paying when they go to the fuel pump, they are getting less than that back because it is being funneled through Washington, DC, to the benefit of States for which no rational argument can be made that it would be more beneficial to them than other States, including those that are experiencing very rapid growth.

I will continue, as some of my colleagues will, as long as we can to prevent the passage of this legislation. It is not only our obligation to our individual States that are not getting their money back for the funds they send, but also to all the taxpayers of America who are being victimized by this back-room, porkbarrel spending process which is really remarkable.

Again I want to show my colleagues, in 1956, this was the highway bill, and now we all know what rests on our desks.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The assistant Democratic leader.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I was in this Chamber just a few days ago singing the laurels of my friend from Arizona and saying what a fine man I thought he was, what great work he did on campaign finance reform. I was basically talking about my deep respect and admiration for the senior Senator from Arizona.

Having said that, it does not mean I have to agree with everything he says. I have to say, with the deepest respect, that on this issue he is simply wrong.

There are certain things we have to do in this country that are logical and, over the long term, make a great deal of sense. We have a national highway transportation system started by President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The simple fact that the interstate system has been completed, meaning all of the interstate system is finished, all the connecting points have been made in this great puzzle, does not mean we have obligations that cease with highways in this country.

We not only have a national highway transportation system, we also have a national security system. The State of Nevada contributes greatly to the security of this country. We have Nellis Air Force Base, which is the largest and most important fighter training center in the world for our Air Force. We have in the northern part of the State the Fallon Naval Air Training Center, which is the most important part of the fighter training facility for our U.S. Navy. It is so important. People in that desert learn to fly landing on carriers.

We started in Nevada the great work that has been done on unmanned vehicles, military vehicles, the drones, at Indian Springs. We store thousands of tons of ammunition at Hawthorne Ammunition Depot. People from all over the country—the State of North Carolina, the State of Arizona, the State of Vermont, the State of Oklahoma, all over the country—contribute to taking care of those military facilities. The State of Nevada cannot afford to do it all. The taxpayers in Nevada do not pay for those bases even though there is a cyclical spinoff that is important to the State of Nevada. The State of Nevada depends on the American taxpayers to make sure those civilian and military employees at those most important bases are taken care of.

I am the only Member who is in the Chamber who is on the Appropriations Committee. When we work for military construction projects at Nellis Air Force Base, Fallon, and other bases I mentioned, those construction projects are paid for by American taxpayers. People from all over the country make their tax payments. It comes to this Congress, and it is decided that Nellis Air Force Base needs new hangars or needs to buy some new land so that the people around the base are not bothered. That is all paid for by American taxpayers. It doesn't come equally from Nevada. The Congress does not say: As soon as you get enough money in taxes to come from the State of Nevada, we will build that new hangar for the F-20s. That isn't how it works. The same applies to our National Highway System.

I am disappointed that the staff of the good Senator from Arizona did not at least listen to what I said. Senator INHOFE said, Senator JEFFORDS, and Senator BOND said last Monday. I talked at that time about how this bill is so much more fair than bills in years past.

Just a few years ago, there were some States that were only able to keep 75 cents out of every dollar they contributed into the highway trust fund for their own States. The rest of it went to other places. But a decision was made, and it was not an easy decision—the Senator from Arizona knows around here you count votes, and when you have enough votes to get something passed, you pass it. In years past, people counted votes around here. When they found they could get to 60 votes, sometimes 51, the legislation was jammed through this body. That is why some States wound up not getting very much on the money they paid into the highway trust fund.

When the Senator from Arizona talks about this being pork—and we have talked about that here quite a bit—this bill is basically paid for by the highway trust fund. It is paid for by the fact of when people go to buy a gallon of gasoline, they put money into a trust fund, and we are using those moneys now to distribute among the States. We were a little bit short to cover everything that needed to be done in this bill, so in conjunction with the majority and the minority and members of this administration, we said, we are not going to raise any taxes but we are going to readjust some of the taxes that are already in existence, and we did that to make up a small part of our highway bill.

To talk about pork and people are sick of money being spent—I didn't vote for the Medicare bill. I agree with him, that was a bad deal. You cannot come out here with one big paintbrush and paint everything the same. Why is this country in such deep trouble with deficit? It has very little to do with domestic discretionary spending. We could today eliminate the FBI, close all the prisons in the country, close the Department of Agriculture, Environmental Protection Agency, close the Congress, close the Supreme Court, close the Executive Office of the President, and we would still be in deficit. We simply do not have enough money coming into the Government to cover the expenses. Domestic discretionary spending—you can eliminate it all, and we still could not balance the budget.

The fact is, because of the tax cuts that have taken place over the years, we don't have enough money coming in to cover this. That is why last year we had a budget deficit in excess of $500 billion. This next year will be higher than that. It is not domestic discretionary spending. Especially don't pick on the highway trust fund, don't pick on the highway bill.

From everything I have understood, all of the President's statements about not liking the highway bill have nothing to do with the Senate version of the bill. It is what they are talking about doing in the House. They want to spend more money than what we are spending. The President has not directed any of his comments to the Senate version of the bill, as far as I know, and I think I pretty much know.

I know the good Senator from Oklahoma was on Fox News today explaining that point.

Mr. McCAIN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. REID. I will yield for a question.

Mr. McCAIN. I think it is well known that the President sent over three criteria, one of which was funding has to come strictly from the trust fund and not from general revenues. It is well known. It is published everywhere. I am sorry the Senator from Nevada missed it.

Mr. REID. Was that a question?

Mr. McCAIN. Yes.

Mr. REID. I am sorry. I missed the question.

Mr. McCAIN. Does the Senator know that the President sent over very explicit principles concerning the bill?

Mr. REID. Absolutely. I would respond to my friend, yes. I have been in on the negotiations, yes. This is not something that has taken place over the last 2 weeks. This committee—Senator INHOFE, Senator JEFFORDS, Senator BOND, and Senator REID has spent months working on this bill. Of course, the administration was in on every one—not every one of them but a lot of those conversations. Yes, we originally wanted a bill much bigger than this one, but because of the pressure we got from the White House and other places we have the bill now the number that it is.

So I absolutely have followed this very closely. This bill is extremely important. This is the fourth or fifth highway bill I have worked on.

Before I was interrupted, I was talking about how much better this bill is than the bills in the past when States gave away 25 percent of the money that came into their States. It was determined, when the so-called four managers started this, what we would like to do with legislation. What we wanted to do was to try to work it out so that every State of the 50 States would get 95 cents out of every dollar they put into the trust fund.

Keep in mind this was a big leap forward because some States were getting less than that. Let me just briefly go over, so that people who are watching this—staffs, Senators—understand how difficult this bill has been. Let's go back to the bill of 1982 called the Surface Transportation Assistance Act. This bill established the mass transit account of the highway trust fund. What this is all about is a determination was made to do everything we could do to keep people off of our highways, which saves the highway trust fund money. Therefore, we would work to help with mass transit because if we had good bus service, if we had monorail like we have in Las Vegas, if we have subways like we have in various places, including Washington, DC, it keeps people off the streets and saves us money out of the highway trust fund. So that was the first time we established that. That was in 1982, the first year the Senator from Arizona and I came to Congress.

It contained an 85-cent minimum return provision, meaning that all of those States were getting in the seventies before they would get a minimum of 85 cents for every dollar they put into the trust fund. The Federal gas tax was increased from 4 cents to 9 cents back in 1982. So that took care of that bill.

In 1987, this was a difficult year. That year President Reagan vetoed our bill. We had to override the President's veto. We did that. We did it by one vote in the Senate and they overrode it by a significant number in the House. It was a good bill. It was a bill that changed the speed limit above 55 miles per hour. It included a provision requiring States to be more concerned about the environment as they were doing the road work.

Then 1991 was the first so-called ISTEA bill, Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act. Earlier, all of us talked about the importance of Senator Moynihan and Senator CHAFEE and having a highway program in this country that was reflective of the changes to the Interstate Highway System that had been constructed. What we did in the 1991 act was create the CMAQ; that is the Congestion Mitigation Air Quality Program. This was extremely important so that there would be transportation conformity, air quality. With the Interstate System largely complete, as I indicated, ISTEA shifted the Federal program from capital construction to focus on people and goods movement. There were a lot of things we looked at in that bill that simply had not been looked at before. We realized just building new roads was not the answer to all of our highway problems, our congestion problems, our transportation problems in the country. We came to the realization that we talked a lot about that the whole country suffers when there is a traffic jam.

Millions of gallons of fuel are wasted as cars sit and idle. They are the most inefficient when they idle. We also came to the realization, talked a lot about it, that when people are stuck in traffic they can no longer be productive workers. They cannot deliver their goods. They cannot be on their computers at work. They cannot be going to court. They cannot be taking care of their patients. When traffic is stopped, it stops people from being productive. So we talked about that in the 1991 ISTEA bill.

We also expanded the transportation decisionmaking process to include local officials, and even citizens.

Now, in 1998, we did TEA–21 which continued the basic policy structure established in ISTEA. The reason that was important, from 1982 to 1998 we had not changed the minimum requirements States would receive. Six years ago when we took this bill up we said every State will get 90.5 percent of the money they put into a program. That was a big step forward involving a changing of formulas and billions of dollars changed. We did that. We thought it was fair.

In the bill we are taking up this year, we have even gone further. We have said it is important that after we pass this legislation, States at the end of this bill will get 95 percent of what they put in.

My friend from Arizona is right; States that are getting 90.5 percent now would rather get 95 percent tomorrow rather than at the end of this 6-year period. But we are moving this ball down the line toward the goal line, and I think we are scoring a touchdown. Even though the Senator from Arizona talks about how bad this bill is and how he does not like it because of all the pork in it, I do not know what his definition of pork is. I really have some trouble understanding that.

This is a highway bill. There is some money spent for doing work on bridges. As was stated just a few days ago by the Senator from Florida, actually 29 percent of all bridges in this country are substandard. What we have done in this bill, S. 1072, is to try to make sure there is growth among the core programs of this bill, and we have created a new program which is called the safe routes to school program. This has been accepted across the country as being important. We believe children should walk and ride bicycles to school as much as they can. In some places they cannot do that because the traffic patterns are such that they cannot. So part of this money would be spent building bicycle paths and in effect making it easier for children to walk and ride to school.

This reduces the rate of return gap between donor and donee States. So I think we are doing the right thing in this bill. As I indicated. I cannot envision why my friend from Arizona complains about this being pork. It is a highway bill. Is building a highway something that is bad? Is repairing an outdated, dangerous bridge bad? I do not think so. Is trying to improve air quality while doing construction bad? I do not think so. So I do not know why my friend from Arizona is so angry and is talking about all of these bad things. This is a good bill.

As I indicated, the situation in dealing with our national defense system it is not based upon how much money a State pays into a program. It is based on where we need the defense program. Using the theory of my friend from Arizona, what would the State of Idaho do? Idaho is a big State. It is a bridge State. It helps one get to California. If they only got back the money they paid into the program, the roads in Idaho would be a mess. What about Wyoming? What about South Dakota? What about North Dakota? What about Alaska? If one takes off from Seattle and goes to Miami, that is how big the State of Alaska is. Now, they do not have any people there. They do not pay much money into the gas fund. They need help. Their roads are very difficult to maintain.

Wyoming also has no people in it, basically. My friend from Arizona wants Wyoming to get the money they pay into the program, and that is all? This is the United States of America. We are a central whole divided among self-governing parts, and we have a central government that helps make these States not independent, saying every penny they pay into the tax system is all they get out. It will never work that way.

My friend from Arizona, as much as I respect and understand what great contributions he has made to the country, on this debate has added nothing. He has added nothing. He is just off base. I don't know how else to say it.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. REID. I will be happy to yield.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I would like to take you back to when the highway program was started by President Eisenhower. As I remember, one of the big concerns at that time was the inability of this Nation to defend itself, some real problems that were created for the defense of this Nation, because the highway system from East to West and North to South was so poor that in the event we did get an invasion in different areas, we would have little or no chance to get the troops there and mobilize them on the scene. We recognized at that time we had serious defense problems unless we improved the infrastructure of the United States. Am I correct in my understanding of that?

Mr. REID. I would say, through the Chair to my friend from Vermont, yes. Major Eisenhower was asked to bring a caravan of military vehicles across the country. He did it, but it was not easy because the roads were impassable on occasions. The people in the convoy had to work on roads as they came across the country. This young officer decided at the time if he ever had the ability to change the condition of the highways in our country, he would do it.

Lo and behold, Eisenhower is elected to be President of the United States and one of the first things our Republican President does is to propose this program that is loaded with pork, that builds roads. President Eisenhower is responsible for the Interstate Highway System more than any other person, and he did it because it met the needs of this country.

As we said, the actual construction of the roads has been completed. One of the last places it was done was in the State of Nevada. Actually it was in California, but it connected Mesquite, NV with St. George, UT. But they had to go through this terrible hard rock to finish the Interstate Highway System. It took a long time and it was extremely expensive to do that, but there were a few little places like that which hung on for years until we could say we completed the system. We did that. Now we have come up with programs that are so important. There are roadways in the country that are just as important as the Interstate Highway System. That is why we have a program, the National Highway System. What this talks about is the offshoots of the Interstate System.

I have talked about this on the floor today. To get to my hometown of Searchlight is not easy to do. There are a couple of ways you can get there. But this bill takes into consideration places such as Searchlight, NV. They are entitled to good roads also. You are not entitled to good roads just because you are on the interstate system.

This bill has gone such a long way to making the playing field more level. I commend my friend from Vermont and my friend from Oklahoma. We didn't have to do this. We could have gotten enough votes to pass this legislation without raising it to 95 percent at the end of this bill. But it was believed by the committee we should do that, that we would raise every State to a minimum of 95 percent. We have done that. It was hard to do, but it benefits a lot of States and certainly the American people and makes a system that is easier to explain and understand.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Do we not have other problems, in the sense of trying to move freight across the country and making the highways safe? We took the intermodal transportation systems we had, and a lot of that takes funds we would normally use, is that not true? Mr. REID, yes. That is why it was called intermodal transportation system—ISTEA.

The reason, as I said before, is we learned a few bills ago that just simply pouring more asphalt is not the way to solve all the problems in this country. What this bill takes into consideration is ways to more efficiently move people and products across our country. We have done the best we can on this.

Again, I don't see how this, in any form or fashion, can be pork. This is different than our regular appropriations bills. I think people are overly critical of those, but this is not even in the same category.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I also go back to some of Senator Moynihan's concerns years ago. Now looking at what is going on in China and other places, with the development of intermodal systems or the ability to travel at much faster rates of speed, to move—in their case—millions of people who want to travel, is that not also something we are trying to look at, trying to make sure we will not lose our position in the world with respect to our transportation methodology?

Mr. REID. Yes. When I served in the House of Representatives, I was on the Foreign Affairs Committee. I was dumbfounded. We have all this surplus food and we would take it to other continents, for example, to Africa, and the food would never get where it was supposed to go. Why? Simple. There was no way of hauling it to the places where it was needed. They had an insufficient transportation program in many of these countries. People were starving to death and they couldn't get the food where it was needed.

We don't have anything like that, but it does illustrate why we have to have the ability to move things easier. Each year that goes by, we have to make it easier because we have competition around the world. The more people who are tied up in traffic, in trucks and trains and in personal vehicles, the less competitive we will be. That is what this bill is all about.

For my friend to suggest let's just extend this for a year, come back and look at it again—we have already done that once. The State of Nevada and the other 49 States were grousing when we did that. Why? Because these highway programs, many of them, are multiyear programs. If they can't enter into a multiyear contract, it wastes a lot of money. It wastes money. Something that would have cost $3 million, if we extend this now for an extra year, by the time we finish it could wind up costing $6 million, twice as much as it ordinarily would cost. Without what we have in this bill, we would get a lot less product. Extending this bill for a year's time is not the way to go.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Also, isn't this a job creation bill and is this not a time when this Nation is in dire need of improving the employment of people who desire to have work?

Mr. REID. The former majority leader and minority leader of the Senate, the distinguished junior Senator from Mississippi, was on the floor today and that is one of the things he talked about.

We talk about job creation. Here it is actually taking place. This bill will be responsible for hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of jobs in this country—millions of jobs. For every $1 billion we spend in infrastructure, we create 47,000 jobs.

In addition to those 47,000 jobs we will create spending $1 billion here, the spinoff of this, according to Senator FRIST, the majority leader of the Senate, is $6.2 billion that flows from that. This bill is a win-win for everyone.

I am at a loss as to why my friend from Arizona would come and try to throw this into the same pot as: Boy, we are spending too much money around here. This is like Medicare.

It has nothing to do with that. These moneys come from the highway trust fund with the exception, which we have already acknowledged, that some moneys are coming from the reshuffling of taxes that are already in existence. There are no new taxes.

I hope the ship is not tilted even a little bit from these statements made by my distinguished friend from Arizona because they should be accorded very little weight.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Madam President, I appreciate the contributions of the Senator in helping us better understand the need for and also the great benefits of this legislation. I am sure when Members go to a vote—if we ever get to a vote—we will overwhelmingly accept the Senator's concept of what should and could be done. I appreciate what the Senator has done to make this bill as good as it is.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I close by saying again I want the Senator from Vermont and the Senator from Oklahoma to understand how much I appreciate their work on this legislation. We have to keep our eye on the prize. This is, as Senator LOTT said, probably the most important piece of legislation we will pass all year. He said that an hour ago, and he is absolutely right. This could be the most important legislation we pass all year to stimulate the economy, to create jobs, to help States become and remain competitive, and to ease traffic burdens and congestion which we have throughout our country.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Madam President, I would like to make one further statement. The Senator from Arizona indicated we dramatically changed the highway formula. The bill reported out of the EPW Committee, in fact, does not change the underlying formulas for interstate bridges, national highways, and air quality. The only change we made was to increase the return to donor States while ensuring growth to each and every State. The EPW Committee wanted to put forth a bill that achieved fair balance and growth in every State. As in all of our national programs, we direct resources in our bill to the 50 States in order to maintain a national system. If we only sent funds to programs on a State-by-State basis, and then based it only on the ratios of the taxes paid from each State, we would be balkanized and disunified.

I believe our bill is fair, balanced, equitable, and national in scope. As States grow, donor States grow. Every State is equipped to carry the share of the burden it is supporting on the national transportation system.

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, I believe it is always very difficult when we get a complicated formula. We have been talking about how complicated the formula is when you take into consideration the growth of States. We are dealing with low-population States. We have a floor. We have donor States and donee States. But the Senator from Arizona is right when he said we actually have more donor States than we had under TEA-21. The disparity amount is far less between the donor and donee States. We are calculating that now. I think the point needs to be answered, and I think we are going to be prepared to do it.

A State such as New York, for example, has gone from $1.25—in other words, $1.25 for every dollar that has been put in—down to 99.75. That is down to getting back everything they have put in, but it is dropping down substantially from the amount in the previous bill.

I have looked at States to try to defend myself in being fair on this. If you look at TEA-21—that was Senator Moynihan, Representative Schuster, and Senator Chafee—Moynihan's State went up to $1.25; Schuster, $1.20; Chafee, $2.16, and mine—and I am chairman of the committee—is only going to go up to $.95. And we are still going to be a donor State. I think that should demonstrate we are being fair on this.

To suggest that Colorado is getting a raw deal, they have the highest rate of return of any State. But formulas are complicated. I am not critical of the Senator from Arizona. There will be others down here who do not want this bill to pass, and it might not have anything to do with the formula. No one can argue that this formula is the only fair formula we have.

How many times on the floor of the Senate in previous years have Members waited until they got 60 votes and took care of 60 Members and then turned around and not cared what happens to the rest? We don't do that. It would be easy if we did that. We talk about countervotes, and go back and get it passed.

As far as the Finance Committee, I think they have done a good job. They don't have their final product out. But I know the criteria on which they are working, and I am very proud of Senator GRASSLEY and Senator BAUCUS for the work they have done. It might be that there is some money being taken out of the general fund which is being put back into the highway trust fund. But that is replacing money that came out of the highway trust fund which went into the general trust fund. In one fell swoop, $8 billion went out of the general fund. These are raids on the highway trust fund.

I believe this is a moral issue. If a State pays the money, they anticipate that money being paid because they use their roads. It is going to go into road maintenance and road construction and bridge construction.

Our State of Oklahoma is still number 50 in condition of bridges. There is a lot to be done all around the country. There will be some people who do not like this bill for reasons having nothing to do with formula. But you can always take a formula and pick it apart and make it sound unfair. This is not unfair. This is a fair way to approach it. I believe it is real equity.

As I say, we are now calculating this. The States that went from a donee status to a donor status are a very small amount. But it is closing that disparity between the donee and donor States. This is precisely what we have been trying to do.

If the Senator from Nevada and the Senator from Vermont were talking about job values in this bill—look at any State and you can see the job opportunities. There is not one piece of legislation we are going to be dealing with during this entire year which is going to have the effect on jobs this is going to have. Pick out any State. You can see the total amount of new jobs. It is close to 3 million jobs—and job opportunities. We have a jobs chart, and then we have a jobs opportunity chart. We know there will be construction jobs. We know that is going to happen. But keep in mind every time you hire someone to do more construction, that person is also going to go out and buy more goods and services. They will have to manufacture more, and that is going to employ more people. We have calculated that. That is a very accurate figure.

I know there are a lot of Members who are going to be opposing this because they may not like some of the freight provisions. Perhaps their States are not treated in a way that other States are treated because they do not happen to be a poor city or they do not happen to be a terminal city. Nonetheless, I think Senator REID made a good statement when he said this is not just one State but it is the United States of America.

Again, on the particular State of Arizona, that is a 40-percent increase, which I think is very fair. In fact, that is a greater increase than the average increase States have.

Let me say to the Senator from North Dakota that he has been very kind in working into our schedule at times when we were not working on the highway bill. I do appreciate it very much.

AMENDMENT NO. 2276

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I have just informed the staff of the managers of the bill that I intend to offer an amendment. I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. DORGAN] proposes an amendment numbered 2276.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To modify the penalty for nonenforcement of open container requirements)

At the appropriate place insert the following:

SEC. 1409. OPEN CONTAINER REQUIREMENTS.

Section 154 of title 23, United States Code, is amended by striking subsection (c) and inserting the following:

"(c) TRANSFER OF FUNDS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary shall withhold the applicable percentage for the fiscal year of the amount required to be apportioned for Federal-aid highways to any State under each of paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of section 104(b), if a State has not enacted or is not enforcing a provision described in subsection (b), as follows:

| "For: | The applicable percentage is: |
|---|---|
| Fiscal year 2008 | 2 percent. |
| Fiscal year 2009 | 2 percent. |
| Fiscal year 2010 | 2 percent. |
| Fiscal year 2011 and each subsequent fiscal year | 2 percent. |

"(2) RESTORATION.—If (during the 4-year period beginning on the date the apportionment for any State is reduced in accordance with this subsection) the Secretary determines that the State has enacted and is enforcing a provision described in subsection (b), the apportionment of the State shall be increased by an amount equal to the amount of the reduction made during the 4-year period.".

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, this amendment very simply deals with the question of open containers of alcohol in automobiles and moving vehicles on the roadways. Some perhaps will not believe this, but there are some locations in this country where it is still legal to put one fist around the neck of a bottle of whiskey, use the other hand to put the key in the ignition, and then with a hand on the steering wheel and a hand on a bottle of whiskey drive off down the road. And it is perfectly legal. Some would say that can't be. Yes. It is. It is the case. In some parts of this country, you can't be drunk while you drive, but you still can drink while you drive, and you are perfectly legal.

I don't think there is any intersection in any part of this country where you or your family or your neighbors ought to meet a vehicle, an automobile, that is being driven by someone who is drinking alcohol, in a circumstance where it is legal for them to drink alcohol while meeting you at that intersection. That is unforgivable, in my judgment. I have been trying, I suppose for 10 or 12 years, to get this done. I offer this amendment again. It simply says to the States: You must have a prohibition on open containers of alcohol in State law. If not, you lose 2 percent of your highway funds. And for up to 4 years you can get the funding restored if you pass the prohibition, but you must have a prohibition of open containers that meets the Federal requirement.

We have that federal requirement. I was instrumental in getting it passed into law. It says you must have a prohibition on open containers of alcohol, and if you do not, some of your highway money goes to hazard mitigation. So we have 36 States that have actually passed statutes that prohibit open containers of alcohol; 14 States have not passed statutes that meet this test. A number of them still get the same amount of highway money, but because money is fungible, they use it for hazard mitigation and use the money on the other side and there is no pain involved at all.

The result is that we have States in this country where it is, one, legal, or, two, illegal but not enforced, where people are driving while they are consuming alcohol. I don't think it ought to be the case anywhere in America for it to be legal to drink and drive.

Every 30 minutes someone receives a call in this country that their loved one has been killed due to a drunk driver. I received that call at about 10:30 one evening, a moment I will never forget. My wonderful mother was killed by a drunk driver. She, like so many others, was driving down the street 30 miles an hour, coming from the hospital at 8 o'clock at night, and a drunk was coming in the other direction, witnesses say at speeds between 80 and 100 miles per hour, in a high-speed police chase, and ran into my mother's car and she was killed.

This carnage on America's highways that is caused by someone drinking and driving is not some mysterious illness or disease for which we do not know the cure. We know what causes this, and we know how to stop it. The way to stop it is to say to people all across this country: You cannot drink and drive. Just that simple. You just cannot do it. Yet there are still States in this country in which it is legal to drink and drive. And there are other States in which it is legal, if the driver does not drink, that other passengers in the car can have open containers of alcohol.

It is long past the time for us to stop it. We have passed legislation that tries to coax the States into doing this, and many have complied by passing legislation that prohibits open containers of alcohol. Now I say let's go the next step, to say to the States: It does not matter where you are driving in this country. We expect, as policymakers, never to have to meet someone at an intersection where the driver or the passengers in that car are drinking, and doing so legally. We know better than that.

Again, every 30 minutes someone receives a call that some member of their family was killed by a drunk driver. That simply means that someone took a drink of alcohol, took too much alcohol, got drunk, got behind the wheel, and turned the automobile into an instrument of murder. We can do better than that in this country. I suggest this piece of legislation is long overdue.

It is interesting to note that the States that do not have a prohibition of open containers of alcohol on the books have alcohol-related fatalities that are higher than the States that do have that prohibition. So the evidence exists that the prohibition works.

It is true that I grew up in a State that is not going to be affected by this because North Dakota has never allowed anyone to have an open container of alcohol in the vehicle. I grew up understanding you do not do that; no one ought to do that. If you are old enough to drink and you want to drink and it is legal for you to drink, you do not drink in a vehicle. There are places for you to drink—in your home or perhaps in an establishment somewhere, but not in a vehicle, not in a car.

It is also the case that those States that have prohibitions on open containers of alcohol have a lower rate of hit-and-run accidents. That is a fact. The Department of Transportation has that information. It is just common sense for a State to say to people, you cannot do this, No. 1, by law; and, No. 2, in enforcing the law, you will have fewer deaths as a result of drunk drivers.

Let me finally say something about an organization called Mothers Against Drunk Driving. It was not too many years ago that a drunk driving charge by the neighbor had others giving him kind of a knowing wink and a nod and a grin and a pat on the back, saying: Well, tough luck, Charlie; you got caught. Not anymore. Now it is serious business. Drunk driving is not a joking matter. Do you know what changed that? Mothers Against Drunk Driving—all across this country, that organization, started by mothers who had lost children and lost loved ones to drunk drivers and decided they were going to make a difference. They went statehouse to statehouse, capital to capital, and they put in place some tough laws. But it is still not enough. I am pleased to say Mothers Against Drunk Driving have supported what I am trying to do in the Senate today for some long while.

They have made a difference. We can help them make an even greater difference by passing this amendment and saying to the States: We are not fooling around. This is serious business. This is life or death for thousands of people.

As I indicated previously, I have offered this amendment prior to this time, I suppose on three or four other occasions. Each time I have offered the amendment, I have been told: Those sanctions are too tough. So they got changed, so that it attempts to coax the States to do the right thing. But the fact is, coaxing is not enough. This Congress, this Senate, ought to say to every State in this country, ought to say to every State, reflecting every jurisdiction, there should be not one corner, not one highway in this country, in which it is legal for people to drink and drive at the same time. That is the policy that ought to come out of this Senate.

A mandate? It is a mandate, no question about that. We propose a number of mandates from time to time on a bill such as this. It is not a mandate that will hurt any State. No State will lose money if only the States decide as a matter of common sense that in their State it shall never be appropriate and never be legal for people to have an open container of alcohol in the vehicle, it shall never be allowed in their State for people to be able to drink and drive simultaneously.

People will shake their heads and say it cannot possibly be the case that that would exist today, but it is, long after the time that should have been changed in some little corners of this country.

That is the amendment I offer. I know my colleagues from Oklahoma and Vermont have pleaded with people to come and offer amendments. I hope they will approve this in 5½ or 6 seconds, but perhaps it will require more discussion because, as is always the case, I understand, there are some who have heartburn when I propose a significant mandate. And this mandate is 2 percent of highway funds, although no State, in my judgment, would ever lose it and no State need ever lose the highway funds if only they decide, as we have decided, that it ought not be permissible to drink and drive at the same time anyplace in this country and it ought not be permissible to have an open container of liquor in a passenger vehicle on America's highways.

That is a devastatingly simple concept and one that I hope before we finish this highway bill will be approved by this Senate.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, first, I say to the distinguished manager and chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, on which I have been privileged to serve some 16, 18 years, I commend him for his diligence and commitment to try to get this highway bill through the Senate and hopefully enacted into law. I had much the same responsibility some 6 years ago. I know the complexity of this particular piece of legislation.

I have worked with the distinguished chairman and the distinguished Senator from Missouri in the preparation of this particular measure. It is badly needed by America. I hope we can work our way through this situation.

I send to the desk an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CORNYN). The amendment is already at the desk.

Mr. WARNER. I address the distinguished manager of the bill and ask unanimous consent to have this amendment called up and possibly agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. INHOFE. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the distinguished manager had the courtesy to advise me that he would object. Given the situation which I think I understand, I would just like to speak to the bill and develop a record for today and hopefully eventual consideration of this amendment in the not distant future can be arranged.

This amendment is cosponsored by the distinguished Senator from New York, Mrs. CLINTON, and my dear friend and colleague, the Senator from Ohio, Mr. DEWINE. It is an amendment to increase our national seatbelt use rate to some 90 percent. This amendment is identical to the text of legislation I introduced last year, S. 1993.

If my colleagues examine the highway bill and what it means to each of our States, our foremost responsibility, in my judgment and in the judgment of many, and in the judgment of the President of the United States, must be to improve highway safety for the driving public.

Today we had a very impressive press conference. I will give further details about it shortly. We must have had a dozen or so representatives who spoke on behalf of their respective organizations endorsing this bill.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a list of organizations endorsing this bill.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, this is a list of 135 organizations across America that advocate their support for this particular piece of legislation.

This chart is an enumeration of those organizations. It is not readable, but the list is in the RECORD for all to see.

Simply by increasing the number of Americans who will buckle up is the most effective step that can be taken to save their lives and the lives of others. That is the single most important step.

I am privileged to serve on this committee, as I said, that has the primary responsibility for reauthorizing TEA-21. The bill addresses, as it should, highway safety measures, such as how to build safer roads or how to use new technologies to improve safety. But—and I underline "but"—statistics show that the greatest measure of safety again to drivers, passengers, and possibly third parties, many of them innocent third parties, not connected with the bill is through the use of the seatbelt. It is remarkable the lives that have been saved through the use of this simple device over the years.

America has about a 79-percent use rate of seatbelts. That has been translated into the saving of tens of thousands of lives and injuries in automobile accidents, but we can do better. Those are the facts. Are we just going to have a standstill or are we going to move forward? Senators CLINTON, DEWINE, and myself think we should move forward with a firmer approach with achievable goals and funding.

We have debated the benefits of seatbelt use on many occasions in this body and elsewhere across America. Whether it is in the town forums we conduct, the town meetings, or on the floor of the Senate, there is always that individual who comes back: Don't tell me what I have to do. What does it matter to you—they will often say, or to any other colleague with whom I have had the privilege to serve—what does it matter to you whether I buckle up? It matters a great deal to me and to all those who share the joys but often the burdens—the increasing burdens—of driving and using our road system and the risks.

Let's take a look. No one disputes that the absence of wearing a seatbelt causes more loss of life and serious injury. Statistics solidify that assumption. The statistics show that the impact associated with a crash, to the extent a driver can maintain control of the vehicle in those fatal seconds, the severity of the crash, and perhaps the loss of life can be reduced significantly by the use of the safety belt. It is as simple as that.

Accidents involving unbelted drivers result in a significant cost. Many people are rushed from the accident scene to various emergency facilities. All of that has the initial cost of the law enforcement and the rescue squads that respond, and eventually the cost to the emergency room or whatever medical facility you might have the good fortune to be taken to hopefully save your life. That does not come free. How well we know that.

There is a cost. It is borne by the local community often or the county or the State. Regrettably, a number of persons who suffer these types of injuries are uninsured. Again, the cost often devolves down on the good old hard-working taxpayers and, in most instances, the taxpayers who otherwise would buckle up.

That is lost time for your mission on the road, be it for business, family, or pleasure. That is lost time in productivity. Behind you are often trucks and other vehicles involved in commerce. That is lost time in delay due to the serious occasion of injuries and accidents from the lack of use of seatbelts. It is simple as that. Often the highway is shut down, and it is just incalculable the inconvenience and cost to others while your safety and perhaps your survivability is attended to more often than not by volunteer fire departments or others who come to the rescue.

The legislation that we three Senators are introducing today will take an important step for the States to adopt either a primary safety belt law or take steps of their own devising to meet a 90-percent seatbelt use rate, not the Warner amendment or the legislative measure put forth by the administration upon which Senator CLINTON and I draw for concepts of certain portions.

The States can decide for themselves—I wish to underline, we are challenging the States to decide for themselves how they achieve a 90-percent goal of the use of seatbelts in their respective States. They could have a far better idea than we have. That is the purpose of this legislation, to move every State to a 90-percent use rate for safety belts.

In a letter dated November 12, 2003, to Chairman INHOFE of the Committee on Environment and Public Works, on which, again, I am privileged to serve, Secretary Mineta states:

> President Bush and I believe that increasing safety belt usage rates is the single—

I repeat, the single—> most effective means to decrease highway fatalities and injuries.

That is explicit and clear. The Secretary goes on in that letter to say:

> . . . the surest way for a State to increase safety belt usage is through the passage of a primary safety belt law.

I have had this debate with Governors, former Governors, even in this Chamber with former Governors. I think they would all say that a primary safety belt law is tough legislation to pass solely on its own in the State legislatures. Those in this Chamber who have been members of State legislatures know best. Those of us who have worked with State legislatures, as I have over the 25 years I have been privileged to be a Senator, I have some idea of how those legislatures operate. Certainly, those who have been Governors—and many of my colleagues in this Chamber have been Governors—know full well the difficulty confronted at the State level in getting this type of law through.

Frankly, it needs the cover, one might say the political cover, the impetus, given by the Congress—that is us, Uncle Sam—of the United States to move that process in the States forward.

So the local politicians can shake their fists at old JOHN WARNER, they can shake their fists, hopefully, at those who will join in passing this legislation and say it is Washington that has done it again—more regulation, more direction. We know the arguments. We have all heard them. But lives and injuries and costs to the community can be saved.

I think quietly, in the hearts of those State legislatures, is the thought that we will improve safety in our State. We will improve the chances of survivability on the roads of our State.

I ask unanimous consent the full text of Secretary Mineta's letter be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. WARNER. As provided in our amendment, States can increase seatbelt use by enacting, as I said, a primary seatbelt law. Everybody knows what a primary seatbelt law is and how it works.

I want to explain the basic laws as shown on this chart. The white State has a primary enforcement seatbelt law. Those are the existing States. The red State needs a primary enforcement seatbelt law. So my colleagues can see the magnitude.

Here is my State, Virginia. Twice now that primary seatbelt law has gone through the legislature up to the point of a final vote, and by one vote only, twice, the General Assembly of Virginia has rejected that primary seatbelt law. That is a clear reason that impetus by the Federal Government can help achieve that one vote and hopefully many more.

Now, let's talk about the mechanics. It means a law enforcement officer can literally stop a vehicle if they observe that the individual is not wearing his or her seatbelt. It is as simple as that. But a State, if they decide not to enact a primary seatbelt law, can, by implementing their own strategies, whatever they may be—and there is a lot of innovation out in the States—that would result in a 90-percent seatbelt use rate. So that is a challenge to the States.

It can be achieved by other means other than having the officers under law be given the right to stop the vehicle when he observes that the driver is not using a seatbelt.

The current national seatbelt use, as I said, is 79 percent. But many States, those that have the primary law, are sometimes at 90 or even above 90, but those that do not have the primary seatbelt law are down somewhere in the 60 percentile. Just think, only 60 percent of the drivers in some States utilize that seatbelt. It is the weight of the primary States that carries the percentile and brings it up to 79 from those States that do not have an effective law. States with their primary safety belt law have the greatest success for drivers wearing seatbelts.

On an average, States with the primary seatbelt law have a 10 to 15 percent higher seatbelt use compared to those with a secondary system. This demonstrates that secondary seatbelt laws are far more limited in their effectiveness than a primary law.

Essentially, the secondary laws say if a law enforcement officer has cause other than a perceived or actual seatbelt violation, namely the driver did not have it buckled, if they have cause to stop that car, for example, for a speeding offense or a reckless driving offense or indeed an accident, and they observe there has been no use of the seatbelt, then in that circumstance, in the course of proceeding to enforce the several laws of that State as regards speeding and reckless driving or whatever the case may be, they can add a second penalty to address the absence of the use of the seatbelt in that State.

Drivers are gamblers, unfortunately, but that is the way it is. They say: Oh, well, don't worry. I will not buckle up—State law does not require it—unless they stop me, and they are not going to stop me today.

It is that gambling attitude that more often than not will cause an accident. Then it is too late.

So we come forward today to build on our national program. We are building on what we did in TEA–21. I was privileged to be on that committee at that time. I was then, as I said, chairman of the subcommittee 6 years ago. I worked with the late Senator John Chafee. What a distinguished and able Senator he was, and those who were privileged to serve with him have fond memories of working with him. He was chairman of the full committee. We drove hard to make progress for the seatbelt laws, and we did it. This chart shows the result.

We basically put aside a very considerable sum of money to encourage States, again, by using their own devices, to increase usage. As a direct consequence of what we did in TEA–21, there has been an 11-percent increase in these 6 years in the use of seatbelts. Now, that is significant, but it could be much greater and stronger.

Sadly, traffic deaths in 2002, just one fiscal year, rose to the highest level in over a decade. It is astonishing. Of the nearly 43,000 people killed on our highways, over half were not wearing their seatbelts. Now, that is a considerable number of individuals. That is according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. In the judgment of the people who responded to the accidents, they considered that 9,200 of these deaths might have been prevented if the safety belt had been used.

Those are the alarming statistics. Automobile crashes are the leading cause of death for Americans aged 2 to 34. Stop to think of that, age 2. That means a child. That means a parent neglected to buckle up the child. Automobile crashes are the leading causes of death for Americans age 2 to 34. That is our Nation's youth. So many of them are in the Armed Forces of the United States. Passage of this will be helpful to the Armed Forces.

Do we have a higher calling in the Congress than to do everything we can to foster the dreams and ambitions and the productivity of our Nation's youth? I think not. And this is one of the most effective means to do it.

Last year, 6 out of 10 children who died in car crashes did not have the belt on; 6 out of 10. That is over half. I plead with colleagues to join me, join with the President of the United States, join with the Secretary who has taken this initiative.

My primary responsibility in the Senate—and this is one of the reasons I got interested in this subject—is the welfare of the men and women of the Armed Forces, as I mentioned. I say to colleagues again, the statistics are tragic. Traffic fatalities are the leading noncombat cause of death for our soldiers, our sailors, our airmen, our marines. They are in that high-risk age category, 18 to 35. I repeat, it is the largest noncombat cause of death.

Someone even took a look at the statistics and totaled the fatalities last year and said that represents in deaths the size of an average U.S. Army battalion. That is a lot of folks. That is one of the principal incentives I have. I cannot think of any reason why we all cannot join behind this effort. That alone is the driving impetus for this Senator.

The time is long overdue for a national policy to strengthen seatbelt use rates. I said a national policy, and that is what this bill represents, either through States enacting a primary seatbelt law of their own conception and devising or passing this law, giving far greater attention to public awareness programs that result in more drivers and passengers wearing safety belts. Our goal is 90 percent for the Nation.

I have been privileged to serve on this committee 17 years and I, together with many others, notably my dear friend, the late chairman, Senator John Chafee, addressed this issue. Our committee is rich in the history of focusing revenue from highway trust funds on effective safety programs. It goes back through many chairmen and members of the Environment and Public Works Committee.

With jurisdiction over the largest share of the highway trust fund, our committee has had the vision to tackle important national safety programs. The legislation before us does provide more funding to help build safer roads. That is a step forward. But it does not have, in my judgment, that provision which represents a step up from what we did in TEA–21, that provision that would represent a recognition for the President's initiative.

The President has taken a decidedly strong initiative to increase the use of seatbelts. It is absent from the bill, and that is why we need a provision, by virtue of this amendment, to strengthen and move forward the position of the Congress on the position of increased use of safety belts on America's highways and roads. That is the purpose of this amendment.

It is just unfortunate that those with reckless intent quickly disregard responsible behavior and drive unbelted at excessive speeds, and many times with the use of alcohol. So no increased dollars for improving road engineering, which is in this bill—and I commend them for that, but that alone cannot defy, in many instances, the type of personal conduct that results in reckless behavior. In other words, engineering can quickly be overcome by the reckless driving, and particularly that associated with alcohol.

Automobiles now come equipped with crash avoidance technologies and are more crashworthy than ever before. But these advances are only a very small part of the solution. In repeated testimony before the Environment and Public Works Committee from the administration, from our States, safety groups, and the highway insurance industry, we are told three main causes of traffic deaths and injury are unbelted drivers, speed, and alcohol.

The formula we have devised in this legislation does have a reduction in the amount which the State receives under the proposed bill that we will consider next year when they fail to achieve the 90 percent safety belt use rate. It is as simple as that. But the formula is patterned directly after the law that is on the books now with respect to the .08 legal blood alcohol content level.

In other words, the formula we have in this amendment is identical, in terms of that what I call inducement—carrot/stick type of legislation—that we did for the .08 legal blood alcohol.

The net effect of this legislation is simply to recognize we are asking the same type of sanction policy with regard to one of the three major causes of death—alcohol—be equated to a second cause of death and injury, and that is the absence of the use of seatbelts, bringing into parallel two of the three principal causes of death and injury on the highways: .08 and mandatory use of seatbelts.

The administration put forward an innovative safety belt program, as I said, under the leadership of the President, and that was a major component of a new core transportation program, the Highway Safety Improvement Program, submitted to the Congress. Our amendments incorporate the administration's bill and include additional incentives for States to increase seatbelt use rates.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD today a deeply moving statement delivered by the representative of the American Medical Association, strongly in support of this legislation, and a letter from the Virginia Association of Chiefs of Police, strongly in favor of this legislation. Of course, the letter to the distinguished chairman, Mr. INHOFE, from the Secretary of Transportation is already a part of the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION,

AMA APPLAUDS LEGISLATION TO PROMOTE SEAT BELT ENFORCEMENT AND SAFETY

AMA SPEAKS AT CONGRESSIONAL PRESS CONFERENCE TO URGE SEAT BELT AMENDMENT PASSAGE

On behalf of the American Medical Association, I'm proud to stand here with Senator Warner in support of enforcing seat belt use. Preventing deaths and injuries on our nation's roadways has been a priority of the AMA for many years. In fact, over the last seven years the AMA has distributed more than 16 million brochures on protecting children in motor vehicles, and just last year we released a physicians' guide to assess and counsel older drivers. Requiring all states to enact a primary enforcement seat belt law or achieve a seat belt use rate of at least 90 percent will help protect Americans on the road.

We know that wearing seat belts saves lives. Over half of the 43,000 people killed on America's highways in 2002 were not wearing seat belts. Tragically, six out of 10 children who died that year in motor-vehicle collisions were also not wearing seat belts. Just taking one moment to buckle-up could make a life-or-death difference to the thousands who needlessly die on our roadways every year.

For those lucky enough to survive a devastating auto crash, the health care costs can be staggering. On average, hospitalization costs for unbelted traffic crash victims are 50 percent higher than for those who buckled-up. The needless deaths and injuries that result from not wearing seat belts cost society an estimated $26 billion annually in medical care, lost productivity and other injury-related costs.

These deplorable statistics are reversible. We can significantly reduce deaths and serious injuries from motor-vehicle crashes by enforcing seat belt use nationwide through a primary enforcement law like the one Senator Warner is now proposing.

In my home state of Michigan, a primary enforcement law has been in effect for three years. In that time, nearly 200 lives have been saved, and over 1,000 serious collisions have been averted because of this change in the law.

As a physician, it is a rare blessing to be in a situation where we can easily identify the solution to a public health threat. Passage of the primary enforcement seat belt law will save lives. It's that simple.

VIRGINIA ASSOCIATION OF CHIEFS OF POLICE,
Richmond, VA, February 9, 2004.

The Virginia Association of Chiefs of Police (VACP) endorses S. 1993, a bill to create incentives for the states to enact primary safety belt laws. In 2002 in Virginia, we had 913 automobile fatalities. Of those 913 fatalities, 438 (62.7%) were not wearing a safety belt. In those 913 fatality crashes, 9,912 injuries were sustained by unbuckled occupants.

Under our current secondary enforcement law, Virginia's front seat safety belt use is 74.6%, which includes drivers and front seat passengers. Research tells us that front seat occupants of vehicles involved in potentially fatal crashes in states with primary safety belt laws have a 15 percentage point higher belt use than persons in states without primary laws.

The VACP supports the passage of primary safety belt laws as a proven tool to increase safety belt usage and reduce serious injuries and fatalities in the event of a traffic crash. Public education and enhanced traffic enforcement efforts have failed to increase Virginia's safety belt usage rate much beyond 75%. States with primary safety belt laws consistently experience safety belt usage rates up to 90%. The VACP believes that the passage of a primary safety belt law in Virginia will increase belt usage and save the lives of countless Virginians.

EXHIBIT 1

THE SECRETARY OF TRANSPORTATION,
Washington, DC, November 12, 2003.

Hon. JAMES INHOFE,

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: With almost 43,000 people dying every year on our nation's highways, it is imperative that we do everything in our power to promote a safer transportation system. The Bush Administration's proposal to reauthorize surface transportation programs, the Safe, Accountable, Flexible and Efficient Transportation Equity Act of 2003 (SAFETEA), offers several bold and innovative approaches to address this crisis.

President Bush and I believe that increasing safety belt usage rates is the single most effective means to decrease highway fatalities and injuries. As a result, SAFETEA's new core highway safety program provides States with powerful funding incentives to increase the percentage of Americans who buckle up every time they get in an automobile. Every percentage point increase in the national safety belt usage rate saves hundreds of lives and millions of dollars in lost productivity.

Empirical evidence shows that the surest way for a State to increase safety belt usage is through the passage of a primary safety belt law. States with primary belt laws have safety belt usage rates that are on average eight percentage points higher than States with secondary laws. Recognizing that States may have other innovative methods to achieve higher rates of belt use, SAFETEA also rewards States that achieve 90% safety belt usage rates even if a primary safety belt law is not enacted. I urge you to consider these approaches as your Committee marks up reauthorization legislation.

While safety belts are obviously critical to reducing highway fatalities, so too is a data driven approach to providing safety. Every States faces its own unique safety challenges, and every State must be given broad funding flexibility to solve those challenges. This is a central theme of SAFETEA, which aims to provide States the ability to use scarce resources to meet their own highest priority needs. Such flexibility is essential for States to maximize their resources, including the funds available under a new core highway safety program.

I look forward to working with you on these critically important safety issues as development of a surface transportation reauthorization bill progresses.

Sincerely yours,

NORMAN Y. MINETA.

Mr. WARNER. I am pleased to say Senator MURRAY has asked to join as a cosponsor and I so request that be noted on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

"WE THE PEOPLE . . ." PROGRAM

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, more than 1200 high school students from across the Nation will come to our Nation's capital this summer to enhance their knowledge and understanding of the history and philosophy of our Nation's most important documents: the Constitution and Bill of Rights. These ambitious students will be participating in the annual national competition of "We the People: The Citizen and the Constitution." This laudable effort, which is federally funded, is the most extensive educational program in the country designed specifically to educate young people about the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights. At a time when a study by the National Association of Educational Progress shows that three-quarters of America's students are not proficient in either American history or civics, the importance of this program is unquestionable.

"We the People . . ." helps our students not only appreciate our constitutional democracy, but it allows them to "participate" in it. Students start with an instructional program where they learn about our Government's primary institutions while they discover the relevance of our Constitution and Bill of Rights to their daily lives. Their lessons then simulate real-life when the students participate in a "Congressional hearing" where they "testify" before a panel of judges. By using the principles and knowledge they've learned in the classroom to role play, these students have the opportunity to delve into and appreciate both historical and contemporary issues facing our Nation.

This program is not just reserved for high school students. "We the People . . ." recognizes that civic education should not wait until the students are almost able to vote. Teachers are encouraged to engage their students in simulated hearings at the elementary and middle school levels. In fact, more than 24 million students and 75,000 educators have participated in the "We the People" program since its inception in 1987. Throughout the years, several of my staff members have served as judges in the State competition.

This year, I am proud to inform the Senate that East Grand Rapids High School will represent Michigan in this prestigious event. These students demonstrated their exceptional command of issues relating to the Constitution and the Bill of Rights in the state competition held in Lansing.

The "We the People . . ." program continues to be one of the best efforts to counteract the feelings of political apathy and cynicism amongst our Nation's youth. I wish the students at East Grand Rapids and all the students across the Nation who will be competing in this year's competition the best of luck. I know my colleagues will join me in recognizing the contributions the "We the People . . ." program has provided to students across the country.

CELEBRATING AFRICAN-AMERICAN HISTORY MONTH

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am pleased to join in commemorating African-American History Month and in recognizing a crucial part of our diversity: the vast history and legacy that African Americans have contributed to the founding and building of our Nation.

In 1915, Dr. Carter Godwin Woodson founded the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, which shortly after its creation, began a campaign to establish Negro History Week. In 1926, the second week of February was chosen to recognize the contributions of African Americans to American society. In 1976, this week of observance was expanded to a month and became African-American History Month.

Each year, the Association, now known as the Association for the Study of African American Life and History, designates a theme for the Black History Month observance. This year's theme, "Before Brown, Beyond Boundaries, Commemorating the 50th Anniversary of Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka" marks one of the most seminal moments in the fight for equal rights in this country—the Supreme Court's May 15, 1954 ruling that "[i]n the field of public education, the doctrine of 'separate but equal' has no place."

It was a ruling that was met with violent resistance and created enormous upheaval. A number of States adopted policies of "massive resistance" seeking to avert compliance with the Court's decision. Many went so far as to adopt resolutions calling for the State Government to interpose itself, parens patriae, between its citizens and the Federal government's efforts to impose desegregation.

But in the years that followed Brown, inspired by the framework for progress that the Court had provided, our civil rights leaders and the movement they created never backed down. They instead redoubled their heroic efforts often in the face of great risk of personal harm.

From the refusal by Rosa Parks to move to the back of a public bus, which ignited the Montgomery bus boycott, to efforts of the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. and many others to secure civil rights and desegregate public facilities, to efforts of the NAACP to clarify and expand the First amendment's protections related to free association, Brown's effects were felt across the Nation and beyond the sphere of public education.

And, of course, Thurgood Marshall—who I should note was born in Baltimore and attended Frederick Douglass High School—was at the center of these efforts. After graduating at the top of his class at Howard Law School, Marshall came back to Baltimore and, after working with NAACP to accomplish the landmark result in Brown led the legal fight thereafter to extend its precedent throughout the civil rights arena. After leaving the NAACP, Marshall put his convictions, determination, and legal prowess to work as a Federal judge, then Solicitor General, and ultimately the first African-American Justice on the Supreme Court. There, he was, as Justice William Brennan remembered him, the "voice of authority . . . the voice of reason . . . [a]nd a voice with an unwavering message: that the Constitution's protections must not be denied to anyone and that the Court must give its constitutional doctrine the scope and sensitivity needed to assure that result."

At the beginning of the last century, our Nation was a vastly different place than it is today. The country was divided along racial lines and racism was accepted and institutionalized. African Americans were not allowed to vote, and the opportunities available to African Americans were few.

Today, thanks to the visions of a few and the sacrifices of many—and in significant part thanks to the lasting effects of Brown—that situation has changed. After much hardship, African Americans have made great strides in many areas and now participate in every sector of our society. Throughout the past 100 years, African Americans have made remarkable contributions to the Nation and the world as mathematicians, scientists, novelists, poets, politicians, and members of the armed services.

Through the lessons and struggles of the last century and the trying first few years of this century, Americans have shown the world how people of all races, colors, religions and nationalities create the fabric of our Nation, a fabric that is richer because of our differences. This month, we honor the special contribution African Americans have made to that fabric.

But there is much work left to be done. When in 1981 the City of Baltimore unveiled a statue to Marshall, the Justice told the gathered crowd "I just want to be sure that when you see this statue, you won't think that's the end of it. I won't have it that way. There's too much to be done." So we take the occasion of African-American History Month to celebrate the steps that we have taken toward equality, but also to remind ourselves of how far we have to go.

HONORING OUR ARMED FORCES

PRIVATE DWAYNE TURNER, 101ST AIRBORNE DIVISION, U.S. ARMY

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President. I rise today to honor the heroic service of Pvt Dwayne Turner, 23, a combat medic in the United States Army, from Indianapolis, IN. Private Turner is a member of the U.S. Army's 3rd Battalion, 502nd Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division, which came under grenade and small arms attack in Baghdad, Iraq on April 13, 2003.

According to U.S. Army Sgt Neil Mulvaney, the convoy was under a heavy amount of fire from Iraqi resistance forces. During the attack, a grenade struck the Humvee in which Private Turner was riding, seriously injuring both his legs with shards of shrapnel. Ignoring his injuries, Private Turner bravely fulfilled his duty as a combat medic, selflessly putting the lives and comfort of others before his own. While treating 18 other soldiers' injuries, Private Turner was shot in the arm and leg before Sergeant Mulvaney had to physically restrain him to administer medical treatment for Private Turner's increasingly severe injuries.

When asked by the Associated Press to reflect upon the events of the attack, Private Turner humbly said, "I don't consider myself a hero at all. I just figured everybody was going to go home and nobody was going to die on my watch." However, BG Frank Hemlock's description of Private Turner's actions seems much more fitting: "He is a bona fide hero. He saved two lives without question and patched up 16 other lives."

In honor of the lives he saved through his unhesitating valor, Private Turner has been awarded the Silver Star, an award earned by nothing less than true sacrifice. May this award stand as a reminder to Private Turner that neither his comrades nor their grateful loved ones will soon forget his heroic actions.

As I reflect on Private Turner's service, I am reminded of a quote by Douglas MacArthur: "The soldier, above all other people prays for peace, for he must suffer and bear the deepest wounds and scars of war." The United States will be eternally grateful for the courage and bravery Private Turner exhibited on the field of battle.

I know that all Hoosiers share my deep sense of pride in Private Turner and all of the men and women of our Armed Forces from Indiana who safeguard our country's freedom. My thoughts and prayers are with him as he continues his recovery and begins to make his new goal to become a civilian physician a reality.

INDIANA STATE TROOPER SCOTT A. PATRICK

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, today I rise to pay tribute to and honor the remarkable life of Scott A. Patrick, an Indiana State Trooper who was killed in the line of duty.

During the early morning of December 22, 2003, Trooper Patrick stopped to assist what appeared to be a stranded motorist. Shortly thereafter, Trooper Patrick was gunned down by the assailant and passed away. He was 27 years old.

Trooper Patrick graduated from Kankakee Valley High School in 1995 with an academic honors diploma. While in high school, Trooper Patrick excelled in football and wrestling, earning numerous awards. Those who knew him remember Trooper Patrick as intelligent, industrious, and kind. He attended the University of Southern Indiana on both academic and carpenter's scholarships. While at USI, Trooper Patrick was active in a variety of sports and was a starting member of the rugby team. He also worked at the university library to supplement his scholarships.

Trooper Patrick met Melissa Clark in 1996 while attending USI. They were engaged in February of 1999 and wed on a July afternoon during the Summer of 2000. In January that same year, Trooper Patrick was offered and accepted his position with the Indiana State Police. He was assigned to the Lowell Post.

Trooper Patrick was a devoted family man who relished his time with loved ones. When he learned that his wife was pregnant, just days before his death, he could not have been more excited and full of joy. May his child be brought into the world and raised knowing that his or her father was a brave, hard-working and loving man who was proud to be a father.

Trooper Patrick was a role model not only for his family, but for all who knew him and whose lives he touched. He dedicated his life to the noblest of causes: his family, his job and keeping others safe.

It is my sad duty to enter the name of Scott A Patrick into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. As Trooper Patrick rests with God in eternal peace, let us never forget the courage and sacrifice he displayed when he laid down his life on December 22, 2003.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO LARRY MYOTT

• Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am pleased to recognize the long and distinguished career of Mr. Larry Myott, one of our Nation's most respected maple syrup specialists and a longtime friend. After nearly three decades with the University of Vermont Extension Service, Larry retired last week. Known by many as "Mr. Maple," Larry has played an integral role in growing the Vermont maple industry into a $220 million a year industry. His educational work with Vermont farmers and his maple syrup promotion efforts have played a key role in expanding markets for producers, allowing more producers to make a living in the maple industry. While Vermont is the largest producer of maple syrup in the United States, Larry's work has transcended the State of Vermont. He has traveled throughout the United State and into Canada to assist maple producers and promote Vermont's maple syrup.

I offer my gratitude for Larry's friendship and his great work on behalf of the State of Vermont's maple industry. I ask that an article on Larry's career be printed in the RECORD.

The article is as follows.

[From the Associated Press]

"MR. MAPLE" RETIRES FROM UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT EXTENSION SERVICE

(By Lisa Rathke)

MONTPELIER, VT.—Larry Myott just got an e-mail from Taiwan asking him when Vermonters "squeeze" sap from their trees.

The inquirer wanted to visit Vermont during the height of the maple season.

Myott, the maple specialist for the University of Vermont Extension Service gets letters from school children, from maple syrup buyers and from producers all over the world. They ask how to store maple syrup, if it's pure and what to do about crystals that form in the syrup.

"I'm often called 'Mister Maple,'" says Myott, 59, who will retire in January after 28 years with the Extension Service. Gov. James Douglas and others will pay tribute to the maple man at a dinner Saturday.

Myott has educated and assisted maple producers across Vermont and promoted Vermont's maple products throughout the world.

He travels to Minnesota, Nova Scotia and Virginia to learn what's new, share his expertise and spread the word about Vermont's products.

"Larry has a love for the maple industry that is hard to surpass," says Jacques Couture, president of the Vermont Maple Sugarmakers Association, who was making maple candy at his farm in Westfield Wednesday. "He's a real promoter of maple syrup, and he's done it actually by promoting maple syrup to helping producers on the educational side.

"It's been a life pursuit for him to see the maple industry by the best it can be."

Myott became the maple specialist in 1988, after serving as Chittenden County Extension agent, and working with vegetable growers and dairy farmers.

And the maple industry today doesn't look anything like it did then.

"Very seldom do you see buckets in the woods any more. You don't see horses anymore," he says from his Ferrisburgh home, where he is recovering from a stroke earlier this month.

Sugaring has grown from a side business for dairy farmers to a year-round profitable operation for large producers, he says.

In 1988 the average producer had 1,000 taps and generated 250 gallons of syrup a year. Ten years later, the average size grew to twice that.

Now a large-scale sugarer might produce as much as 40,000 to 50,000 gallons a year, he says.

New technology such as a system that uses a vacuum to pull sap out of trees; reverse osmosis, which removes water from sap without heat by using a high pressure filter system; and super-efficient evaporators that boil sap with less heat, have made sugaring far more efficient.

Producers have expanded to meet the demand, and prices are now high enough for them to make a living, he says.

"Sugarmakers are able to make a living in the maple business today," he says.

The syrup is also better than it used to be. "The quality has changed tremendously," he says.

And efforts by the state to promote the Vermont image and products and draw tourists have increased sales of maple products.

Vermont sugarmakers made 430,000 gallons of syrup last year, bringing in an estimated $18 million to $20 million, Myott says. According to the Vermont Agency of Agriculture, the entire maple industry generates over $200 million a year.

The annual Maple Festival, a local fair started in 1937 in St. Albans, now draws as many as 50,000 people from around the world, Myott says.

Vermont, the largest producer of maple syrup, is one of only a few states to have a maple specialist. But Myott's reputation stretches far beyond the Green Mountains.

"Because he's articulate, because he writes a lot, because he'll take telephone calls from anyone at anytime. That reputation spans not only Vermont and the region but also internationally," says Gary Deziel, Northwest regional chair of the UVM Extension Service.

Although he's retiring Jan. 30, Myott says he will remain involved in the maple industry. He will continue to write about maple for Farming Magazine, Maple Views, Country Folks Magazine and Country Magazine. And he will always take questions from Taiwan.●

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2003

● Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the need for hate crimes legislation. On May 1, 2003, Senator KENNEDY and I introduced the Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act, a bill that would add new categories to current hate crimes law, sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

On November 14, 2001, Milwaukee resident Pablo Parrilla was charged with first-degree intentional homicide in connection with the death of his lesbian sister's girlfriend, Juana Vega. The shooting occurred when Vega went to the home of her girlfriend's family to reconcile an argument. Instead, Parilla confronted her outside the house and shot her repeatedly. Parrilla apparently told Vega "I'm going to kill you because you are gay" and "because you turned my sister gay."

I believe that Government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act is a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.●

HONORING THE GIRL SCOUTS' WILDERNESS ROAD COUNCIL

● Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, today I take the opportunity to honor the Girl Scouts' Wilderness Road Council for all the work they do to shape Kentucky's young women. This year the Girl Scouts in central and eastern Kentucky are taking on a new challenge with their annual cookie drive. They have started "Operation Milk and Cookies," a program sponsored by the Girl Scouts' Wilderness Road Council that aims to give a box of Girl Scout cookies to families that can't afford them.

The Girl Scouts have always afforded a young women the unique opportunity to enhance her communication and social skills, to develop a strong sense of self, to participate in innovative programs, and to foster her creative side. But by participating in Operation Milk and Cookies, these young women are learning how to be productive and proactive citizens, who will some day have the chance to change the way the world works. They are learning at an early age how important it is to help others that are less fortunate and how to be selfless contributing members to the community.

Mr. President, the citizens of Kentucky are proud to have Girl Scouts' Wilderness Road Council's troops living and learning in their community. Their example of hard work and determination should be followed by all in the Commonwealth. The Girl Scouts' Wilderness Road Council have found a successful way to bring out the best in its young women, and I personally thank the leaders and supporters of this great organization for continually producing strong and bright young women committed to making Kentucky a better place to live.●

HONORING EDWARD N. FRIESZ ON HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

● Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I recognize a North Dakotan who is celebrating a special birthday this weekend. On Saturday, February 14, 2004, friends and family will gather in Mandan, ND to celebrate and honor Edward N. Friesz on his eightieth birthday.

Edward Friesz was born on February 14, 1924 to Adam and Magdalena Friesz on a farmstead near Fellon, ND. The oldest of nine children, Edward worked on his parents' farm before moving to Mandan to live and work. He worked at various places before retiring in 1989 from the Morton County Courthouse.

In 1951, Edward met Elsie Frohlich, a friend and coworker of his sister, Irene. Edward and Elsie were married on September 30, 1953 in Bismarck. Last fall, the couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mark Twain once wrote, "Wrinkles should merely indicate where smiles have been." Edward's greatest joy in life—the origin of many of those smiles—is his family.

Edward and Elsie started their family in 1954 with the arrival of their first child, Delphine. Their family would grow to include three daughters, Delphine, Sharon and Annette, and three sons, Kennard, Gerard and Maynard.

Edward and Elsie are also proud grandparents. They have 10 grandchildren ranging in age from 25 to 1. They include: Trever, Anton, Maria, Elizabeth, Alec, Jakob, Brett, Rachael, Ryan and Adam.

While the family has spread throughout the country, they remain very close. The family comes together for birthdays, anniversaries, holidays and special occasions. Twelve years ago, the family started a new tradition: a summer campout. Armed with tents and campers, sleeping bags and lanterns, the Edward and Elsie Friesz family embark each year on a weekend campout to share food, fun and fellowship.

Over the past 12 years, they have camped in North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota. They have endured rainstorms, thunderstorms, and cold and hot temperatures. As the family has grown, so have the annual campouts. One year, they even designed t-shirts to commemorate the family tradition.

This Valentine's Day, February 14, 2004, the family will get together again this time to celebrate their patriarch's 80th birthday.

HERMAN A. MACDONALD, OREGON VETERAN HERO

• Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, today I rise to honor an Oregon veteran who has gone above and beyond the call of duty in service to his country and to his State. Herman A. "Mac" MacDonald was born in 1929 in Boston, MA and has lived in Oregon since the 1978. Mac's entire life has been dedicated to serving America, its veterans, and citizens.

Mac's military career began shortly after he graduated from high school in 1948, when he joined the United States Coast Guard Reserves while attending Bryant College. After graduation, Mac joined the United States Marine Corps, as an officer. Mac's military career sent him to distant lands to defend America's interests. He served in combat on the main line of resistance in Korea; he was stationed in Virginia, Hawaii, Illinois, California and Japan. He served as the Commanding Officer of Force Reconnaissance at Camp Pendleton. He also served in Vietnam as part of the top-secret Studies and Observation Group, SOG. Along with the team, Mac served with Marine Reconnaissance, Navy SEALS, and the Green Berets.

After Vietnam, Mac was transferred to Marine Headquarters in Washington, DC, where he became a military aide for Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, George Romney. Mac's military background provided Secretary Romney with important insight for policy decisions. Following his service with the Secretary, Mac moved to Toronto, Canada, where he was an instructor at the Canadian Forces Command and Staff College. He returned to the United States in 1976, and retired from the military in 1978. Upon retirement, he had earned a total of 24 ribbons, five of which were personal decorations, in addition to Presidential Unit Citations from the U.S. Army and U.S. Marine Corps.

For Mac, retirement meant a chance to follow a new dream. His compassion for children brought him to the classroom, where he became a teacher. From 1978–1985, Mac taught in the Salem School District in Oregon, where he worked with troubled teenagers. He became the principal of the Woodburn Gervais alternative high school and retired in 1999.

Mac continues to serve veterans today as an advocate for Oregon veterans' organizations. He is also the curator of the Oregon Military Educational Display, a collection of uniforms, medals, and artifacts from various wars throughout history. The items are put on a display for a month each year at the Oregon State Capitol.

Mac has lived in West Salem since 1978 and is proud to call himself an Oregonian. He's been marred to his wife Vi for 46 years and has two grown children, and two grandsons.

For his selfless service to others, and to the United States in times of war, I salute Herman A. "Mac" MacDonald as an Oregon Veteran Hero.•

RUSSELL H. PHELPS III, UNITED STATES NAVY

• Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I rise today with friends and family to recognize the efforts and dedication of CDR Russell H. Phelps III, an outstanding American. Commander Phelps began his military career in 1980 as an Arabic linguist assigned in Athens, Greece. Working in a national airborne reconnaissance program, he supported U.S. military missions to Lebanon, Egypt, and Saudi Arabia. Honorably discharged in 1985, he graduated Magna Cum Laude from the University of Northern Iowa in 1988 with a Bachelor of Arts in International Relations.

He earned a Naval commission as a Special Duty Officer (Cryptology) upon completion of the Officer Candidate School in September 1988, whereupon he was assigned to the Naval Security Group Activity (NSGA) Rota, Spain. During that tour, he was assigned to the staff of the Commander, Middle East Force, Bahrain, and aboard USS O'Bannon (DD–987) and USS Aubrey Fitch (FFG–34) in support of Operation Earnest Will, the escort of re-flagged Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Arabian Gulf. Between 1989 and 1991, Commander Phelps was additionally assigned to the USS Wainwright (CG–28), USS Baton Rouge (SSN–689), USS Silversides (SSN–679), USS Providence (SSN–719), and to the USS Pittsburgh (SSN–720) during combat support operations throughout Operation Desert Storm.

Commander Phelps next assignment was to the USS Oldendorf, where he served as the Cryptologic Officer, Tactical Action Officer, and for 6 months as the Operations Officer, culminating in his qualifications as a Surface Warfare Officer. Detaching in 1994, he reported to Menwith Hill Station, Harrogate, England, and served as a Deputy Division Chief and member of the Regional Security Operations Center (RSOC) transition team. A plank owner of NSGA Menwith Hill, he simultaneously served in operations and as its first Executive Officer from 1995 to 1996. Commander Phelps next served at the Tactical Training Group Pacific, San Diego, CA, where he provided training to Battle group and warfare commanders in Cryptology, Information Warfare, and space systems operations. From 1999 to 2001, Commander Phelps served on the Staff of Commander, Carrier Group Seven as the Flag Cryptologist and deployed to the Middle East as the Cryptologic Resources Coordinator for John C. Stennis Battle Group and Bon Homme Richard Amphibious Ready Group.

Commander Phelps' most recent assignment was at U.S. Naval War College, Newport, RI, where he earned a Master of Arts (with Distinction) in Strategy and National Security Decision Making.

Military decorations include the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal (4 oak clusters in lieu of 5th award), Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal (two gold stars in lieu of third award), Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal (gold star in lieu of second award), as well as several unit and campaign awards.

Commander Phelps is married to the former Ms. Diana Weetman, of North Yorkshire, England.

Mr. President, I stand with all those whose lives are richer for having known Commander Phelps to commemorate and recognize his efforts and dedication on this Sixth day of February, Two-thousand and Four.•

ECONOMIC REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT—PM 63

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Joint Economic Committee:

To the Congress of the United States:

As 2004 begins, America's economy is strong and getting stronger. Over the past several years, this Nation has faced major economic challenges resulting from the decline of the stock market beginning in early 2000, a recession that began shortly after, revelations about corporate governance scandals, slow growth among many of our major trading partners, terrorist attacks, and the war against terror, including in Afghanistan and Iran. These challenges affected business and consumer confidence and resulted in hardship for people in many industries and regions of our Nation. Americans have responded to each challenge, and now we have the results: renewed confidence, strong growth, new jobs, and a mounting prosperity that will reach every corner of America.

This Report, prepared by my Council of Economic Advisers, describes the economic challenges we faced, the actions we took, and the results we are seeing. It also discusses our plans to continue growing the economy and creating jobs.

In May 2003, I signed a Jobs and Growth bill that focused on three key goals. First, we accelerated previously passed tax relief and let American households keep more of their own money to save, invest, and spend. Second, we increased incentives for small businesses to invest in new equipment and plant expansions. Third, we enacted important tax relief on dividend income and capital gains to help investors and businesses. These actions were designed to promote investment, job creation, and income growth. By all three measures of performance, we are seeing signs of success.

Since May 2003, we have seen the economy grow at its fastest pace in nearly 20 years. Consumers and businesses have gained confidence. Retail sales are strong, and Americans are buying, building, and renovating houses at a record pace. Investment has strengthened, with spending on business equipment the best in 5 years. The unemployment rate has fallen from its peak of 6.3 percent last June to 5.7 percent in December, and employment is beginning to rise as new jobs are created, especially in small businesses. Productivity growth has been strong, leading to higher incomes for workers, while the tax relief we passed means that American families keep more of their money instead of sending it to Washington.

We are moving in the right direction, but have more to do. I will not be satisfied until every American who wants a job can find one. I have outlined a six-point plan to promote job creation and strong economic growth. This plan includes initiatives to help manage rising health care costs to make health care more affordable and accessible for American workers and families, reduce the burden of junk lawsuits on the economy; ensure a reliable and affordable energy supply; simplify and streamline government regulations; open foreign markets for American goods and services; and allow businesses and families to keep more of their hard-earned money and plan with confidence by making our tax relief permanent. This year, I will work with the Congress to achieve these goals.

I will also continue to work with the Congress on another important shared goal: controlling federal spending and reducing the deficit. The federal budget is in deficit, foremost because of the economic slowdown and then recession that began in 2000 and the additional costs of fighting the war on terror and protecting the homeland. We are continuing to take action to restrain spending and bring the deficits down. By carefully evaluating priorities and being good stewards of the taxpayer's money, we will cut the budget deficit in half over the next five years.

The task of reducing the deficit will become easier because America's economy is growing. We have taken the actions needed to restore growth, and we are pursuing additional policies to help create jobs for American workers and families. I'm optimistic about the future of our economy because I know the values of America and the decency and entrepreneurial spirit of our people.

GEORGE W. BUSH.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. COLEMAN:

S. 2055. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow a credit against income tax for the purchase of hearing aids; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill I introduce today, the Hearing Aid Assistance Tax Credit Act, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2055

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Hearing Aid Assistance Tax Credit Act".

SEC. 2. CREDIT FOR HEARING AIDS FOR SENIORS AND DEPENDENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart A of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to nonrefundable personal credits) is amended by inserting after section 25B the following new section:

"SEC. 25C CREDIT FOR HEARING AIDS.

"(a) ALLOWANCE OF CREDIT.—In the case of an individual, there shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by this chapter an amount equal to the amount paid during the taxable year, not compensated by insurance or otherwise, by the taxpayer for the purchase of any qualified hearing aid.

"(b) MAXIMUM AMOUNT.—The amount allowed as a credit under subsection (a) shall not exceed $500 per qualified hearing aid.

"(c) QUALIFIED HEARING AID.—For purposes of this section, the term 'qualified hearing aid' means a hearing aid—

"(1) which is described in section 874.3300 of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, and is authorized under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act for commercial distribution, and

"(2) which is intended for use—

"(A) by the taxpayer, but only if the taxpayer (or the spouse intending to use the hearing aid, in the case of a joint return) is age 55 or older, or

"(B) by an individual with respect to whom the taxpayer, for the taxable year, is allowed a deduction under section 151(c) (relating to deduction for personal exemptions for dependents).

"(d) ELECTION ONCE EVERY 5 YEARS.—This section shall apply to any individual for any taxable year only if such individual elects (at such time and in such manner as the Secretary may by regulations prescribe) to have this section apply for such taxable year. An election to have this section apply may not be made for any taxable year if such election is in effect with respect to such individual for any of the 4 taxable years preceding such taxable year.

“(e) DENIAL OF DOUBLE BENEFIT.—No credit shall be allowed under subsection (a) for any expense for which a deduction or credit is allowed under any other provision of this chapter.”.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subpart A of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of such Code is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 25B the following new item:

“Sec. 25C. Credit for hearing aids.”.

(h) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2003.

By Mr. COLEMAN (for himself and Mr. DAYTON):

S. 2057. A bill to require the Secretary of Defense to reimburse members of the United States Armed Forces for certain transportation expenses incurred by the memers in connection with leave under the Central Command Rest and Recuperation Leave Program before the program was expanded to include domestic travel; to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2057

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. REIMBURSEMENT OF CERTAIN TRANSPORTATION COSTS INCURRED BY MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES ON REST AND RECUPERATION LEAVE.

The Secretary of Defense shall reimburse a member of the United States Armed Forces for transportation expenses incurred by such member for one round trip by such member between two locations within the United States in connection with leave taken under the Central Command Rest and Recuperation Leave Program during the period beginning on September 25, 2003, and ending on December 18, 2003.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 297—CONGRATULATING THE SAINT JOHN'S UNIVERSITY, COLLEGEVILLE, MINNESOTA, FOOTBALL TEAM FOR WINNING THE 2003 NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION DIVISION III FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Mr. DAYTON (for himself and Mr. COLEMAN) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 297

Whereas Saint John's University defeated Mount Union College of Alliance, Ohio, by a score of 24-6 in Stagg Bowl XXXI on Saturday, December 20, 2003;

Whereas Saint John's University finished the season 14-0, with the football program holding the all-time record for victories in Division III at 508-213-24 in 93 seasons;

Whereas the 2003 Championship is the first National Championship won by the Saint John's University football team since 1976 and the fourth in the history of the school;

Whereas the 2003 Championship capped a season in which Coach John Gagliardi of Saint John's University became the winningest football coach in the history of the National Collegiate Athletic Association;

Whereas Blake Elliott, the senior wide receiver of Saint John's University, was the recipient of the 2003 Gagliardi Trophy as the most outstanding Division III football player in the United States in 2003;

Whereas the Saint John's University Johnnies, by winning the championship game, cracked Mount Union's National Collegiate Athletic Association-record winning streak of 55 games in a row;

Whereas loyal fans of Saint John's University, enough to fill 3 chartered planes, were among the crowd of 5,073 who attended the 2003 Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl in the freezing cold of Salem, Virginia, with many more watching the nationally televised game; and

Whereas all of the players of the Saint John's University team showed tremendous dedication throughout the season to realize the goal of winning the National Championship: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) commends the Saint John's University football team for winning the 2003 National Collegiate Athletic Association Division III Football Championship;

(2) recognizes the achievements of all of the players, coaches, and support staff of the team and invites them to the United States Capitol Building to be honored; and

(3) directs the Secretary of the Senate to make available enrolled copies of this resolution to Saint John's University for appropriate display.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 88—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS THAT THERE SHOULD CONTINUE TO BE PARITY BETWEEN THE ADJUSTMENTS IN THE PAY OF MEMBERS OF THE UNIFORMED SERVICES AND THE ADJUSTMENTS IN THE PAY OF CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. SARBANES (for himself, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. WARNER, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. ALLEN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. DAYTON, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. JOHNSON, and Mrs. MURRAY) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Governmental Affairs:

S. CON. RES. 88

Whereas members of the uniformed services of the United States and civilian employees of the United States make significant contributions to the general welfare of the United States, and are on the front lines in the fight against terrorism and in maintaining the Nation's defenses;

Whereas civilian employees of the United States play a crucial role in the fight against terrorism, as exemplified by—

(1) the civilian employees of the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Defense who are working to ensure the security of the United States;

(2) the civilian employees of the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation who are investigating the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks and working to prevent further terrorist attacks;

(3) the numerous skilled trade and craft civilian employees of the Federal Government who work side-by-side with the men and women of the armed forces to maintain and deploy our air and sea fleet safely and swiftly; and

(4) the employees of the Centers For Disease Control within the Department of Health and Human Services who work every day protecting Americans from bioterrorism and those at the Department of Agriculture who strive to keep the Nation's food supply safe;

Whereas civilian employees of the United States will continue to support and defend the United States during this difficult time;

Whereas in fiscal year 2004 Congress again reaffirmed its long-standing commitment to parity in pay adjustments for members of the uniformed services and all civilian employees in both the annual budget resolution and the Transportation, Treasury and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 2004; and

Whereas for fiscal year 2005, the Administration proposed a 3.5 percent pay raise for members of the uniformed services but only a 1.5 percent pay raise for the dedicated civilian employees of the United States, a disparity in adjustments that violates the traditional principle of parity of pay adjustments: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that rates of pay for all civilian employees of the United States should be adjusted at the same time, and in the same proportion, as are rates of pay for the uniformed services.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with Senators MIKULSKI, WARNER, AKAKA, ALLEN, COLLINS, KENNEDY, DURBIN, DAYTON, LEVIN, JOHNSON, and MURRAY in submitting a resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that parity between Federal civilian pay and military pay should be maintained.

Disparate treatment of civilian and military pay goes against the long-standing policy of parity for all those who have chosen to serve our Nation—whether that service is in the civilian workforce or in the armed services. In fact, a comparison of military and civilian pay increases by the Congressional Research Service finds that in 16 of the last 18 years military and civilian pay increases have been identical.

Indeed, the Fiscal Year 2004 Consolidated Appropriations Act Conference Report passed by Congress included a pay parity provision that would provide a 4.1 percent average pay adjustment to military and all civilian employees.

Federal civilian and military employees work side-by-side doing the important work of the Nation, including protecting U.S. citizens from terrorism. As a prime example, during last week's response to the discovery of ricin in the Dirksen Senate Office Building, civilian employees from agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Coast Guard, the U.S. Capitol Police, the FBI, and the Marine Corps Chemical Biological Incident Response Force from Indian Head, Maryland responded jointly to the crisis and collaborated in the cleanup of the affected Senate Office Buildings. Now more than ever, an efficient and effective Federal Government requires this kind of civilian/military collaboration. We should not undermine the morale of our dedicated public civil servants by failing to bring their pay in line with that of the military personnel they work along side of every day.

Moreover, both the uniformed services and the Federal civilian workforce need to address critical retention and recruitment problems. Our Federal Government is facing a "human capital" crisis as a result of attrition that threatens institutional experience and knowledge at every level. By the end of 2005, one out of every three current Federal workers will be eligible for optional retirement and by 2007 an estimated 53 percent of the Federal workforce will be eligible to retire. These vacancies will occur in an era in which those entering the workforce are far less likely to join public service. As evidence of this, a 2002 survey commissioned by the Partnership for Public Service reveals that only one in four college-educated workers expressed significant interest in working for the Federal Government.

Inequitable pay only serves to perpetuate this lack of interest. Congress has continually asked Federal employees to make significant sacrifices for the sake of our Nation's fiscal health, including more than $200 billion in deficit reduction contributed by Federal employees and retirees in lost and delayed compensation. In addition, FEPCA—legislation passed in 1990 to bring the pay of Federal employees in line with that offered in the private sector—has never been fully implemented. Nonetheless, Federal employees have continued to provide high quality service to the American public, usually with fewer resources and personnel.

One way to ensure the Federal Government is able to attract and retain qualified public servants is to ensure parity between civil service employees and members of the uniformed services. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this important resolution.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 2273. Mr. SESSIONS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1072, to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

The provisions of subchapter IV of chapter 31 of title 40, United States Code (40 U.S.C. 3141 et seq.), commonly known as the Davis-Bacon Act, shall not apply to projects that receive funding under this Act (or an amendment made by this Act).

SA 2274. Mr. DAYTON submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1072, to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 880, before line 7, insert the following:

Title III of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 is amended by striking section 306 (42 U.S.C. 13215) and inserting the following:

"SEC. 306. FEDERAL AGENCY ETHANOL-BLENDED GASOLINE AND BIODIESEL PURCHASING REQUIREMENT.

"(a) ETHANOL-BLENDED GASOLINE.—The head of each Federal agency shall ensure that, in areas in which ethanol-blended gasoline is available, the Federal agency purchases ethanol-blended gasoline containing at least 10 percent ethanol (or the highest available percentage of ethanol), rather than nonethanol-blended gasoline, for use in vehicles used by the agency.

"(b) BIODIESEL.—

"(1) DEFINITION OF BIODIESEL.—In this subsection, the term 'biodiesel' has the meaning given the term in section 312(f).

"(2) REQUIREMENT.—The head of each Federal agency shall ensure that—

"(A) as of the date that is 5 years after the date of enactment of this paragraph, in areas in which biodiesel is available, the Federal agency purchases biodiesel-blended diesel fuel that contains at least 5 percent biodiesel (or the highest available percentage of biodiesel), rather than nonbiodiesel-blended diesel fuel, for use in vehicles used by the agency; and

"(B) as of the date that is 10 years after the date of enactment of this paragraph, in areas in which biodiesel is available, the Federal agency purchases biodiesel-blended diesel fuel that contains at least 10 percent biodiesel (or the highest available percentage of biodiesel), rather than nonbiodiesel-blended diesel fuel, for use in vehicles used by the agency.".

SA 2275. Mr. DAYTON submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1072, to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place insert the following:

SEC. ___. INCENTIVES FOR BIODIESEL.

(a) CREDIT FOR BIODIESEL USED AS A FUEL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subpart D of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to business related credits) is amended by inserting after section 40 the following new section:

"SEC. 40A. BIODIESEL USED AS FUEL.

"(a) GENERAL RULE.—For purposes of section 38, the biodiesel fuels credit determined under this section for the taxable year is an amount equal to the biodiesel mixture credit.

"(b) DEFINITION OF BIODIESEL MIXTURE CREDIT.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) BIODIESEL MIXTURE CREDIT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The biodiesel mixture credit of any taxpayer for any taxable year is the sum of the products of the biodiesel mixture rate for each qualified biodiesel mixture and the number of gallons of such mixture of the taxpayer for the taxable year.

"(B) BIODIESEL MIXTURE RATE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the biodiesel mixture rate for each qualified biodiesel mixture shall be 1 cent for each whole percentage point (not exceeding 20 percentage points) of biodiesel in such mixture.

"(2) QUALIFIED BIODIESEL MIXTURE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'qualified biodiesel mixture' means a mixture of diesel and biodiesel which—

"(i) is sold by the taxpayer producing such mixture to any person for use as a fuel, or

"(ii) is used as a fuel by the taxpayer producing such mixture.

"(B) SALE OR USE MUST BE IN TRADE OR BUSINESS, ETC.—Biodiesel used in the production of a qualified biodiesel mixture shall be taken into account—

"(i) only if the sale or use described in subparagraph (A) is in a trade or business of the taxpayer, and

"(ii) for the taxable year in which such sale or use occurs.

"(C) CASUAL OFF-FARM PRODUCTION NOT ELIGIBLE.—No credit shall be allowed under this section with respect to any casual off-farm production of a qualified biodiesel mixture.

"(c) COORDINATION WITH EXEMPTION FROM EXCISE TAX.—The amount of the credit determined under this section with respect to any biodiesel shall, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, be properly reduced to take into account any benefit provided with respect to such biodiesel solely by reason of the application of section 4041(n) or section 4081(f).

"(d) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) BIODIESEL DEFINED.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'biodiesel' means the monoalkyl esters of long chain fatty acids derived from virgin vegetable oils for use in compressional-ignition (diesel) engines. Such term shall include esters derived from vegetable oils from corn, soybeans, sunflower seeds, cottonseeds, canola, crambe, rapeseeds, safflowers, flaxseeds, rice bran, and mustard seeds.

"(B) REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS.—Such term shall only include a biodiesel which meets—

"(i) the registration requirements for fuels and fuel additives established by the Environmental Protection Agency under section 211 of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7545), and

"(ii) the requirements of the American Society of Testing and Materials D6751.

"(2) BIODIESEL MIXTURE NOT USED AS A FUEL, ETC.—

"(A) IMPOSITION OF TAX.—If—

"(i) any credit was determined under this section with respect to biodiesel used in the production of any qualified biodiesel mixture, and

"(ii) any person—

"(I) separates the biodiesel from the mixture, or

"(II) without separation, uses the mixture other than as a fuel, then there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to the product of the biodiesel mixture rate applicable under subsection (b)(1)(B) and the number of gallons of the mixture.

"(B) APPLICABLE LAWS.—All provisions of law, including penalties, shall, insofar as applicable and not inconsistent with this section, apply in respect of any tax imposed under subparagraph (A) as if such tax were imposed by section 4081 and not by this chapter.

"(3) PASS-THRU IN THE CASE OF ESTATES AND TRUSTS.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, rules similar to the rules of subsection (d) of section 52 shall apply.

"(e) ELECTION TO HAVE BIODIESEL FUELS CREDIT NOT APPLY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—A taxpayer may elect to have this section not apply for any taxable year.

"(2) TIME FOR MAKING ELECTION.—An election under paragraph (1) for any taxable year may be made (or revoked) at any time before the expiration of the 3-year period beginning on the last date prescribed by law for filing the return for such taxable year (determined without regard to extensions).

"(3) MANNER OF MAKING ELECTION.—An election under paragraph (1) (or revocation thereof) shall be made in such manner as the Secretary may by regulations prescribe.".

"(f) TERMINATION.—This section shall not apply to any fuel sold after December 31, 2013.".

(2) CREDIT TREATED AS PART OF GENERAL BUSINESS CREDIT.—Section 38(b) of such Code is amended by striking "plus" at the end of paragraph (14), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (15) and inserting ", plus", and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(16) the biodiesel fuels credit determined under section 40A.".

(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Section 39(d) of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(11) NO CARRYBACK OF BIODIESEL FUELS CREDIT BEFORE JANUARY 1, 2003.—No portion of the unused business credit for any taxable year which is attributable to the biodiesel fuels credit determined under section 40A may be carried back to a taxable year beginning before January 1, 2003.".

(B) Section 196(c) of such Code is amended by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (9), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (10), and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(11) the biodiesel fuels credit determined under section 40A.".

(C) Section 6501(m) of such Code is amended by inserting "40A(e)," after "40(f),".

(D) The table of sections for subpart D of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of such Code is amended by adding after the item relating to section 40 the following new item:

"Sec. 40A. Biodiesel used as fuel.".

(4) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2003.

(b) REDUCTION OF MOTOR FUEL EXCISE TAXES ON BIODIESEL MIXTURES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 4081 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to manufacturers tax on petroleum products) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(f) BIODIESEL MIXTURES.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of the removal or entry of a qualified biodiesel mixture, the rate of tax under subsection (a) shall be the otherwise applicable rate reduced by the biodiesel mixture rate (if any) applicable to the mixture.

"(2) TAX PRIOR TO MIXING.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of the removal or entry of diesel fuel for use in producing at the time of such removal or entry a qualified biodiesel mixture, the rate of tax under subsection (a) shall be the otherwise applicable rate, reduced by the amount determined under subparagraph (B).

"(B) APPLICABLE REDUCTION.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the amount determined under this subparagraph is an amount equal to the biodiesel mixture rate for the qualified biodiesel mixture to be produced from the diesel fuel, divided by a percentage equal to 100 percent minus the percentage of biodiesel which will be in the mixture.

"(3) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, any term used in this subsection which is also used in section 40A shall have the meaning given such term by section 40A.

"(4) CERTAIN RULES TO APPLY.—Rules similar to the rules of paragraphs (6) and (7) of subsection (c) shall apply for purposes of this subsection.".

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Section 4041 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(n) BIODIESEL MIXTURES.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, in the case of the sale or use of a qualified biodiesel mixture (as defined in section 40A(b)(2)), the rates under paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a) shall be the otherwise applicable rates, reduced by any applicable biodiesel mixture rate (as defined in section 40A(b)(1)(B)).".

(B) Section 6427 of such Code is amended by redesignating subsection (p) as subsection (q) and by inserting after subsection (o) the following new subsection:

"(p) BIODIESEL MIXTURES.—Except as provided in subsection (k), if any diesel fuel on which tax was imposed by section 4081 at a rate not determined under section 4081(f) is used by any person in producing a qualified biodiesel mixture (as defined in section 40A(b)(2)) which is sold or used in such person's trade or business, the Secretary shall pay (without interest) to such person an amount equal to the per gallon applicable biodiesel mixture rate (as defined in section 40A(b)(1)(B)) with respect to such fuel.".

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to any fuel sold after December 31, 2003, and before January 1, 2014.

(c) HIGHWAY TRUST FUND HELD HARMLESS.—There are hereby transferred (from time to time) from the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation amounts equivalent to the reductions that would occur (but for this subsection) in the receipts of the Highway Trust Fund by reason of the amendments made by this section. Such transfers shall be made on the basis of estimates made by the Secretary of the Treasury and adjustments shall be made to subsequent transfers to reflect any errors in the estimates.

SA 2278. Ms. SNOWE (for herself and Ms. COLLINS) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by her to the bill S. 1072, to authorize funds for Federal-aid highways, highway safety programs, and transit programs, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

SEC. 1409. COMMERCIAL TRUCK HIGHWAY SAFETY DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the "Commercial Truck Highway Safety Demonstration Program Act of 2004".

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Public safety on the highways of the United States is a paramount concern of all who use the highways and all who prescribe public policy for the use of those highways, including public policy on the operation of heavy commercial trucks on highways.

(2) Federal highway funding law effectively imposes a limit of 80,000 pounds on the weight of vehicles permitted to use Interstate System highways.

(3) The administration of this law in Maine has forced heavy tractor-trailer and tractor-semitrailer combination vehicles traveling into Maine from neighboring States and Canada to divert onto small State and local roads where higher vehicle weight limits apply under Maine law.

(4) The diversion of those vehicles onto such roads causes significant economic hardships and safety challenges for small communities located along those roads.

(5) Permitting heavy commercial vehicles, including tanker trucks carrying hazardous material and fuel oil, to travel on Interstate System highways in Maine—

(A) would enhance public safety by reducing—

(i) the number of heavy vehicles that use town and city streets in Maine; and

(ii) as a result, the number of dangerous interactions between those heavy vehicles and such other vehicles as school buses and private vehicles; and

(B) would reduce the net highway maintenance costs in Maine because the Interstate System highways, unlike the secondary roads of Maine, are built to accommodate heavy vehicles and are, therefore, more durable.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) COVERED INTERSTATE SYSTEM HIGHWAY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term "covered Interstate System highway" means a highway within the State of Maine that is designated as a route on the Interstate System, except as provided in subparagraph (B).

(B) EXCEPTION.—The term does not include any portion of highway that, as of the date of the enactment of this section, is exempted from the requirements of subsection (a) of section 127 of title 23, United States Code, by the last sentence of such subsection.

(2) INTERSTATE SYSTEM.—The term "Interstate System" has the meaning given that term in section 101(a) of title 23, United States Code.

(d) MAINE TRUCK SAFETY DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Transportation shall carry out a program, in the administration of this section, to demonstrate the effects on the safety of the overall highway network in the State of Maine that would result from permitting vehicles described in subsection (e)(2) to be operated on the Interstate System highways within the State.

(e) WAIVER OF HIGHWAY FUNDING REDUCTION RELATING TO WEIGHT OF VEHICLES USING INTERSTATE SYSTEM HIGHWAYS.—

(1) PROHIBITION RELATING TO CERTAIN VEHICLES.—Notwithstanding section 127(a) of title 23, United States Code, the total amount of funds apportioned to the State of Maine under section 104(b)(1) of such title for any period may not be reduced under such section 127(a) on the basis that the State of Maine permits a vehicle described in paragraph (2) to use a covered Interstate System highway.

(2) COMBINATION VEHICLES IN EXCESS OF 80,000 POUNDS.—A vehicle referred to in paragraph (1) is a vehicle having a weight in excess of 80,000 pounds that—

(A) consists of a 3-axle tractor unit hauling a single trailer or semitrailer; and

(B) does not exceed any vehicle weight limitation that is applicable under the laws of the State of Maine to the operation of such vehicle on highways in Maine not in the Interstate System, as such laws are in effect on the date of the enactment of this section.

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE AND TERMINATION.—

(A) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(i) DATE OF SATISFACTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE CONDITIONS BY MAINE.—The prohibition in paragraph (1) shall take effect on the date on which the Secretary of Transportation notifies the Commissioner of Transportation of the State of Maine in writing that—

(I) the Secretary has received the plan described in subsection (f)(1); and

(II) the Commissioner has established a highway safety committee as described in subsection (f)(2) and has promulgated rules and procedures for the collection of highway safety data as described in subsection (f)(3).

(ii) PERMANENT EFFECT.—After taking effect, the prohibition in paragraph (1) shall remain in effect unless terminated under subparagraph (B).

(B) CONTINGENT TERMINATION.—The prohibition in paragraph (1) shall terminate 3 years after the effective date applicable under subparagraph (A) if, before the end of such 3-year period, the Secretary of Transportation—

(i) determines that—

(I) operation of vehicles described in paragraph (2) on covered Interstate System highways in Maine has adversely affected safety on the overall highway network in Maine; or

(II) the Commissioner of Transportation of the State of Maine has failed faithfully to use the highway safety committee as described in subsection (f)(2)(A) or to collect data as described in subsection (f)(3); and

(ii) publishes the determination, together with the date of the termination of the prohibition, in the Federal Register.

(4) CONSULTATION REGARDING TERMINATION FOR SAFETY.—In making a determination under paragraph (3)(B)(i)(I), the Secretary of Transportation shall consult with the highway safety committee established by the Commissioner in accordance with subsection (f).

(f) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE STATE OF MAINE.—For the purposes of subsection (e), the State of Maine satisfies the conditions of this subsection if the Commissioner of Transportation of the State of Maine—

(1) submits to the Secretary of Transportation a plan for satisfying the conditions set forth in paragraphs (2) and (3);

(2) establishes and chairs a highway safety committee that—

(A) the Commissioner uses to review the data collected pursuant to paragraph (3); and

(B) consists of representatives of—

(i) agencies of the State of Maine that have responsibilities related to highway safety;

(ii) municipalities of the State of Maine;

(iii) organizations that have evaluation or promotion of highway safety among their principal purposes; and

(iv) the commercial trucking industry; and

(3) collects data on the net effects that the operation of vehicles described in subsection (e)(2) on covered Interstate System highways have on the safety of the overall highway network in Maine, including the net effects on single-vehicle and multiple-vehicle collision rates for such vehicles.

"(h) USE OF FUNDS.—

"(1) PROJECTS UNDER SECTION 402.—For fiscal year 2005 and each fiscal year thereafter, 10 percent of the funds made available to a State under this section shall be obligated for projects under section 402, unless by October 1 of the fiscal year, the State—

"(A) has in effect a primary safety belt law; or

"(B) demonstrates that the safety belt use rate in the State is at least 90 percent.

"(2) WITHHOLDING.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For fiscal year 2007, the Secretary shall withhold 2 percent, and for each fiscal year thereafter, the Secretary shall withhold 4 percent, of the funds apportioned to a State under paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of section 104(b) and section 144 if, by October 1 of that fiscal year, the State does not—

"(i) have in effect a primary safety belt law; or

"(ii) demonstrate that the safety belt use rate in the State is at least 90 percent.

"(B) RESTORATION.—If, by the date that is 3 years after the date on which funds are withheld from a State under subparagraph (A), the State has in effect a primary safety belt law or has demonstrated that the safety belt use rate in the State is at least 90 percent, the apportionment of the State shall be increased by the amount withheld.

"(C) LAPSE.—If, by the date that is 3 years after the date on which funds are withheld from a State under subparagraph (A), the State does not have in effect a primary safety belt law or has not demonstrated that the safety belt use rate in the State is at least 90 percent, the amount withheld shall lapse.".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall apply to amounts paid for which no transfer from the Highway Trust Fund has been made before April 1, 2004.

(2) INTEREST CREDITED.—The amendment made by subsection (b) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5003. MODIFICATION OF ADJUSTMENTS OF APPORTIONMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 9503(d) (relating to adjustments for apportionments) is amended—

(1) by striking "24-month" in paragraph (1)(B) and inserting "48-month", and

(2) by striking "2 YEARS"' in the heading for paragraph (3) and inserting "4 YEARS"'.

(b) MEASUREMENT OF NET HIGHWAY RECEIPTS.—Section 9503(d) is amended by redesignating paragraph (6) as paragraph (7) and by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph:

"(6) MEASUREMENT OF NET HIGHWAY RECEIPTS.—For purposes of making any estimate under paragraph (1) of net highway receipts for periods ending after the date specified in subsection (b)(1), the Secretary shall treat—

"(A) each expiring provision of subsection (b) which is related to appropriations or transfers to the Highway Trust Fund to have been extended through the end of the 48-month period referred to in paragraph (1)(B), and

"(B) with respect to each tax imposed under the sections referred to in subsection (b)(1), the rate of such tax during the 48-month period referred to in paragraph (1)(B) to be the same as the rate of such tax as in effect on the date of such estimate.".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

Subtitle B—Volumetric Ethanol Excise Tax Credit

SEC. 5101. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the "Volumetric Ethanol Excise Tax Credit (VEETC) Act of 2004".

SEC. 5102. ALCOHOL AND BIODIESEL EXCISE TAX CREDIT AND EXTENSION OF ALCOHOL FUELS INCOME TAX CREDIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter B of chapter 65 (relating to rules of special application) is amended by inserting after section 6425 the following new section:

"SEC. 6426. CREDIT FOR ALCOHOL FUEL AND BIODIESEL MIXTURES.

"(a) ALLOWANCE OF CREDITS.—There shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by section 4081 an amount equal to the sum of—

"(1) the alcohol fuel mixture credit, plus

"(2) the biodiesel mixture credit.

"(b) ALCOHOL FUEL MIXTURE CREDIT.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the alcohol fuel mixture credit is the product of the applicable amount and the number of gallons of alcohol used by the taxpayer in producing any alcohol fuel mixture for sale or use in a trade or business of the taxpayer.

"(2) APPLICABLE AMOUNT.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the applicable amount is 52 cents (51 cents in the case of any sale or use after 2004).

"(B) MIXTURES NOT CONTAINING ETHANOL.—In the case of an alcohol fuel mixture in which none of the alcohol consists of ethanol, the applicable amount is 60 cents.

"(3) ALCOHOL FUEL MIXTURE.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'alcohol fuel mixture' means a mixture of alcohol and a taxable fuel which—

"(A) is sold by the taxpayer producing such mixture to any person for use as a fuel,

"(B) is used as a fuel by the taxpayer producing such mixture, or

"(4) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) ALCOHOL.—The term 'alcohol' includes methanol and ethanol but does not include—

"(i) alcohol produced from petroleum, natural gas, or coal (including peat), or

"(ii) alcohol with a proof of less than 190 (determined without regard to any added denaturants).

Such term also includes an alcohol gallon equivalent of ethyl tertiary butyl ether or other ethers produced from such alcohol.

"(B) TAXABLE FUEL.—The term 'taxable fuel' has the meaning given such term by section 4083(a)(1).

"(5) TERMINATION.—This subsection shall not apply to any sale, use, or removal for any period after December 31, 2010.

"(c) BIODIESEL MIXTURE CREDIT.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the biodiesel mixture credit is the product of the applicable amount and the number of gallons of biodiesel used by the taxpayer in producing any biodiesel mixture for sale or use in a trade or business of the taxpayer.

"(2) APPLICABLE AMOUNT.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the applicable amount is 50 cents.

"(B) AMOUNT FOR AGRI-BIODIESEL.—In the case of any biodiesel which is agri-biodiesel, the applicable amount is $1.00.

"(3) BIODIESEL MIXTURE.—For purposes of this section, the term 'biodiesel mixture' means a mixture of biodiesel and diesel fuel (as defined in section 4083(a)(3)), determined without regard to any use of kerosene, which—

“(A) is sold by the taxpayer producing such mixture to any person for use as a fuel,

“(B) is used as a fuel by the taxpayer producing such mixture, or

“(4) Certification for biodiesel.—No credit shall be allowed under this section unless the taxpayer obtains a certification (in such form and manner as prescribed by the Secretary) from the producer of the biodiesel which identifies the product produced and the percentage of biodiesel and agri-biodiesel in the product.

“(5) Other definitions.—Any term used in this subsection which is also used in section 40A shall have the meaning given such term by section 40A.

“(6) Termination.—This subsection shall not apply to any sale, use, or removal for any period after December 31, 2006.

“(d) Mixture not used as a fuel, etc.—

“(1) Imposition of tax.—If—

“(A) any credit was determined under this section with respect to alcohol or biodiesel used in the production of any alcohol fuel mixture or biodiesel mixture, respectively, and

“(B) any person—

“(i) separates the alcohol or biodiesel from the mixture, or

“(ii) without separation, uses the mixture other than as a fuel,

then there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to the product of the applicable amount and the number of gallons of such alcohol or biodiesel.

“(2) Applicable laws.—All provisions of law, including penalties, shall, insofar as applicable and not inconsistent with this section, apply in respect of any tax imposed under paragraph (1) as if such tax were imposed by section 4081 and not by this section.

“(e) Coordination With Exemption From Excise Tax.—Rules similar to the rules under section 40(c) shall apply for purposes of this section.”.

(b) Registration Requirement.—Section 4101(a)(1) (relating to registration), as amended by sections 5211 and 5242 of this Act, is amended by inserting “and every person producing or importing biodiesel (as defined in section 40A(d)(1)) or alcohol (as defined in section 6426(b)(4)(A))” after “4081”.

(c) Additional Amendments.—

(1) Section 40(c) is amended by striking “subsection (b)(2), (k), or (m) of section 4041, section 4081(c), or section 4091(c)” and inserting “section 4041(b)(2), section 6426, or section 6427(e)”.

(2) Paragraph (4) of section 40(d) is amended to read as follows:

“(4) Volume of alcohol.—For purposes of determining under subsection (a) the number of gallons of alcohol with respect to which a credit is allowable under subsection (a), the volume of alcohol shall include the volume of any denaturant (including gasoline) which is added under any formulas approved by the Secretary to the extent that such denaturants do not exceed 5 percent of the volume of such alcohol (including denaturants).”.

(3) Section 40(e)(1) is amended—

(A) by striking “2007” in subparagraph (A) and inserting “2010”, and

(B) by striking “2008” in subparagraph (B) and inserting “2011”.

(4) Section 40(h) is amended—

(A) by striking “2007” in paragraph (1) and inserting “2010”, and

(B) by striking “, 2006, or 2007” in the table contained in paragraph (2) and inserting “through 2010”.

(5) Section 4041(b)(2)(B) is amended by striking “a substance other than petroleum or natural gas” and inserting “coal (including peat)”.

(6) Section 4041 is amended by striking subsection (k).

(7) Section 4081 is amended by striking subsection (c).

(8) Paragraph (2) of section 4083(a) is amended to read as follows:

“(2) Gasoline.—The term ‘gasoline’—

“(A) includes any gasoline blend, other than qualified methanol or ethanol fuel (as defined in section 4041(b)(2)(B)), partially exempt methanol or ethanol fuel (as defined in section 4041(m)(2)), or a denatured alcohol, and

“(B) includes, to the extent prescribed in regulations—

“(i) any gasoline blend stock, and

“(ii) any product commonly used as an additive in gasoline (other than alcohol).

For purposes of subparagraph (B)(i), the term ‘gasoline blend stock’ means any petroleum product component of gasoline.”.

(9) Section 6427 is amended by inserting after subsection (d) the following new subsection:

“(e) Alcohol or Biodiesel Used To Produce Alcohol Fuel and Biodiesel Mixtures or Used as Fuels.—Except as provided in subsection (k)—

“(1) Used to produce a mixture.—If any person produces a mixture described in section 6426 in such person’s trade or business, the Secretary shall pay (without interest) to such person an amount equal to the alcohol fuel mixture credit or the biodiesel mixture credit with respect to such mixture.

“(2) Used as fuel.—If alcohol (as defined in section 40(d)(1)) or biodiesel (as defined in section 40A(d)(1)) or agri-biodiesel (as defined in section 40A(d)(2)) which is not in a mixture described in section 6426—

“(A) is used by any person as a fuel in a trade or business, or

“(B) is sold by any person at retail to another person and placed in the fuel tank of such person’s vehicle, the Secretary shall pay (without interest) to such person an amount equal to the alcohol credit (as determined under section 40(b)(2)) or the biodiesel credit (as determined under section 40A(b)(2)) with respect to such fuel.

“(3) Coordination with other repayment provisions.—No amount shall be payable under paragraph (1) with respect to any mixture with respect to which an amount is allowed as a credit under section 6426.

“(4) Termination.—This subsection shall not apply with respect to—

“(A) any alcohol fuel mixture (as defined in section 6426(b)(3)) or alcohol (as so defined) sold or used after December 31, 2010, and

“(B) any biodiesel mixture (as defined in section 6426(c)(3)) or biodiesel (as so defined) or agri-biodiesel (as so defined) sold or used after December 31, 2006.”.

(10) Section 6427(i)(3) is amended—

(A) by striking “subsection (f)” both places it appears in subparagraph (A) and inserting “subsection (e)(1)”,

(B) by striking “gasoline, diesel fuel, or kerosene used to produce a qualified alcohol mixture (as defined in section 4081(c)(3))” in subparagraph (A) and inserting “a mixture described in section 6426”,

(C) by adding at the end of subparagraph (A) the following new flush sentence:

“In the case of an electronic claim, this subparagraph shall be applied without regard to clause (i).”,

(D) by striking “subsection (f)(1)” in subparagraph (B) and inserting “subsection (e)(1)”,

(E) by striking “20 days of the date of the filing of such claim” in subparagraph (B) and inserting “45 days of the date of the filing of such claim (20 days in the case of an electronic claim)”, and

(F) by striking “ALCOHOL MIXTURE” in the heading and inserting “ALCOHOL FUEL AND BIODIESEL MIXTURE”.

(11) Section 9503(b)(1) is amended by adding at the end the following new flush sentence: “For purposes of this paragraph, taxes received under sections 4041 and 4081 shall be determined without reduction for credits under section 6426.”.

(12) Section 9503(b)(4), as amended by section 5101 of this Act, is amended—

(A) by adding “or” at the end of subparagraph (C),

(B) by striking the comma at the end of subparagraph (D)(iii) and inserting a period, and

(C) by striking subparagraphs (E) and (F).

(13) The table of sections for subchapter B of chapter 65 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 6425 the following new item:

(14) Tariff schedule.—Headings 9901.00.50 and 9901.00.52 of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States (19 U.S.C. 3007) are each amended in the effective period column by striking “10/1/2007” each place it appears and inserting “1/1/2011”.

(d) Effective Dates.—

(1) In general.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the amendments made by this section shall apply to fuel sold or used after September 30, 2004.

(2) Registration requirement.—The amendment made by subsection (b) shall take effect on April 1, 2005.

(3) Extension of alcohol fuels credit.—The amendments made by paragraphs (3), (4), and (14) of subsection (c) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(4) Repeal of general fund retention of certain alcohol fuels taxes.—The amendments made by subsection (c)(12) shall apply to fuel sold or used after September 30, 2003.

(e) Format for Filing.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall describe the electronic format for filing claims described in section 6427(i)(3)(B) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as amended by subsection (c)(10)(C)) not later than September 30, 2004.

SEC. 5103. BIODIESEL INCOME TAX CREDIT.

(a) In General.—Subpart D of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 (relating to business related credits) is amended by inserting after section 40 the following new section:

“SEC. 40A. BIODIESEL USED AS FUEL.

“(a) General Rule.—For purposes of section 38, the biodiesel fuels credit determined under this section for the taxable year is an amount equal to the sum of—

“(1) the biodiesel mixture credit, plus

“(2) the biodiesel credit.

“(b) Definition of Biodiesel Mixture Credit and Biodiesel Credit.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) Biodiesel mixture credit.—

“(A) In general.—The biodiesel mixture credit of any taxpayer for any taxable year is 50 cents for each gallon of biodiesel used by the taxpayer in the production of a qualified biodiesel mixture.

“(B) Qualified biodiesel mixture.—The term ‘qualified biodiesel mixture’ means a mixture of biodiesel and diesel fuel (as defined in section 4083(a)(3)), determined without regard to any use of kerosene, which—

"(i) is sold by the taxpayer producing such mixture to any person for use as a fuel, or

"(ii) is used as a fuel by the taxpayer producing such mixture.

"(C) SALE OR USE MUST BE IN TRADE OR BUSINESS, ETC.—Biodiesel used in the production of a qualified biodiesel mixture shall be taken into account—

"(i) only if the sale or use described in subparagraph (B) is in a trade or business of the taxpayer, and

"(ii) for the taxable year in which such sale or use occurs.

"(D) CASUAL OFF-FARM PRODUCTION NOT ELIGIBLE.—No credit shall be allowed under this section with respect to any casual off-farm production of a qualified biodiesel mixture.

"(2) BIODIESEL CREDIT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The biodiesel credit of any taxpayer for any taxable year is 50 cents for each gallon of biodiesel which is not in a mixture with diesel fuel and which during the taxable year—

"(i) is used by the taxpayer as a fuel in a trade or business, or

"(ii) is sold by the taxpayer at retail to a person and placed in the fuel tank of such person's vehicle.

"(B) USER CREDIT NOT TO APPLY TO BIODIESEL SOLD AT RETAIL.—No credit shall be allowed under subparagraph (A)(i) with respect to any biodiesel which was sold in a retail sale described in subparagraph (A)(ii).

"(3) CREDIT FOR AGRI-BIODIESEL.—In the case of any biodiesel which is agri-biodiesel, paragraphs (1)(A) and (2)(A) shall be applied by substituting '$1.00' for '50 cents'.

"(4) CERTIFICATION FOR BIODIESEL.—No credit shall be allowed under this section unless the taxpayer obtains a certification (in such form and manner as prescribed by the Secretary) from the producer or importer of the biodiesel which identifies the product produced and the percentage of biodiesel and agri-biodiesel in the product.

"(c) COORDINATION WITH CREDIT AGAINST EXCISE TAX.—The amount of the credit determined under this section with respect to any biodiesel shall be properly reduced to take into account any benefit provided with respect to such biodiesel solely by reason of the application of section 6426 or 6427(e).

"(d) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) BIODIESEL.—The term 'biodiesel' means the monoalkyl esters of long chain fatty acids derived from plant or animal matter which meet—

"(A) the registration requirements for fuels and fuel additives established by the Environmental Protection Agency under section 211 of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7545), and

"(B) the requirements of the American Society of Testing and Materials D6751.

"(2) AGRI-BIODIESEL.—The term 'agri-biodiesel' means biodiesel derived solely from virgin oils, including esters derived from virgin vegetable oils from corn, soybeans, sunflower seeds, cottonseeds, canola, crambe, rapeseeds, safflowers, flaxseeds, rice bran, and mustard seeds, and from animal fats.

"(3) MIXTURE OR BIODIESEL NOT USED AS A FUEL, ETC.—

"(A) MIXTURES.—If—

"(i) any credit was determined under this section with respect to biodiesel used in the production of any qualified biodiesel mixture, and

"(ii) any person—

"(I) separates the biodiesel from the mixture, or

"(II) without separation, uses the mixture other than as a fuel,

then there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to the product of the rate applicable under subsection (b)(1)(A) and the number of gallons of such biodiesel in such mixture.

"(B) BIODIESEL.—If—

"(i) any credit was determined under this section with respect to the retail sale of any biodiesel, and

"(ii) any person mixes such biodiesel or uses such biodiesel other than as a fuel, then there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to the product of the rate applicable under subsection (b)(2)(A) and the number of gallons of such biodiesel.

"(C) APPLICABLE LAWS.—All provisions of law, including penalties, shall, insofar as applicable and not inconsistent with this section, apply in respect of any tax imposed under subparagraph (A) or (B) as if such tax were imposed by section 4081 and not by this chapter.

"(4) PASS-THRU IN THE CASE OF ESTATES AND TRUSTS.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, rules similar to the rules of subsection (d) of section 52 shall apply.

"(e) TERMINATION.—This section shall not apply to any sale or use after December 31, 2006.".

(b) CREDIT TREATED AS PART OF GENERAL BUSINESS CREDIT.—Section 38(b) (relating to current year business credit) is amended by striking "plus" at the end of paragraph (14), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (15) and inserting ", plus", and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(16) the biodiesel fuels credit determined under section 40A(a).".

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 39(d) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(11) NO CARRYBACK OF BIODIESEL FUELS CREDIT BEFORE EFFECTIVE DATE.—No portion of the unused business credit for any taxable year which is attributable to the biodiesel fuels credit determined under section 40A may be carried back to a taxable year ending on or before September 30, 2004.".

"SEC. 87. ALCOHOL AND BIODIESEL FUELS CREDITS.

"Gross income includes—

"(1) the amount of the alcohol fuels credit determined with respect to the taxpayer for the taxable year under section 40(a), and

"(2) the biodiesel fuels credit determined with respect to the taxpayer for the taxable year under section 40A(a).".

(B) The item relating to section 87 in the table of sections for part II of subchapter B of chapter 1 is amended by striking "fuel credit" and inserting "and biodiesel fuels credits".

(3) Section 196(c) is amended by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (9), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (10) and inserting ", and", and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

(4) The table of sections for subpart D of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 is amended by adding after the item relating to section 40 the following new item:

"Sec. 40A. Biodiesel used as fuel.".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to fuel produced, and sold or used, after September 30, 2004, in taxable years ending after such date.

Subtitle C—Fuel Fraud Prevention

SEC. 5200. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the "Fuel Fraud Prevention Act of 2004".

PART I—AVIATION JET FUEL

SEC. 5211. TAXATION OF AVIATION-GRADE KEROSENE.

(a) RATE OF TAX.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (A) of section 4081(a)(2) is amended by striking "and" at the end of clause (ii), by striking the period at the end of clause (iii) and inserting ", and", and by adding at the end the following new clause:

"(iv) in the case of aviation-grade kerosene, 21.8 cents per gallon.".

(2) COMMERCIAL AVIATION.—Paragraph (2) of section 4081(a) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(C) TAXES IMPOSED ON FUEL USED IN COMMERCIAL AVIATION.—In the case of aviation-grade kerosene which is removed from any refinery or terminal directly into the fuel tank of an aircraft for use in commercial aviation, the rate of tax under subparagraph (A)(iv) shall be 4.3 cents per gallon.".

(3) NONTAXABLE USES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Section 4082 is amended by redesignating subsections (e) and (f) as subsections (f) and (g), respectively, and by inserting after subsection (d) the following new subsection:

"(e) AVIATION-GRADE KEROSENE.—In the case of aviation-grade kerosene which is exempt from the tax imposed by section 4041(c) (other than by reason of a prior imposition of tax) and which is removed from any refinery or terminal directly into the fuel tank of an aircraft, the rate of tax under section 4081(a)(2)(A)(iv) shall be zero.".

(B) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(i) Subsection (b) of section 4082 is amended by adding at the end the following new flush sentence: "The term 'nontaxable use' does not include the use of aviation-grade kerosene in an aircraft.".

(ii) Section 4082(d) is amended by striking paragraph (1) and by redesignating paragraphs (2) and (3) as paragraphs (1) and (2), respectively.

(4) NONAIRCRAFT USE OF AVIATION-GRADE KEROSENE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (B) of section 4041(a)(1) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "This subparagraph shall not apply to aviation-grade kerosene.".

(B) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The heading for paragraph (1) of section 4041(a) is amended by inserting "AND KEROSENE" after "DIESEL FUEL".

(b) COMMERCIAL AVIATION.—Section 4083 is amended redesignating subsections (b) and (c) as subsections (c) and (d), respectively, and by inserting after subsection (a) the following new subsection:

"(b) COMMERCIAL AVIATION.—For purposes of this subpart, the term 'commercial aviation' means any use of an aircraft in a business of transporting persons or property for compensation or hire by air, unless properly allocable to any transportation exempt from the taxes imposed by section 4261 and 4271 by reason of section 4281 or 4282 or by reason of section 4261(h).".

(c) REFUNDS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (4) of section 6427(l) is amended to read as follows:

"(4) REFUNDS FOR AVIATION-GRADE KEROSENE.—

"(A) NO REFUND OF CERTAIN TAXES ON FUEL USED IN COMMERCIAL AVIATION.—In the case of aviation-grade kerosene used in commercial aviation (as defined in section 4083(b)) (other than supplies for vessels or aircraft within the meaning of section 4221(d)(3)), paragraph (1) shall not apply to so much of the tax imposed by section 4081 as is attributable to—

"(i) the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund financing rate imposed by such section, and

"(ii) so much of the rate of tax specified in section 4081(a)(2)(A)(iv) as does not exceed 4.3 cents per gallon.

"(B) PAYMENT TO ULTIMATE, REGISTERED VENDOR.—With respect to aviation-grade kerosene, if the ultimate purchaser of such kerosene waives (at such time and in such form and manner as the Secretary shall prescribe) the right to payment under paragraph (1) and assigns such right to the ultimate vendor, then the Secretary shall pay the amount which would be paid under paragraph (1) to such ultimate vendor, but only if such ultimate vendor—

"(i) is registered under section 4101, and

"(ii) meets the requirements of subparagraph (A), (B), or (D) of section 6416(a)(1).".

(2) TIME FOR FILING CLAIMS.—Paragraph (4) of section 6427(i) is amended by striking "subsection (l)(5)" and inserting "paragraph (4)(B) or (5) of subsection (l)".

(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Subparagraph (B) of section 6427(l)(2) is amended to read as follows:

"(B) in the case of aviation-grade kerosene—

"(i) any use which is exempt from the tax imposed by section 4041(c) other than by reason of a prior imposition of tax, or

"(ii) any use in commercial aviation (within the meaning of section 4083(b)).".

(d) REPEAL OF PRIOR TAXATION OF AVIATION FUEL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Part III of subchapter A of chapter 32 is amended by striking subpart B and by redesignating subpart C as subpart B.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Section 4041(c) is amended to read as follows:

"(c) AVIATION-GRADE KEROSENE.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—There is hereby imposed a tax upon aviation-grade kerosene—

"(A) sold by any person to an owner, lessee, or other operator of an aircraft for use in such aircraft, or

"(B) used by any person in an aircraft unless there was a taxable sale of such fuel under subparagraph (A).

"(2) EXEMPTION FOR PREVIOUSLY TAXED FUEL.—No tax shall be imposed by this subsection on the sale or use of any aviation-grade kerosene if tax was imposed on such liquid under section 4081 and the tax thereon was not credited or refunded.

"(3) RATE OF TAX.—The rate of tax imposed by this subsection shall be the rate of tax specified in section 4081(a)(2)(A)(iv) which is in effect at the time of such sale or use.".

(B) Section 4041(d)(2) is amended by striking "section 4091" and inserting "section 4081".

(C) Section 4041 is amended by striking subsection (e).

(D) Section 4041 is amended by striking subsection (i).

(E) Section 4041(m)(1) is amended to read as follows:

"(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of the sale or use of any partially exempt methanol or ethanol fuel, the rate of the tax imposed by subsection (a)(2) shall be—

"(A) after September 30, 1997, and before September 30, 2009—

"(i) in the case of fuel none of the alcohol in which consists of ethanol, 9.15 cents per gallon, and

"(ii) in any other case, 11.3 cents per gallon, and

"(B) after September 30, 2009—

"(i) in the case of fuel none of the alcohol in which consists of ethanol, 2.15 cents per gallon, and

"(ii) in any other case, 4.3 cents per gallon.".

(F) Sections 4101(a), 4103, 4221(a), and 6206 are each amended by striking ", 4081, or 4091" and inserting "or 4081".

(G) Section 6416(b)(2) is amended by striking "4091 or".

(H) Section 6416(b)(3) is amended by striking "or 4091" each place it appears.

(I) Section 6416(d) is amended by striking "or to the tax imposed by section 4091 in the case of refunds described in section 4091(d)".

(J) Section 6427 is amended by striking subsection (f).

(K) Section 6427(j)(1) is amended by striking ", 4081, and 4091" and inserting "and 4081".

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection and in subsection (k), if any diesel fuel or kerosene on which tax has been imposed by section 4041 or 4081 is used by any person in a nontaxable use, the Secretary shall pay (without interest) to the ultimate purchaser of such fuel an amount equal to the aggregate amount of tax imposed on such fuel under section 4041 or 4081, as the case may be, reduced by any refund paid to the ultimate vendor under paragraph (4)(B).".

(ii) Paragraph (5)(B) of section 6427(l) is amended by striking "Paragraph (1)(A) shall not apply to kerosene" and inserting "Paragraph (1) shall not apply to kerosene (other than aviation-grade kerosene)".

(M) Subparagraph (B) of section 6724(d)(1) is amended by striking clause (xv) and by redesignating the succeeding clauses accordingly.

(N) Paragraph (2) of section 6724(d) is amended by striking subparagraph (W) and by redesignating the succeeding subparagraphs accordingly.

(O) Paragraph (1) of section 9502(b) is amended by adding "and" at the end of subparagraph (B) and by striking subparagraphs (C) and (D) and inserting the following new subparagraph:

"(C) section 4081 with respect to aviation gasoline and aviation-grade kerosene, and".

(P) The last sentence of section 9502(b) is amended to read as follows:

"There shall not be taken into account under paragraph (1) so much of the taxes imposed by section 4081 as are determined at the rate specified in section 4081(a)(2)(B).".

Subtitle D—Definition of Highway Vehicle

SEC. 5301. EXEMPTION FROM CERTAIN EXCISE TAXES FOR MOBILE MACHINERY.

(a) Exemption From Tax on Heavy Trucks and Trailers Sold at Retail.—

(1) In general.—Section 4053 (relating to exemptions) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(8) Mobile machinery.—Any vehicle which consists of a chassis—

"(A) to which there has been permanently mounted (by welding, bolting, riveting, or other means) machinery or equipment to perform a construction, manufacturing, processing, farming, mining, drilling, timbering, or similar operation if the operation of the machinery or equipment is unrelated to transportation on or off the public highways,

"(B) which has been specially designed to serve only as a mobile carriage and mount (and a power source, where applicable) for the particular machinery or equipment involved, whether or not such machinery or equipment is in operation, and

"(C) which, by reason of such special design, could not, without substantial structural modification, be used as a component of a vehicle designed to perform a function of transporting any load other than that particular machinery or equipment or similar machinery or equipment requiring such a specially designed chassis.".

(2) Effective date.—The amendment made by this subsection shall take effect on the day after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) Exemption From Tax on Use of Certain Vehicles.—

(1) In general.—Section 4483 (relating to exemptions) is amended by redesignating subsection (g) as subsection (h) and by inserting after subsection (f) the following new subsection:

"(g) Exemption for Mobile Machinery.—No tax shall be imposed by section 4481 on the use of any vehicle described in section 4053(8).".

(2) Effective date.—The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on the day after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(d) Exemption From Fuel Taxes.—

(1) In general.—Section 6421(e)(2) (defining off-highway business use) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(C) Uses in mobile machinery.—

"(i) In general.—The term 'off-highway business use' shall include any use in a vehicle which meets the requirements described in clause (ii).

"(ii) Requirements for mobile machinery.—The requirements described in this clause are—

"(I) the design-based test, and

"(II) the use-based test.

"(iii) Design-based test.—For purposes of clause (ii)(I), the design-based test is met if the vehicle consists of a chassis—

"(I) to which there has been permanently mounted (by welding, bolting, riveting, or other means) machinery or equipment to perform a construction, manufacturing, processing, farming, mining, drilling, timbering, or similar operation if the operation of the machinery or equipment is unrelated to transportation on or off the public highways,

"(II) which has been specially designed to serve only as a mobile carriage and mount (and a power source, where applicable) for the particular machinery or equipment involved, whether or not such machinery or equipment is in operation, and

"(III) which, by reason of such special design, could not, without substantial structural modification, be used as a component of a vehicle designed to perform a function of transporting any load other than that particular machinery or equipment or similar machinery or equipment requiring such a specially designed chassis.

"(iv) Use-based test.—For purposes of clause (ii)(II), the use-based test is met if the use of the vehicle on public highways was less than 5,000 miles during the taxpayer's taxable year.

"(v) Special rule for use by certain tax-exempt organizations.—In the case of any use in a vehicle by an organization which is described in section 501(c) and exempt from tax under section 501(a), clause (ii) shall be applied without regard to subclause (II) thereof.".

(2) Annual refund of tax paid.—Section 6427(i)(2) (relating to exceptions) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(C) Nonapplication of paragraph.—This paragraph shall not apply to any fuel used in any off-highway business use described in section 6421(e)(2)(C).".

SEC. 5302. MODIFICATION OF DEFINITION OF OFF-HIGHWAY VEHICLE.

(a) In General.—Section 7701(a) (relating to definitions) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(48) Off-highway vehicles.—

"(A) Off-highway transportation vehicles.—

"(i) In general.—A vehicle shall not be treated as a highway vehicle if such vehicle is specially designed for the primary function of transporting a particular type of load other than over the public highway and because of this special design such vehicle's capability to transport a load over the public highway is substantially limited or impaired.

"(ii) Determination of vehicle's design.—For purposes of clause (i), a vehicle's design is determined solely on the basis of its physical characteristics.

"(iii) Determination of substantial limitation or impairment.—For purposes of clause (i), in determining whether substantial limitation or impairment exists, account may be taken of factors such as the size of the vehicle, whether such vehicle is subject to the licensing, safety, and other requirements applicable to highway vehicles, and whether such vehicle can transport a load at a sustained speed of at least 25 miles per hour. It is immaterial that a vehicle can transport a greater load off the public highway than such vehicle is permitted to transport over the public highway.

"(B) Nontransportation trailers and semitrailers.—A trailer or semitrailer shall not be treated as a highway vehicle if it is specially designed to function only as an enclosed stationary shelter for the carrying on of an off-highway function at an off-highway site.".

(c) Effective Dates.—

(1) In general.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendment made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) Fuel taxes.—With respect to taxes imposed under subchapter B of chapter 31 and part III of subchapter A of chapter 32, the amendment made by this section shall apply to taxable periods beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5432. SUSPENSION OF LIMITATION ON RATE OF RUM EXCISE TAX COVER OVER TO PUERTO RICO AND VIRGIN ISLANDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 7652(f)(1) (relating to limitation on cover over of tax on distilled spirits) is amended by striking "January 1, 2004" and inserting "October 1, 2004, and $13.50 in the case of distilled spirits brought into the United States after September 30, 2004, and before January 1, 2006".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to articles containing distilled spirits brought into the United States after December 31, 2003.

(2) SPECIAL RULE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—After September 30, 2004, the treasury of Puerto Rico shall make a Conservation Trust Fund transfer within 30 days from the date of each cover over payment to such treasury under section 7652(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(B) CONSERVATION TRUST FUND TRANSFER.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term "Conservation Trust Fund transfer" means a transfer to the Puerto Rico Conservation Trust Fund of an amount equal to 50 cents per proof gallon of the taxes imposed under section 5001 or section 7652 of such Code on distilled spirits that are covered over to the treasury of Puerto Rico under section 7652(e) of such Code.

(ii) TREATMENT OF TRANSFER.—Each Conservation Trust Fund transfer shall be treated as principal for an endowment, the income from which to be available for use by the Puerto Rico Conservation Trust Fund for the purposes for which the Trust Fund was established.

(iii) RESULT OF NONTRANSFER.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—Upon notification by the Secretary of the Interior that a Conservation Trust Fund transfer has not been made by the treasury of Puerto Rico, the Secretary of the Treasury shall, except as provided in subclause (II), deduct and withhold from the next cover over payment to be made to the treasury of Puerto Rico under section 7652(e) of such Code an amount equal to the appropriate Conservation Trust Fund transfer and interest thereon at the underpayment rate established under section 6621 of such Code as of the due date of such transfer. The Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer such amount deducted and withheld, and the interest thereon, directly to the Puerto Rico Conservation Trust Fund.

(II) GOOD CAUSE EXCEPTION.—If the Secretary of the Interior finds, after consultation with the Governor of Puerto Rico, that the failure by the treasury of Puerto Rico to make a required transfer was for good cause, and notifies the Secretary of the Treasury of the finding of such good cause before the due date of the next cover over payment following the notification of nontransfer, then the Secretary of the Treasury shall not deduct the amount of such nontransfer from any cover over payment.

(C) PUERTO RICO CONSERVATION TRUST FUND.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term "Puerto Rico Conservation Trust Fund" means the fund established pursuant to a Memorandum of Understanding between the United States Department of the Interior and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, dated December 24, 1968.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart D of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 (relating to business-related credits), as amended by section 5452 of this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 45H. AUXILIARY POWER UNIT CREDIT.

"(a) GENERAL RULE.—For purposes of section 38, the amount of the auxiliary power unit credit determined under this section for the taxable year is $250 for each qualified auxiliary power unit—

"(1) purchased by the taxpayer, and

"(2) installed or caused to be installed by the taxpayer on a qualified heavy-duty highway vehicle during such taxable year.

"(b) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) QUALIFIED AUXILIARY POWER UNIT.—The term 'qualified auxiliary power unit' means any integrated system which—

"(A) provides heat, air conditioning, engine warming, and electricity to the factory installed components on a qualified heavy-duty highway vehicle as if the main drive engine of such vehicle was in operation,

"(B) is employed to reduce long-term idling of the diesel engine on such a vehicle, and

"(C) is certified by the Environmental Protection Agency as meeting emission standards in regulations in effect on the date of the enactment of this section.

"(2) QUALIFIED HEAVY-DUTY HIGHWAY VEHICLE.—The term 'qualified heavy-duty highway vehicle' means any highway vehicle weighing more than 12,500 pounds and powered by a diesel engine.

"(c) TERMINATION.—This section shall not apply with respect to any installation occurring after December 31, 2006.".

(b) CREDIT TREATED AS PART OF GENERAL BUSINESS CREDIT.—Section 38(b) (relating to current year business credit), as amended by section 5452 of this Act, is amended by striking "plus" at the end of paragraph (17), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (18) and inserting ", plus", and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(19) the auxiliary power unit credit under section 45H(a).".

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 39(d), as amended by section 5452 of this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(14) NO CARRYBACK OF SECTION 45H CREDIT BEFORE EFFECTIVE DATE.—No portion of the unused business credit for any taxable year which is attributable to the credit determined under section 45H(a) may be carried back to a taxable year beginning on or before the date of the enactment of section 45H.".

(2) The table of sections for subpart D of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1, as amended by section 5452 of this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"Sec. 45H. Auxiliary power unit credit.".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to auxiliary power units purchased and installed for taxable years beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Subtitle F—Miscellaneous Provisions

SEC. 5501. MOTOR FUEL TAX ENFORCEMENT ADVISORY COMMISSION.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established a Motor Fuel Tax Enforcement Advisory Commission (in this section referred to as the "Commission").

(b) FUNCTION.—The Commission shall—

(1) review motor fuel revenue collections, historical and current;

(2) review the progress of investigations;

(3) develop and review legislative proposals with respect to motor fuel taxes;

(4) monitor the progress of administrative regulation projects relating to motor fuel taxes;

(5) review the results of Federal and State agency cooperative efforts regarding motor fuel taxes;

(6) review the results of Federal interagency cooperative efforts regarding motor fuel taxes; and

(7) evaluate and make recommendations regarding—

(A) the effectiveness of existing Federal enforcement programs regarding motor fuel taxes,

(B) enforcement personnel allocation, and

(C) proposals for regulatory projects, legislation, and funding.

(c) MEMBERSHIP.—

(1) APPOINTMENT.—The Commission shall be composed of the following representatives appointed by the Chairmen and the Ranking Members of the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives:

(A) At least 1 representative from each of the following Federal entities: the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Transportation - Office of Inspector General, the Federal Highway Administration, the Department of Defense, and the Department of Justice.

(B) At least 1 representative from the Federation of State Tax Administrators.

(C) At least 1 representative from any State department of transportation.

(D) 2 representatives from the highway construction industry.

(E) 5 representatives from industries relating to fuel distribution — refiners (2 representatives), distributors (1 representative), pipelines (1 representative), and terminal operators (2 representatives).

(F) 1 representative from the retail fuel industry.

(G) 2 representatives from the staff of the Committee on Finance of the Senate and 2 representatives from the staff of the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives.

(2) TERMS.—Members shall be appointed for the life of the Commission.

(3) VACANCIES.—A vacancy in the Commission shall be filled in the manner in which the original appointment was made.

(4) TRAVEL EXPENSES.—Members shall serve without pay but shall receive travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, in accordance with sections 5702 and 5703 of title 5, United States Code.

(5) CHAIRMAN.—The Chairman of the Commission shall be elected by the members.

(d) FUNDING.—Such sums as are necessary shall be available from the Highway Trust fund for the expenses of the Commission.

(e) CONSULTATION.—Upon request of the Commission, representatives of the Department of the Treasury and the Internal Revenue Service shall be available for consultation to assist the Commission in carrying out its duties under this section.

(f) OBTAINING DATA.—The Commission may secure directly from any department or agency of the United States, information (other than information required by any law to be kept confidential by such department or agency) necessary for the Commission to carry out its duties under this section. Upon request of the Commission, the head of that department or agency shall furnish such nonconfidential information to the Commission. The Commission shall also gather evidence through such means as it may deem appropriate, including through holding hearings and soliciting comments by means of Federal Register notices.

(g) TERMINATION.—The Commission shall terminate after September 30, 2009.

SEC. 5502. NATIONAL SURFACE TRANSPORTATION INFRASTRUCTURE FINANCING COMMISSION.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established a National Surface Transportation Infrastructure Financing Commission (in this section referred to as the "Commission"). The Commission shall hold its first meeting within 90 days of the appointment of the eighth individual to be named to the Commission.

(b) FUNCTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission shall—

(A) make a thorough investigation and study of revenues flowing into the Highway Trust Fund under current law, including the individual components of the overall flow of such revenues;

(B) consider whether the amount of such revenues is likely to increase, decline, or remain unchanged, absent changes in the law, particularly by taking into account the impact of possible changes in public vehicular choice, fuel use, or travel alternatives that could be expected to reduce or increase revenues into the Highway Trust Fund;

(C) consider alternative approaches to generating revenues for the Highway Trust Fund, and the level of revenues that such alternatives would yield;

(D) consider highway and transit needs and whether additional revenues into the Highway Trust Fund, or other Federal revenues dedicated to highway and transit infrastructure, would be required in order to meet such needs; and

(E) study such other matters closely related to the subjects described in the preceding subparagraphs as it may deem appropriate.

(2) TIME FRAME OF INVESTIGATION AND STUDY.—The time frame to be considered by the Commission shall extend through the year 2015.

(3) PREPARATION OF REPORT.—Based on such investigation and study, the Commission shall develop a final report, with recommendations and the bases for those recommendations, indicating policies that should be adopted, or not adopted, to achieve various levels of annual revenue for the Highway Trust Fund and to enable the Highway Trust Fund to receive revenues sufficient to meet highway and transit needs. Such recommendations shall address, among other matters as the Commission may deem appropriate—

(A) what levels of revenue are required by the Federal Highway Trust Fund in order for it to meet needs to—

(i) maintain, and

(ii) improve the condition and performance of the Nation's highway and transit systems;

(B) what levels of revenue are required by the Federal Highway Trust Fund in order to ensure that Federal levels of investment in highways and transit do not decline in real terms; and

(C) the extent, if any, to which the Highway Trust Fund should be augmented by other mechanisms or funds as a Federal means of financing highway and transit infrastructure investments.

(c) MEMBERSHIP.—

(1) APPOINTMENT.—The Commission shall be composed of 15 members, appointed as follows:

(A) 7 members appointed by the Secretary of Transportation, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury.

(B) 2 members appointed by the Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives.

(C) 2 members appointed by the Ranking Minority Member of the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives.

(D) 2 members appointed by the Chairman of the Committee on Finance of the Senate.

(E) 2 members appointed by the Ranking Minority Member of the Committee on Finance of the Senate.

(2) QUALIFICATIONS.—Members appointed pursuant to paragraph (1) shall be appointed from among individuals knowledgeable in the fields of public transportation finance or highway and transit programs, policy, and needs, and may include representatives of interested parties, such as State and local governments or other public transportation authorities or agencies, representatives of the transportation construction industry (including suppliers of technology, machinery and materials), transportation labor (including construction and providers), transportation providers, the financial community, and users of highway and transit systems.

(3) TERMS.—Members shall be appointed for the life of the Commission.

(4) VACANCIES.—A vacancy in the Commission shall be filled in the manner in which the original appointment was made.

(5) TRAVEL EXPENSES.—Members shall serve without pay but shall receive travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, in accordance with sections 5702 and 5703 of title 5, United States Code.

(6) CHAIRMAN.—The Chairman of the Commission shall be elected by the members.

(d) STAFF.—The Commission may appoint and fix the pay of such personnel as it considers appropriate.

(e) FUNDING.—Funding for the Commission shall be provided by the Secretary of the Treasury and by the Secretary of Transportation, out of funds available to those agencies for administrative and policy functions.

(f) STAFF OF FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Upon request of the Commission, the head of any department or agency of the United States may detail any of the personnel of that department or agency to the Commission to assist in carrying out its duties under this section.

(g) OBTAINING DATA.—The Commission may secure directly from any department or agency of the United States, information (other than information required by any law to be kept confidential by such department or agency) necessary for the Commission to carry out its duties under this section. Upon request of the Commission, the head of that department or agency shall furnish such nonconfidential information to the Commission. The Commission shall also gather evidence through such means as it may deem appropriate, including through holding hearings and soliciting comments by means of Federal Register notices.

(h) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of its first meeting, the Commission shall transmit its final report, including recommendations, to the Secretary of Transportation, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Finance of the Senate, the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the Senate, and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate.

(i) TERMINATION.—The Commission shall terminate on the 180th day following the date of transmittal of the report under subsection (h). All records and papers of the Commission shall thereupon be delivered to the Administrator of General Services for deposit in the National Archives.

SEC. 5503. TREASURY STUDY OF FUEL TAX COMPLIANCE AND INTERAGENCY COOPERATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than January 31, 2006, the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives a report regarding fuel tax enforcement which shall include the information and analysis specified in subsections (b) and (c) and any other information and recommendations the Secretary of the Treasury may deem appropriate.

(b) AUDITS.—With respect to audits conducted by the Internal Revenue Service, the report required under subsection (a) shall include—

(1) the number and geographic distribution of audits conducted annually, by fiscal year, between October 1, 2001, and September 30, 2005;

(2) the total volume involved for each of the taxable fuels covered by such audits and a comparison to the annual production of such fuels;

(3) the staff hours and number of personnel devoted to the audits per year; and

(4) the results of such audits by year, including total tax collected, total penalties collected, and number of referrals for criminal prosecution.

(c) ENFORCEMENT ACTIVITIES.—With respect to enforcement activities, the report required under subsection (a) shall include—

(1) the number and geographic distribution of criminal investigations and prosecutions annually, by fiscal year, between October 1, 2001, and September 30, 2005, and the results of such investigations and prosecutions;

(2) to the extent such investigations and prosecutions involved other agencies, State or Federal, a breakdown by agency of the number of joint investigations involved;

(3) an assessment of the effectiveness of joint action and cooperation between the Department of the Treasury and other Federal and State agencies, including a discussion of the ability and need to share information across agencies for both civil and criminal Federal tax enforcement and enforcement of State or Federal laws relating to fuels;

(4) the staff hours and number of personnel devoted to criminal investigations and prosecutions per year;

(5) the staff hours and number of personnel devoted to administrative collection of fuel taxes; and

(6) the results of administrative collection efforts annually, by fiscal year, between October 1, 2001, and September 30, 2005.

SEC. 5504. EXPANSION OF HIGHWAY TRUST FUND EXPENDITURE PURPOSES TO INCLUDE FUNDING FOR STUDIES OF SUPPLEMENTAL OR ALTERNATIVE FINANCING FOR THE HIGHWAY TRUST FUND.

(a) IN GENERAL.—From amounts available in the Highway Trust Fund, there is authorized to be expended for 2 comprehensive studies of supplemental or alternative funding sources for the Highway Trust Fund—

(1) $1,000,000 to the Western Transportation Institute of the College of Engineering at Montana State University for the study and report described in subsection (b), and

(2) $16,500,000 to the Public Policy Center of the University of Iowa for the study and report described in subsection (c).

(b) STUDY OF FUNDING MECHANISMS.—Not later than December 31, 2006, the Western Transportation Institute of the College of Engineering at Montana State University shall report to the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Transportation on a study of highway funding mechanisms of other industrialized nations, an examination of the viability of alternative funding proposals, including congestion pricing, greater reliance on tolls, privatization of facilities, and bonding for construction of added capacity, and an examination of increasing the rates of motor fuels taxes in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act, including the indexation of such rates.

(c) STUDY ON FIELD TEST OF ON-BOARD COMPUTER ASSESSMENT OF HIGHWAY USE TAXES.—Not later than December 31, 2011, the Public Policy Center of the University of Iowa shall direct, analyze, and report to the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Transportation on a long-term field test of an approach to assessing highway use taxes based upon actual mileage driven by a specific vehicle on specific types of highways by use of an on-board computer—

(1) which is linked to satellites to calculate highway mileage traversed,

(2) which computes the appropriate highway use tax for each of the Federal, State, and local governments as the vehicle makes use of the highways, and

(3) the data from which is periodically downloaded by the vehicle owner to a collection center for an assessment of highway use taxes due in each jurisdiction traversed.The components of the field test shall include 2 years for preparation, including selection of vendors and test participants, and 3-year testing period.

SEC. 5505. TREASURY STUDY OF HIGHWAY FUELS USED BY TRUCKS FOR NON-TRANSPORTATION PURPOSES.

(a) STUDY.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall conduct a study regarding the use of highway motor fuel by trucks that is not used for the propulsion of the vehicle. As part of such study—

(1) in the case of vehicles carrying equipment that is unrelated to the transportation function of the vehicle—

(A) the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of Transportation, and with public notice and comment, shall determine the average annual amount of tax paid fuel consumed per vehicle, by type of vehicle, used by the propulsion engine to provide the power to operate the equipment attached to the highway vehicle, and

(B) the Secretary of the Treasury shall review the technical and administrative feasibility of exempting such nonpropulsive use of highway fuels for the highway motor fuels excise taxes,

(2) in the case where non-transportation equipment is run by a separate motor—

(A) the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine the annual average amount of fuel exempted from tax in the use of such equipment by equipment type, and

(B) the Secretary of the Treasury shall review issues of administration and compliance related to the present-law exemption provided for such fuel use, and

(3) the Secretary of the Treasury shall—

(A) estimate the amount of taxable fuel consumed by trucks and the emissions of various pollutants due to the long-term idling of diesel engines, and

(B) determine the cost of reducing such long-term idling through the use of plug-ins at truck stops, auxiliary power units, or other technologies.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than January 1, 2006, the Secretary of the Treasury shall report the findings of the study required under subsection (a) to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 5506. DELTA REGIONAL TRANSPORTATION PLAN.

(a) STUDY.—The Delta Regional Authority shall conduct a study of the transportation assets and needs in the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, and Tennessee which comprise the Delta region.

(b) REGIONAL STRATEGIC TRANSPORTATION PLAN.—Upon completion of the study required under subsection (a), the Delta Regional Authority shall establish a regional strategic transportation plan to achieve efficient transportation systems in the Delta region. In developing the regional strategic transportation plan, the Delta Regional Authority shall consult with local planning and development districts, local and regional governments, metropolitan planning organizations, State transportation entities, and Federal transportation agencies.

(c) ELEMENTS OF STUDY AND PLAN.—The study and plan under this section shall include the following transportation modes and systems: transit, rail, highway, interstate, bridges, air, airports, waterways and ports.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Delta Regional Authority $1,000,000 to carry out the purposes of this section, to remain available until expended.

SEC. 5507. TREATMENT OF EMPLOYER-PROVIDED TRANSIT AND VAN POOLING BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (A) of section 132(f)(2) (relating to limitation on exclusion) is amended by striking "$100" and inserting "$120".

(b) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—The last sentence of section 132(f)(6)(A) (relating to inflation adjustment) is amended—

(1) by striking "2002" and inserting "2005", and

(2) by striking "2001" and inserting "2004".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2004.

SEC. 5508. STUDY OF INCENTIVES FOR PRODUCTION OF BIODIESEL.

(a) STUDY.—The General Comptroller of the United States shall conduct a study related to biodiesel fuels and the tax credit for biodiesel fuels established under this Act. Such study shall include—

(1) an assessment on whether such credit provides sufficient assistance to the producers of biodiesel fuel to establish the fuel as a viable energy alternative in the current market place,

(2) an assessment on how long such credit or similar subsidy would have to remain in effect before biodiesel fuel can compete in the market place without such assistance,

(3) a cost-benefit analysis of such credit, comparing the cost of the credit in forgone revenue to the benefits of lower fuel costs for consumers, increased profitability for the biodiesel industry, increased farm income, reduced program outlays from the Department of Agriculture, and the improved environmental conditions through the use of biodiesel fuel, and

(4) an assessment on whether such credit results in any unintended consequences for unrelated industries, including the impact, if any, on the glycerin market.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall report the findings of the study required under subsection (a) to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives.

Subtitle G—Revenue Offsets

PART I—LIMITATION ON EXPENSING CERTAIN PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES

SEC. 5601. EXPANSION OF LIMITATION ON DEPRECIATION OF CERTAIN PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 179(b) (relating to limitations) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(6) LIMITATION ON COST TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT FOR CERTAIN PASSENGER VEHICLES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The cost of any sport utility vehicle for any taxable year which may be taken into account under this section shall not exceed $25,000.

"(B) SPORT UTILITY VEHICLE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The term 'sport utility vehicle' means any 4-wheeled vehicle which—

"(I) is manufactured primarily for use on public streets, roads, and highways,

"(II) is not subject to section 280F, and

"(III) is rated at not more than 14,000 pounds gross vehicle weight.

"(ii) CERTAIN VEHICLES EXCLUDED.—Such term does not include any vehicle which—

"(I) does not have the primary load carrying device or container attached,

"(II) has a seating capacity of more than 12 individuals,

"(III) is designed for more than 9 individuals in seating rearward of the driver's seat,

"(IV) is equipped with an open cargo area, or a covered box not readily accessible from the passenger compartment, of at least 72.0 inches in interior length, or

"(V) has an integral enclosure, fully enclosing the driver compartment and load carrying device, does not have seating rearward of the driver's seat, and has no body section protruding more than 30 inches ahead of the leading edge of the windshield.".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to property placed in service after February 2, 2004.

PART II—PROVISIONS DESIGNED TO CURTAIL TAX SHELTERS

SEC. 5611. CLARIFICATION OF ECONOMIC SUBSTANCE DOCTRINE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 7701 is amended by redesignating subsection (n) as subsection (o) and by inserting after subsection (m) the following new subsection:

"(n) CLARIFICATION OF ECONOMIC SUBSTANCE DOCTRINE; ETC.—

"(1) GENERAL RULES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—In any case in which a court determines that the economic substance doctrine is relevant for purposes of this title to a transaction (or series of transactions), such transaction (or series of transactions) shall have economic substance only if the requirements of this paragraph are met.

"(B) DEFINITION OF ECONOMIC SUBSTANCE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—A transaction has economic substance only if—

"(I) the transaction changes in a meaningful way (apart from Federal tax effects) the taxpayer's economic position, and

"(II) the taxpayer has a substantial nontax purpose for entering into such transaction and the transaction is a reasonable means of accomplishing such purpose.

In applying subclause (II), a purpose of achieving a financial accounting benefit shall not be taken into account in determining whether a transaction has a substantial nontax purpose if the origin of such financial accounting benefit is a reduction of income tax.

"(ii) SPECIAL RULE WHERE TAXPAYER RELIES ON PROFIT POTENTIAL.—A transaction shall not be treated as having economic substance by reason of having a potential for profit unless—

"(I) the present value of the reasonably expected pre-tax profit from the transaction is substantial in relation to the present value of the expected net tax benefits that would be allowed if the transaction were respected, and

"(II) the reasonably expected pre-tax profit from the transaction exceeds a risk-free rate of return.

"(C) TREATMENT OF FEES AND FOREIGN TAXES.—Fees and other transaction expenses and foreign taxes shall be taken into account as expenses in determining pre-tax profit under subparagraph (B)(ii).

"(2) SPECIAL RULES FOR TRANSACTIONS WITH TAX-INDIFFERENT PARTIES.—

"(A) SPECIAL RULES FOR FINANCING TRANSACTIONS.—The form of a transaction which is in substance the borrowing of money or the acquisition of financial capital directly or indirectly from a tax-indifferent party shall not be respected if the present value of the deductions to be claimed with respect to the transaction is substantially in excess of the present value of the anticipated economic returns of the person lending the money or providing the financial capital. A public offering shall be treated as a borrowing, or an acquisition of financial capital, from a tax-indifferent party if it is reasonably expected that at least 50 percent of the offering will be placed with tax-indifferent parties.

"(B) ARTIFICIAL INCOME SHIFTING AND BASIS ADJUSTMENTS.—The form of a transaction with a tax-indifferent party shall not be respected if—

"(i) it results in an allocation of income or gain to the tax-indifferent party in excess of such party's economic income or gain, or

"(ii) it results in a basis adjustment or shifting of basis on account of overstating the income or gain of the tax-indifferent party.

"(3) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) ECONOMIC SUBSTANCE DOCTRINE.—The term 'economic substance doctrine' means the common law doctrine under which tax benefits under subtitle A with respect to a transaction are not allowable if the transaction does not have economic substance or lacks a business purpose.

"(B) TAX-INDIFFERENT PARTY.—The term 'tax-indifferent party' means any person or entity not subject to tax imposed by subtitle A. A person shall be treated as a tax-indifferent party with respect to a transaction if the items taken into account with respect to the transaction have no substantial impact on such person's liability under subtitle A.

"(C) EXCEPTION FOR PERSONAL TRANSACTIONS OF INDIVIDUALS.—In the case of an individual, this subsection shall apply only to transactions entered into in connection with a trade or business or an activity engaged in for the production of income.

"(D) TREATMENT OF LESSORS.—In applying paragraph (1)(B)(ii) to the lessor of tangible property subject to a lease—

"(i) the expected net tax benefits with respect to the leased property shall not include the benefits of—

"(I) depreciation,

"(II) any tax credit, or

"(III) any other deduction as provided in guidance by the Secretary, and

"(ii) subclause (II) of paragraph (1)(B)(ii) shall be disregarded in determining whether any of such benefits are allowable.

"(4) OTHER COMMON LAW DOCTRINES NOT AFFECTED.—Except as specifically provided in this subsection, the provisions of this subsection shall not be construed as altering or supplanting any other rule of law, and the requirements of this subsection shall be construed as being in addition to any such other rule of law.

"(5) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this subsection. Such regulations may include exemptions from the application of this subsection.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to transactions entered into after February 2, 2004.

SEC. 5612. PENALTY FOR FAILING TO DISCLOSE REPORTABLE TRANSACTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part I of subchapter B of chapter 68 (relating to assessable penalties) is amended by inserting after section 6707 the following new section:

"SEC. 6707A. PENALTY FOR FAILURE TO INCLUDE REPORTABLE TRANSACTION INFORMATION WITH RETURN OR STATEMENT.

"(a) IMPOSITION OF PENALTY.—Any person who fails to include on any return or statement any information with respect to a reportable transaction which is required under section 6011 to be included with such return or statement shall pay a penalty in the amount determined under subsection (b).

"(b) AMOUNT OF PENALTY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3), the amount of the penalty under subsection (a) shall be $50,000.

"(2) LISTED TRANSACTION.—The amount of the penalty under subsection (a) with respect to a listed transaction shall be $100,000.

"(3) INCREASE IN PENALTY FOR LARGE ENTITIES AND HIGH NET WORTH INDIVIDUALS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a failure under subsection (a) by—

"(i) a large entity, or

"(ii) a high net worth individual, the penalty under paragraph (1) or (2) shall be twice the amount determined without regard to this paragraph.

"(B) LARGE ENTITY.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term 'large entity' means, with respect to any taxable year, a person (other than a natural person) with gross receipts in excess of $10,000,000 for the taxable year in which the reportable transaction occurs or the preceding taxable year. Rules similar to the rules of paragraph (2) and subparagraphs (B), (C), and (D) of paragraph (3) of section 448(c) shall apply for purposes of this subparagraph.

"(C) HIGH NET WORTH INDIVIDUAL.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term 'high net worth individual' means, with respect to a reportable transaction, a natural person whose net worth exceeds $2,000,000 immediately before the transaction.

"(c) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) REPORTABLE TRANSACTION.—The term 'reportable transaction' means any transaction with respect to which information is required to be included with a return or statement because, as determined under regulations prescribed under section 6011, such transaction is of a type which the Secretary determines as having a potential for tax avoidance or evasion.

"(2) LISTED TRANSACTION.—Except as provided in regulations, the term 'listed transaction' means a reportable transaction which is the same as, or substantially similar to, a transaction specifically identified by the Secretary as a tax avoidance transaction for purposes of section 6011.

"(d) AUTHORITY TO RESCIND PENALTY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue may rescind all or any portion of any penalty imposed by this section with respect to any violation if—

"(A) the violation is with respect to a reportable transaction other than a listed transaction,

"(B) the person on whom the penalty is imposed has a history of complying with the requirements of this title,

"(C) it is shown that the violation is due to an unintentional mistake of fact;

"(D) imposing the penalty would be against equity and good conscience, and

"(E) rescinding the penalty would promote compliance with the requirements of this title and effective tax administration.

"(2) DISCRETION.—The exercise of authority under paragraph (1) shall be at the sole discretion of the Commissioner and may be delegated only to the head of the Office of Tax Shelter Analysis. The Commissioner, in the Commissioner's sole discretion, may establish a procedure to determine if a penalty should be referred to the Commissioner or the head of such Office for a determination under paragraph (1).

"(3) NO APPEAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any determination under this subsection may not be reviewed in any administrative or judicial proceeding.

"(4) RECORDS.—If a penalty is rescinded under paragraph (1), the Commissioner shall place in the file in the Office of the Commissioner the opinion of the Commissioner or the head of the Office of Tax Shelter Analysis with respect to the determination, including—

"(A) the facts and circumstances of the transaction,

"(B) the reasons for the rescission, and

"(C) the amount of the penalty rescinded.

"(5) REPORT.—The Commissioner shall each year report to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Finance of the Senate—

"(A) a summary of the total number and aggregate amount of penalties imposed, and rescinded, under this section, and

"(B) a description of each penalty rescinded under this subsection and the reasons therefor.

"(e) PENALTY REPORTED TO SEC.—In the case of a person—

"(1) which is required to file periodic reports under section 13 or 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 or is required to be consolidated with another person for purposes of such reports, and

"(2) which—

"(A) is required to pay a penalty under this section with respect to a listed transaction,

"(B) is required to pay a penalty under section 6662A with respect to any reportable transaction at a rate prescribed under section 6662A(c), or

"(C) is required to pay a penalty under section 6662B with respect to any noneconomic substance transaction, the requirement to pay such penalty shall be disclosed in such reports filed by such person for such periods as the Secretary shall specify. Failure to make a disclosure in accordance with the preceding sentence shall be treated as a failure to which the penalty under subsection (b)(2) applies.

"(f) COORDINATION WITH OTHER PENALTIES.—The penalty imposed by this section is in addition to any penalty imposed under this title.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for part I of subchapter B of chapter 68 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 6707 the following:

"Sec. 6707A. Penalty for failure to include reportable transaction information with return or statement.".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to returns and statements the due date for which is after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5613. ACCURACY-RELATED PENALTY FOR LISTED TRANSACTIONS AND OTHER REPORTABLE TRANSACTIONS HAVING A SIGNIFICANT TAX AVOIDANCE PURPOSE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 68 is amended by inserting after section 6662 the following new section:

"SEC. 6662A. IMPOSITION OF ACCURACY-RELATED PENALTY ON UNDERSTATEMENTS WITH RESPECT TO REPORTABLE TRANSACTIONS.

"(a) IMPOSITION OF PENALTY.—If a taxpayer has a reportable transaction understatement for any taxable year, there shall be added to the tax an amount equal to 20 percent of the amount of such understatement.

"(b) Reportable Transaction Understatement.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) In general.—The term 'reportable transaction understatement' means the sum of—

"(A) the product of—

"(i) the amount of the increase (if any) in taxable income which results from a difference between the proper tax treatment of an item to which this section applies and the taxpayer's treatment of such item (as shown on the taxpayer's return of tax), and

"(ii) the highest rate of tax imposed by section 1 (section 11 in the case of a taxpayer which is a corporation), and

"(B) the amount of the decrease (if any) in the aggregate amount of credits determined under subtitle A which results from a difference between the taxpayer's treatment of an item to which this section applies (as shown on the taxpayer's return of tax) and the proper tax treatment of such item.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), any reduction of the excess of deductions allowed for the taxable year over gross income for such year, and any reduction in the amount of capital losses which would (without regard to section 1211) be allowed for such year, shall be treated as an increase in taxable income.

"(2) Items to which section applies.—This section shall apply to any item which is attributable to—

"(A) any listed transaction, and

"(B) any reportable transaction (other than a listed transaction) if a significant purpose of such transaction is the avoidance or evasion of Federal income tax.

"(c) Higher Penalty for Nondisclosed Listed and Other Avoidance Transactions.—

"(1) In general.—Subsection (a) shall be applied by substituting '30 percent' for '20 percent' with respect to the portion of any reportable transaction understatement with respect to which the requirement of section 6664(d)(2)(A) is not met.

"(2) Rules applicable to assertion and compromise of penalty.—

"(A) In general.—Only upon the approval by the Chief Counsel for the Internal Revenue Service or the Chief Counsel's delegate at the national office of the Internal Revenue Service may a penalty to which paragraph (1) applies be included in a 1st letter of proposed deficiency which allows the taxpayer an opportunity for administrative review in the Internal Revenue Service Office of Appeals. If such a letter is provided to the taxpayer, only the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may compromise all or any portion of such penalty.

"(B) Applicable rules.—The rules of paragraphs (2), (3), (4), and (5) of section 6707A(d) shall apply for purposes of subparagraph (A).

"(d) Definitions of Reportable and Listed Transactions.—For purposes of this section, the terms 'reportable transaction' and 'listed transaction' have the respective meanings given to such terms by section 6707A(c).

"(e) Special Rules.—

"(1) Coordination with penalties, etc., on other understatements.—In the case of an understatement (as defined in section 6662(d)(2))—

"(A) the amount of such understatement (determined without regard to this paragraph) shall be increased by the aggregate amount of reportable transaction understatements and noneconomic substance transaction understatements for purposes of determining whether such understatement is a substantial understatement under section 6662(d)(1), and

"(B) the addition to tax under section 6662(a) shall apply only to the excess of the amount of the substantial understatement (if any) after the application of subparagraph (A) over the aggregate amount of reportable transaction understatements and noneconomic substance transaction understatements.

"(2) Coordination with other penalties.—

"(A) Application of fraud penalty.—References to an underpayment in section 6663 shall be treated as including references to a reportable transaction understatement and a noneconomic substance transaction understatement.

"(B) No double penalty.—This section shall not apply to any portion of an understatement on which a penalty is imposed under section 6662B or 6663.

"(3) Special rule for amended returns.—Except as provided in regulations, in no event shall any tax treatment included with an amendment or supplement to a return of tax be taken into account in determining the amount of any reportable transaction understatement or noneconomic substance transaction understatement if the amendment or supplement is filed after the earlier of the date the taxpayer is first contacted by the Secretary regarding the examination of the return or such other date as is specified by the Secretary.

"(4) Noneconomic substance transaction understatement.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'noneconomic substance transaction understatement' has the meaning given such term by section 6662B(c).

"(5) Cross reference.—

"For reporting of section 6662A(c) penalty to the Securities and Exchange Commission, see section 6707A(e).".

(b) Determination of Other Understatements.—Subparagraph (A) of section 6662(d)(2) is amended by adding at the end the following flush sentence:

"The excess under the preceding sentence shall be determined without regard to items to which section 6662A applies and without regard to items with respect to which a penalty is imposed by section 6662B.".

(c) Reasonable Cause Exception.—

(1) In general.—Section 6664 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d) Reasonable Cause Exception for Reportable Transaction Understatements.—

"(1) In general.—No penalty shall be imposed under section 6662A with respect to any portion of a reportable transaction understatement if it is shown that there was a reasonable cause for such portion and that the taxpayer acted in good faith with respect to such portion.

"(2) Special rules.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any reportable transaction understatement unless—

"(A) the relevant facts affecting the tax treatment of the item are adequately disclosed in accordance with the regulations prescribed under section 6011,

"(B) there is or was substantial authority for such treatment, and

"(C) the taxpayer reasonably believed that such treatment was more likely than not the proper treatment.

A taxpayer failing to adequately disclose in accordance with section 6011 shall be treated as meeting the requirements of subparagraph (A) if the penalty for such failure was rescinded under section 6707A(d).

"(3) Rules relating to reasonable belief.—For purposes of paragraph (2)(C)—

"(A) In general.—A taxpayer shall be treated as having a reasonable belief with respect to the tax treatment of an item only if such belief—

"(i) is based on the facts and law that exist at the time the return of tax which includes such tax treatment is filed, and

"(ii) relates solely to the taxpayer's chances of success on the merits of such treatment and does not take into account the possibility that a return will not be audited, such treatment will not be raised on audit, or such treatment will be resolved through settlement if it is raised.

"(B) Certain opinions may not be relied upon.—

"(i) In general.—An opinion of a tax advisor may not be relied upon to establish the reasonable belief of a taxpayer if—

"(I) the tax advisor is described in clause (ii), or

"(II) the opinion is described in clause (iii).

"(ii) Disqualified tax advisors.—A tax advisor is described in this clause if the tax advisor—

"(I) is a material advisor (within the meaning of section 6111(b)(1)) who participates in the organization, management, promotion, or sale of the transaction or who is related (within the meaning of section 267(b) or 707(b)(1)) to any person who so participates,

"(II) is compensated directly or indirectly by a material advisor with respect to the transaction,

"(III) has a fee arrangement with respect to the transaction which is contingent on all or part of the intended tax benefits from the transaction being sustained, or

"(IV) as determined under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, has a disqualifying financial interest with respect to the transaction.

"(iii) Disqualified opinions.—For purposes of clause (i), an opinion is disqualified if the opinion—

"(I) is based on unreasonable factual or legal assumptions (including assumptions as to future events),

"(II) unreasonably relies on representations, statements, findings, or agreements of the taxpayer or any other person,

"(III) does not identify and consider all relevant facts, or

"(IV) fails to meet any other requirement as the Secretary may prescribe.".

(2) Conforming amendment.—The heading for subsection (c) of section 6664 is amended by inserting "for Underpayments" after "Exception".

(d) Conforming Amendments.—

(1) Subparagraph (C) of section 461(i)(3) is amended by striking "section 6662(d)(2)(C)(iii)" and inserting "section 1274(b)(3)(C)".

(2) Paragraph (3) of section 1274(b) is amended—

(A) by striking "(as defined in section 6662(d)(2)(C)(iii))" in subparagraph (B)(i), and

(B) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(C) Tax shelter.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the term 'tax shelter' means—

"(i) a partnership or other entity,

"(ii) any investment plan or arrangement, or

"(iii) any other plan or arrangement,

if a significant purpose of such partnership, entity, plan, or arrangement is the avoidance or evasion of Federal income tax.".

(3) Section 6662(d)(2) is amended by striking subparagraphs (C) and (D).

(4) Section 6664(c)(1) is amended by striking "this part" and inserting "section 6662 or 6663".

(5) Subsection (b) of section 7525 is amended by striking "section 6662(d)(2)(C)(iii)" and inserting "section 1274(b)(3)(C)".

"SEC. 6662. IMPOSITION OF ACCURACY-RELATED PENALTY ON UNDERPAYMENTS.".

(B) The table of sections for part II of subchapter A of chapter 68 is amended by striking the item relating to section 6662 and inserting the following new items:

"Sec. 6662. Imposition of accuracy-related penalty on underpayments.

"Sec. 6662A. Imposition of accuracy-related penalty on understatements with respect to reportable transactions.".

(e) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years ending after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5614. PENALTY FOR UNDERSTATEMENTS ATTRIBUTABLE TO TRANSACTIONS LACKING ECONOMIC SUBSTANCE, ETC.

(a) In General.—Subchapter A of chapter 68 is amended by inserting after section 6662A the following new section:

"(a) Imposition of Penalty.—If a taxpayer has an noneconomic substance transaction understatement for any taxable year, there shall be added to the tax an amount equal to 40 percent of the amount of such understatement.

"(b) Reduction of Penalty for Disclosed Transactions.—Subsection (a) shall be applied by substituting '20 percent' for '40 percent' with respect to the portion of any noneconomic substance transaction understatement with respect to which the relevant facts affecting the tax treatment of the item are adequately disclosed in the return or a statement attached to the return.

"(c) Noneconomic Substance Transaction Understatement.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) In general.—The term 'noneconomic substance transaction understatement' means any amount which would be an understatement under section 6662A(b)(1) if section 6662A were applied by taking into account items attributable to noneconomic substance transactions rather than items to which section 6662A would apply without regard to this paragraph.

"(2) Noneconomic substance transaction.—The term 'noneconomic substance transaction' means any transaction if—

"(A) there is a lack of economic substance (within the meaning of section 7701(n)(1)) for the transaction giving rise to the claimed benefit or the transaction was not respected under section 7701(n)(2), or

"(B) the transaction fails to meet the requirements of any similar rule of law.

"(d) Rules Applicable To Compromise of Penalty.—

"(1) In general.—If the 1st letter of proposed deficiency which allows the taxpayer an opportunity for administrative review in the Internal Revenue Service Office of Appeals has been sent with respect to a penalty to which this section applies, only the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may compromise all or any portion of such penalty.

"(2) Applicable rules.—The rules of paragraphs (2), (3), (4), and (5) of section 6707A(d) shall apply for purposes of paragraph (1).

"(e) Coordination With Other Penalties.—Except as otherwise provided in this part, the penalty imposed by this section shall be in addition to any other penalty imposed by this title.

"(f) Cross References.—

"(1) For coordination of penalty with understatements under section 6662 and other special rules, see section 6662A(e).

"(2) For reporting of penalty imposed under this section to the Securities and Exchange Commission, see section 6707A(e).".

(b) Clerical Amendment.—The table of sections for part II of subchapter A of chapter 68 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 6662A the following new item:

"Sec. 6662B. Penalty for understatements attributable to transactions lacking economic substance, etc.".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to transactions entered into after February 2, 2004.

SEC. 5615. MODIFICATIONS OF SUBSTANTIAL UNDERSTATEMENT PENALTY FOR NONREPORTABLE TRANSACTIONS.

(a) Substantial Understatement of Corporations.—Section 6662(d)(1)(B) (relating to special rule for corporations) is amended to read as follows:

"(B) Special rule for corporations.—In the case of a corporation other than an S corporation or a personal holding company (as defined in section 542), there is a substantial understatement of income tax for any taxable year if the amount of the understatement for the taxable year exceeds the lesser of—

"(i) 10 percent of the tax required to be shown on the return for the taxable year (or, if greater, $10,000), or

"(ii) $10,000,000.".

(b) Reduction for Understatement of Taxpayer Due to Position of Taxpayer or Disclosed Item.—

(1) In general.—Section 6662(d)(2)(B)(i) (relating to substantial authority) is amended to read as follows:

"(i) the tax treatment of any item by the taxpayer if the taxpayer had reasonable belief that the tax treatment was more likely than not the proper treatment, or".

(2) Conforming amendment.—Section 6662(d) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3) Secretarial list.—For purposes of this subsection, section 6664(d)(2), and section 6694(a)(1), the Secretary may prescribe a list of positions for which the Secretary believes there is not substantial authority or there is no reasonable belief that the tax treatment is more likely than not the proper tax treatment. Such list (and any revisions thereof) shall be published in the Federal Register or the Internal Revenue Bulletin.".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5616. TAX SHELTER EXCEPTION TO CONFIDENTIALITY PRIVILEGES RELATING TO TAXPAYER COMMUNICATIONS.

(a) In General.—Section 7525(b) (relating to section not to apply to communications regarding corporate tax shelters) is amended to read as follows:

"(b) Section Not To Apply to Communications Regarding Tax Shelters.—The privilege under subsection (a) shall not apply to any written communication which is—

"(1) between a federally authorized tax practitioner and—

"(A) any person,

"(B) any director, officer, employee, agent, or representative of the person, or

"(C) any other person holding a capital or profits interest in the person, and

"(2) in connection with the promotion of the direct or indirect participation of the person in any tax shelter (as defined in section 1274(b)(3)(C)).".

SEC. 5623. FRIVOLOUS TAX SUBMISSIONS.

(a) CIVIL PENALTIES.—Section 6702 is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 6702. FRIVOLOUS TAX SUBMISSIONS.

"(a) CIVIL PENALTY FOR FRIVOLOUS TAX RETURNS.—A person shall pay a penalty of $5,000 if—

"(1) such person files what purports to be a return of a tax imposed by this title but which—

"(A) does not contain information on which the substantial correctness of the self-assessment may be judged, or

"(B) contains information that on its face indicates that the self-assessment is substantially incorrect; and

"(2) the conduct referred to in paragraph (1)—

"(A) is based on a position which the Secretary has identified as frivolous under subsection (c), or

"(B) reflects a desire to delay or impede the administration of Federal tax laws.

"(b) CIVIL PENALTY FOR SPECIFIED FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSIONS.—

"(1) IMPOSITION OF PENALTY.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), any person who submits a specified frivolous submission shall pay a penalty of $5,000.

"(2) SPECIFIED FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSION.—For purposes of this section—

"(A) SPECIFIED FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSION.—The term 'specified frivolous submission' means a specified submission if any portion of such submission—

"(i) is based on a position which the Secretary has identified as frivolous under subsection (c), or

"(ii) reflects a desire to delay or impede the administration of Federal tax laws.

"(B) SPECIFIED SUBMISSION.—The term 'specified submission' means—

"(i) a request for a hearing under—

"(I) section 6320 (relating to notice and opportunity for hearing upon filing of notice of lien), or

"(II) section 6330 (relating to notice and opportunity for hearing before levy), and

"(ii) an application under—

"(I) section 6159 (relating to agreements for payment of tax liability in installments),

"(II) section 7122 (relating to compromises), or

"(III) section 7811 (relating to taxpayer assistance orders).

"(3) OPPORTUNITY TO WITHDRAW SUBMISSION.—If the Secretary provides a person with notice that a submission is a specified frivolous submission and such person withdraws such submission within 30 days after such notice, the penalty imposed under paragraph (1) shall not apply with respect to such submission.

"(c) LISTING OF FRIVOLOUS POSITIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe (and periodically revise) a list of positions which the Secretary has identified as being frivolous for purposes of this subsection. The Secretary shall not include in such list any position that the Secretary determines meets the requirement of section 6662(d)(2)(B)(ii)(II).

"(d) REDUCTION OF PENALTY.—The Secretary may reduce the amount of any penalty imposed under this section if the Secretary determines that such reduction would promote compliance with and administration of the Federal tax laws.

"(e) PENALTIES IN ADDITION TO OTHER PENALTIES.—The penalties imposed by this section shall be in addition to any other penalty provided by law.".

(b) TREATMENT OF FRIVOLOUS REQUESTS FOR HEARINGS BEFORE LEVY.—

(1) FRIVOLOUS REQUESTS DISREGARDED.—Section 6330 (relating to notice and opportunity for hearing before levy) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) FRIVOLOUS REQUESTS FOR HEARING, ETC.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, if the Secretary determines that any portion of a request for a hearing under this section or section 6320 meets the requirement of clause (i) or (ii) of section 6702(b)(2)(A), then the Secretary may treat such portion as if it were never submitted and such portion shall not be subject to any further administrative or judicial review.".

(2) PRECLUSION FROM RAISING FRIVOLOUS ISSUES AT HEARING.—Section 6330(c)(4) is amended—

(A) by striking "(A)" and inserting "(A)(i)";

(B) by striking "(B)" and inserting "(ii)";

(C) by striking the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting "; or"; and

(D) by inserting after subparagraph (A)(ii) (as so redesignated) the following:

"(B) the issue meets the requirement of clause (i) or (ii) of section 6702(b)(2)(A).".

(3) STATEMENT OF GROUNDS.—Section 6330(b)(1) is amended by striking "under subsection (a)(3)(B)" and inserting "in writing under subsection (a)(3)(B) and states the grounds for the requested hearing".

(1) in subsection (b)(1), by striking "under subsection (a)(3)(B)" and inserting "in writing under subsection (a)(3)(B) and states the grounds for the requested hearing", and

(2) in subsection (c), by striking "and (e)" and inserting "(e), and (g)".

(d) TREATMENT OF FRIVOLOUS APPLICATIONS FOR OFFERS-IN-COMPROMISE AND INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS.—Section 7122 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSIONS, ETC.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, if the Secretary determines that any portion of an application for an offer-in-compromise or installment agreement submitted under this section or section 6159 meets the requirement of clause (i) or (ii) of section 6702(b)(2)(A), then the Secretary may treat such portion as if it were never submitted and such portion shall not be subject to any further administrative or judicial review.".

(e) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for part I of subchapter B of chapter 68 is amended by striking the item relating to section 6702 and inserting the following new item:

"Sec. 6702. Frivolous tax submissions.".

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to submissions made and issues raised after the date on which the Secretary first prescribes a list under section 6702(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended by subsection (a).

SEC. 5624. REGULATION OF INDIVIDUALS PRACTICING BEFORE THE DEPARTMENT OF TREASURY.

(a) CENSURE; IMPOSITION OF PENALTY.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 330(b) of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

(A) by inserting ", or censure," after "Department", and

(B) by adding at the end the following new flush sentence:

"The Secretary may impose a monetary penalty on any representative described in the preceding sentence. If the representative was acting on behalf of an employer or any firm or other entity in connection with the conduct giving rise to such penalty, the Secretary may impose a monetary penalty on such employer, firm, or entity if it knew, or reasonably should have known, of such conduct. Such penalty shall not exceed the gross income derived (or to be derived) from the conduct giving rise to the penalty and may be in addition to, or in lieu of, any suspension, disbarment, or censure of the representative.".

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to actions taken after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) TAX SHELTER OPINIONS, ETC.—Section 330 of such title 31 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d) Nothing in this section or in any other provision of law shall be construed to limit the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury to impose standards applicable to the rendering of written advice with respect to any entity, transaction plan or arrangement, or other plan or arrangement, which is of a type which the Secretary determines as having a potential for tax avoidance or evasion.".

SEC. 5625. PENALTY ON PROMOTERS OF TAX SHELTERS.

(a) PENALTY ON PROMOTING ABUSIVE TAX SHELTERS.—Section 6700(a) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the first sentence, if an activity with respect to which a penalty imposed under this subsection involves a statement described in paragraph (2)(A), the amount of the penalty shall be equal to 50 percent of the gross income derived (or to be derived) from such activity by the person on which the penalty is imposed.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to activities after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5626. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR TAXABLE YEARS FOR WHICH REQUIRED LISTED TRANSACTIONS NOT REPORTED.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 6501(c) (relating to exceptions) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(10) LISTED TRANSACTIONS.—If a taxpayer fails to include on any return or statement for any taxable year any information with respect to a listed transaction (as defined in section 6707A(c)(2)) which is required under section 6011 to be included with such return or statement, the time for assessment of any tax imposed by this title with respect to such transaction shall not expire before the date which is 1 year after the earlier of—

"(A) the date on which the Secretary is furnished the information so required; or

"(B) the date that a material advisor (as defined in section 6111) meets the requirements of section 6112 with respect to a request by the Secretary under section 6112(b) relating to such transaction with respect to such taxpayer.".

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to taxable years with respect to which the period for assessing a deficiency did not expire before the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5627. DENIAL OF DEDUCTION FOR INTEREST ON UNDERPAYMENTS ATTRIBUTABLE TO NONDISCLOSED REPORTABLE AND NONECONOMIC SUBSTANCE TRANSACTIONS.

(a) In General.—Section 163 (relating to deduction for interest) is amended by redesignating subsection (m) as subsection (n) and by inserting after subsection (l) the following new subsection:

"(m) Interest on Unpaid Taxes Attributable To Nondisclosed Reportable Transactions and Noneconomic Substance Transactions.—No deduction shall be allowed under this chapter for any interest paid or accrued under section 6601 on any underpayment of tax which is attributable to—

"(1) the portion of any reportable transaction understatement (as defined in section 6662A(b)) with respect to which the requirement of section 6664(d)(2)(A) is not met, or

"(2) any noneconomic substance transaction understatement (as defined in section 6662B(c)).".

(b) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to transactions in taxable years beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5628. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR TAX LAW ENFORCEMENT.

There is authorized to be appropriated $300,000,000 for each fiscal year beginning after September 30, 2003, for the purpose of carrying out tax law enforcement to combat tax avoidance transactions and other tax shelters, including the use of offshore financial accounts to conceal taxable income.

PART III—OTHER CORPORATE GOVERNANCE PROVISIONS

SEC. 5631. AFFIRMATION OF CONSOLIDATED RETURN REGULATION AUTHORITY.

(a) In General.—Section 1502 (relating to consolidated return regulations) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "In prescribing such regulations, the Secretary may prescribe rules applicable to corporations filing consolidated returns under section 1501 that are different from other provisions of this title that would apply if such corporations filed separate returns.".

(b) Result Not Overturned.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall be construed by treating Treasury regulation §1.1502-20(c)(1)(iii) (as in effect on January 1, 2001) as being inapplicable to the type of factual situation in 255 F.3d 1357 (Fed. Cir. 2001).

(c) Effective Date.—The provisions of this section shall apply to taxable years beginning before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5632. DECLARATION BY CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER RELATING TO FEDERAL ANNUAL CORPORATE INCOME TAX RETURN.

(a) In General.—The Federal tax return of a corporation with respect to income shall also include a declaration signed by the chief executive officer of such corporation (or other such officer of the corporation as the Secretary of the Treasury may designate if the corporation does not have a chief executive officer), under penalties of perjury, that the chief executive officer has established processes and procedures that ensure that such return complies with the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and that the chief executive officer was provided reasonable assurance of the accuracy of all material aspects of such return. The preceding sentence shall not apply to any return of a regulated investment company (within the meaning of section 851 of such Code).

(b) Effective Date.—This section shall apply to Federal tax returns filed after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5633. DENIAL OF DEDUCTION FOR CERTAIN FINES, PENALTIES, AND OTHER AMOUNTS.

(a) In General.—Subsection (f) of section 162 (relating to trade or business expenses) is amended to read as follows:

"(f) Fines, Penalties, and Other Amounts.—

"(1) In general.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), no deduction otherwise allowable shall be allowed under this chapter for any amount paid or incurred (whether by suit, agreement, or otherwise) to, or at the direction of, a government or entity described in paragraph (4) in relation to the violation of any law or the investigation or inquiry by such government or entity into the potential violation of any law.

"(2) Exception for amounts constituting restitution.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any amount which the taxpayer establishes constitutes restitution for damage or harm caused by the violation of any law or the potential violation of any law. This paragraph shall not apply to any amount paid or incurred as reimbursement to the government or entity for the costs of any investigation or litigation.

"(3) Exception for amounts paid or incurred as the result of certain court orders.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any amount paid or incurred by order of a court in a suit in which no government or entity described in paragraph (4) is a party.

"(4) Certain nongovernmental regulatory entities.—An entity is described in this paragraph if it is—

"(A) a nongovernmental entity which exercises self-regulatory powers (including imposing sanctions) in connection with a qualified board or exchange (as defined in section 1256(g)(7)), or

"(B) to the extent provided in regulations, a nongovernmental entity which exercises self-regulatory powers (including imposing sanctions) as part of performing an essential governmental function.".

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to amounts paid or incurred after April 27, 2003, except that such amendment shall not apply to amounts paid or incurred under any binding order or agreement entered into on or before April 27, 2003. Such exception shall not apply to an order or agreement requiring court approval unless the approval was obtained on or before April 27, 2003.

SEC. 5634. DISALLOWANCE OF DEDUCTION FOR PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) Disallowance of Deduction.—

(1) In general.—Section 162(g) (relating to treble damage payments under the antitrust laws) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(2) Punitive damages.—No deduction shall be allowed under this chapter for any amount paid or incurred for punitive damages in connection with any judgment in, or settlement of, any action. This paragraph shall not apply to punitive damages described in section 104(c).".

(2) Conforming amendments.—

(A) Section 162(g) is amended—

(i) by striking "If" and inserting:

"(1) Treble damages.—If", and

(ii) by redesignating paragraphs (1) and (2) as subparagraphs (A) and (B), respectively.

(B) The heading for section 162(g) is amended by inserting "or Punitive Damages" after "Laws".

(b) Inclusion in Income of Punitive Damages Paid by Insurer or Otherwise.—

(1) In general.—Part II of subchapter B of chapter 1 (relating to items specifically included in gross income) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 91. PUNITIVE DAMAGES COMPENSATED BY INSURANCE OR OTHERWISE.

"Gross income shall include any amount paid to or on behalf of a taxpayer as insurance or otherwise by reason of the taxpayer's liability (or agreement) to pay punitive damages.".

(2) Reporting requirements.—Section 6041 (relating to information at source) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(f) Section To Apply to Punitive Damages Compensation.—This section shall apply to payments by a person to or on behalf of another person as insurance or otherwise by reason of the other person's liability (or agreement) to pay punitive damages.".

(3) Conforming amendment.—The table of sections for part II of subchapter B of chapter 1 is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"Sec. 91. Punitive damages compensated by insurance or otherwise.".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to damages paid or incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5635. INCREASE IN CRIMINAL MONETARY PENALTY LIMITATION FOR THE UNDERPAYMENT OR OVERPAYMENT OF TAX DUE TO FRAUD.

(a) In General.—Section 7206 (relating to fraud and false statements) is amended—

(1) by striking "Any person who—" and inserting "(a) In General.—Any person who—", and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(b) Increase in Monetary Limitation for Underpayment or Overpayment of Tax Due To Fraud.—If any portion of any underpayment (as defined in section 6664(a)) or overpayment (as defined in section 6401(a)) of tax required to be shown on a return is attributable to fraudulent action described in subsection (a), the applicable dollar amount under subsection (a) shall in no event be less than an amount equal to such portion. A rule similar to the rule under section 6663(b) shall apply for purposes of determining the portion so attributable.".

(b) Increase in Penalties.—

(1) Attempt to evade or defeat tax.—Section 7201 is amended—

(A) by striking "$100,000" and inserting "$250,000",

(B) by striking "$500,000" and inserting "$1,000,000", and

(C) by striking "5 years" and inserting "10 years".

(2) Willful failure to file return, supply information, or pay tax.—Section 7203 is amended—

(A) in the first sentence—

(i) by striking "misdemeanor" and inserting "felony", and

(ii) by striking "1 year" and inserting "10 years", and

(B) by striking the third sentence.

(3) Fraud and false statements.—Section 7206(a) (as redesignated by subsection (a)) is amended—

(A) by striking "$100,000" and inserting "$250,000",

(B) by striking "$500,000" and inserting "$1,000,000", and

(C) by striking “3 years” and inserting “5 years”.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to underpayments and overpayments attributable to actions occurring after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5636. DOUBLING OF CERTAIN PENALTIES, FINES, AND INTEREST ON UNDERPAYMENTS RELATED TO CERTAIN OFFSHORE FINANCIAL ARRANGEMENTS.

(a) General Rule.—If—

(1) a taxpayer eligible to participate in—

(A) the Department of the Treasury's Offshore Voluntary Compliance Initiative, or

(B) the Department of the Treasury's voluntary disclosure initiative which applies to the taxpayer by reason of the taxpayer's underreporting of United States income tax liability through financial arrangements which rely on the use of offshore arrangements which were the subject of the initiative described in subparagraph (A), and

(2) any interest or applicable penalty is imposed with respect to any arrangement to which any initiative described in paragraph (1) applied or to any underpayment of Federal income tax attributable to items arising in connection with any arrangement described in paragraph (1), then, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amount of such interest or penalty shall be equal to twice that determined without regard to this section.

(b) Definitions and Rules.—For purposes of this section—

(1) Applicable penalty.—The term “applicable penalty” means any penalty, addition to tax, or fine imposed under chapter 68 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(2) Voluntary offshore compliance initiative.—The term “Voluntary Offshore Compliance Initiative” means the program established by the Department of the Treasury in January of 2003 under which any taxpayer was eligible to voluntarily disclose previously undisclosed income on assets placed in offshore accounts and accessed through credit card and other financial arrangements.

(3) Participation.—A taxpayer shall be treated as having participated in the Voluntary Offshore Compliance Initiative if the taxpayer submitted the request in a timely manner and all information requested by the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate within a reasonable period of time following the request.

(c) Effective Date.—The provisions of this section shall apply to interest, penalties, additions to tax, and fines with respect to any taxable year if as of the date of the enactment of this Act, the assessment of any tax, penalty, or interest with respect to such taxable year is not prevented by the operation of any law or rule of law.

PART IV—ENRON-RELATED TAX SHELTER PROVISIONS

SEC. 5641. LIMITATION ON TRANSFER OR IMPORTATION OF BUILT-IN LOSSES.

(a) In General.—Section 362 (relating to basis to corporations) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(e) Limitations on Built-In Losses.—

“(1) Limitation on importation of built-in losses.—

“(A) In general.—If in any transaction described in subsection (a) or (b) there would (but for this subsection) be an importation of a net built-in loss, the basis of each property described in subparagraph (B) which is acquired in such transaction shall (notwithstanding subsections (a) and (b)) be its fair market value immediately after such transaction.

“(B) Property described.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), property is described in this subparagraph if—

“(i) gain or loss with respect to such property is not subject to tax under this subtitle in the hands of the transferor immediately before the transfer, and “(ii) gain or loss with respect to such property is subject to such tax in the hands of the transferee immediately after such transfer.

In any case in which the transferor is a partnership, the preceding sentence shall be applied by treating each partner in such partnership as holding such partner's proportionate share of the property of such partnership.

“(C) Importation of net built-in loss.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), there is an importation of a net built-in loss in a transaction if the transferee's aggregate adjusted bases of property described in subparagraph (B) which is transferred in such transaction would (but for this paragraph) exceed the fair market value of such property immediately after such transaction.”.

“(2) Limitation on transfer of built-in losses in section 351 transactions.—

“(A) In general.—If—

“(i) property is transferred by a transferor in any transaction which is described in subsection (a) and which is not described in paragraph (1) of this subsection, and

“(ii) the transferee's aggregate adjusted bases of such property so transferred would (but for this paragraph) exceed the fair market value of such property immediately after such transaction, then, notwithstanding subsection (a), the transferee's aggregate adjusted bases of the property so transferred shall not exceed the fair market value of such property immediately after such transaction.

“(B) Allocation of basis reduction.—The aggregate reduction in basis by reason of subparagraph (A) shall be allocated among the property so transferred in proportion to their respective built-in losses immediately before the transaction.

“(C) Exception for transfers within affiliated group.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to any transaction if the transferor owns stock in the transferee meeting the requirements of section 1504(a)(2). In the case of property to which subparagraph (A) does not apply by reason of the preceding sentence, the transferor's basis in the stock received for such property shall not exceed its fair market value immediately after the transfer.”.

(b) Comparable Treatment Where Liquidation.—Paragraph (1) of section 334(b) (relating to liquidation of subsidiary) is amended to read as follows:

“(1) In general.—If property is received by a corporate distributee in a distribution in a complete liquidation to which section 332 applies (or in a transfer described in section 337(b)(1)), the basis of such property in the hands of such distributee shall be the same as it would be in the hands of the transferor; except that the basis of such property in the hands of such distributee shall be the fair market value of the property at the time of the distribution—

“(A) in any case in which gain or loss is recognized by the liquidating corporation with respect to such property, or

“(B) in any case in which the liquidating corporation is a foreign corporation, the corporate distributee is a domestic corporation, and the corporate distributee's aggregate adjusted bases of property described in section 362(e)(1)(B) which is distributed in such liquidation would (but for this subparagraph) exceed the fair market value of such property immediately after such liquidation.”.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to transactions after February 13, 2003.

SEC. 5642. NO REDUCTION OF BASIS UNDER SECTION 734 IN STOCK HELD BY PARTNERSHIP IN CORPORATE PARTNER.

(a) In General.—Section 755 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(c) No Allocation of Basis Decrease to Stock of Corporate Partner.—In making an allocation under subsection (a) of any decrease in the adjusted basis of partnership property under section 734(b)—

“(1) no allocation may be made to stock in a corporation (or any person which is related (within the meaning of section 267(b) or 707(b)(1)) to such corporation) which is a partner in the partnership, and

“(2) any amount not allocable to stock by reason of paragraph (1) shall be allocated under subsection (a) to other partnership property in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe.

Gain shall be recognized to the partnership to the extent that the amount required to be allocated under paragraph (2) to other partnership property exceeds the aggregate adjusted basis of such other property immediately before the allocation required by paragraph (2).”.

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to distributions after February 13, 2003.

SEC. 5643. REPEAL OF SPECIAL RULES FOR FASITS.

(a) In General.—Part V of subchapter M of chapter 1 (relating to financial asset securitization investment trusts) is hereby repealed.

(b) Conforming Amendments.—

(1) Paragraph (6) of section 56(g) is amended by striking “REMIC, or FASIT” and inserting “or REMIC”.

(2) Clause (ii) of section 382(l)(4)(B) is amended by striking “a REMIC to which part IV of subchapter M applies, or a FASIT to which part V of subchapter M applies,” and inserting “or a REMIC to which part IV of subchapter M applies,”.

(3) Paragraph (1) of section 582(c) is amended by striking “, and any regular interest in a FASIT,”.

(4) Subparagraph (E) of section 856(c)(5) is amended by striking the last sentence.

(5)(A) Section 860G(a)(1) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: “An interest shall not fail to qualify as a regular interest solely because the specified principal amount of the regular interest (or the amount of interest accrued on the regular interest) can be reduced as a result of the nonoccurrence of 1 or more contingent payments with respect to any reverse mortgage loan held by the REMIC if, on the startup day for the REMIC, the sponsor reasonably believes that all principal and interest due under the regular interest will be paid at or prior to the liquidation of the REMIC.”.

(B) The last sentence of section 860G(a)(3) is amended by inserting “, and any reverse mortgage loan (and each balance increase on such loan meeting the requirements of subparagraph (A)(iii)) shall be treated as an obligation secured by an interest in real property” before the period at the end.

(6) Paragraph (3) of section 860G(a) is amended by adding “and” at the end of subparagraph (B), by striking “, and” at the end

(7) Section 860G(a)(3), as amended by paragraph (6), is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "For purposes of subparagraph (A), if more than 50 percent of the obligations transferred to, or purchased by, the REMIC are originated by the United States or any State (or any political subdivision, agency, or instrumentality of the United States or any State) and are principally secured by an interest in real property, then each obligation transferred to, or purchased by, the REMIC shall be treated as secured by an interest in real property.".

(8)(A) Section 860G(a)(3)(A) is amended by striking "or" at the end of clause (i), by inserting "or" at the end of clause (ii), and by inserting after clause (ii) the following new clause:

"(iii) represents an increase in the principal amount under the original terms of an obligation described in clause (i) or (ii) if such increase—

"(I) is attributable to an advance made to the obligor pursuant to the original terms of the obligation,

"(II) occurs after the startup day, and

"(III) is purchased by the REMIC pursuant to a fixed price contract in effect on the startup day.".

(B) Section 860G(a)(7)(B) is amended to read as follows:

"(B) Qualified reserve fund.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term 'qualified reserve fund' means any reasonably required reserve to—

"(i) provide for full payment of expenses of the REMIC or amounts due on regular interests in the event of defaults on qualified mortgages or lower than expected returns on cash flow investments, or

"(ii) provide a source of funds for the purchase of obligations described in clause (ii) or (iii) of paragraph (3)(A).

The aggregate fair market value of the assets held in any such reserve shall not exceed 50 percent of the aggregate fair market value of all of the assets of the REMIC on the startup day, and the amount of any such reserve shall be promptly and appropriately reduced to the extent the amount held in such reserve is no longer reasonably required for purposes specified in clause (i) or (ii) of paragraph (3)(A).".

(9) Subparagraph (C) of section 1202(e)(4) is amended by striking "REMIC, or FASIT" and inserting "or REMIC".

(10) Clause (xi) of section 7701(a)(19)(C) is amended—

(A) by striking "and any regular interest in a FASIT,", and

(B) by striking "or FASIT" each place it appears.

(11) The table of parts for subchapter M of chapter 1 is amended by striking the item relating to part V.

(c) Effective Date.—

(1) In general.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall take effect on February 14, 2003.

(2) Exception for existing FASITs.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any FASIT in existence on the date of the enactment of this Act to the extent that regular interests issued by the FASIT before such date continue to remain outstanding in accordance with the original terms of issuance.

SEC. 5644. EXPANDED DISALLOWANCE OF DEDUCTION FOR INTEREST ON CONVERTIBLE DEBT.

(a) In General.—Paragraph (2) of section 163(l) is amended by striking "or a related party" and inserting "or equity held by the issuer (or any related party) in any other person".

(b) Capitalization Allowed With Respect to Equity of Persons Other Than Issuer and Related Parties.—Section 163(l) is amended by redesignating paragraphs (4) and (5) as paragraphs (5) and (6) and by inserting after paragraph (3) the following new paragraph:

"(4) Capitalization allowed with respect to equity of persons other than issuer and related parties.—If the disqualified debt instrument of a corporation is payable in equity held by the issuer (or any related party) in any other person (other than a related party), the basis of such equity shall be increased by the amount not allowed as a deduction by reason of paragraph (1) with respect to the instrument.".

(c) Exception for Certain Instruments Issued By Dealers In Securities.—Section 163(l), as amended by subsection (b), is amended by redesignating paragraphs (5) and (6) as paragraphs (6) and (7) and by inserting after paragraph (4) the following new paragraph:

"(5) Exception for certain instruments issued by dealers in securities.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'disqualified debt instrument' does not include indebtedness issued by a dealer in securities (or a related party) which is payable in, or by reference to, equity (other than equity of the issuer or a related party) held by such dealer in its capacity as a dealer in securities. For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'dealer in securities' has the meaning given such term by section 475.".

(c) Conforming Amendments.—Paragraph (3) of section 163(l) is amended—

(1) by striking "or a related party" in the material preceding subparagraph (A) and inserting "or any other person", and

(2) by striking "or interest" each place it appears.

(d) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to debt instruments issued after February 13, 2003.

SEC. 5645. EXPANDED AUTHORITY TO DISALLOW TAX BENEFITS UNDER SECTION 269.

(a) In General.—Subsection (a) of section 269 (relating to acquisitions made to evade or avoid income tax) is amended to read as follows:

"(a) In General.—If—

"(1)(A) any person or persons acquire, directly or indirectly, control of a corporation, or

"(B) any corporation acquires, directly or indirectly, property of another corporation and the basis of such property, in the hands of the acquiring corporation, is determined by reference to the basis in the hands of the transferor corporation, and

"(2) the principal purpose for which such acquisition was made is evasion or avoidance of Federal income tax, then the Secretary may disallow such deduction, credit, or other allowance. For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), control means the ownership of stock possessing at least 50 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote or at least 50 percent of the total value of all shares of all classes of stock of the corporation.".

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to stock and property acquired after February 13, 2003.

SEC. 5646. MODIFICATION OF INTERACTION BETWEEN SUBPART F AND PASSIVE FOREIGN INVESTMENT COMPANY RULES.

(a) Limitation on Exception From PFIC Rules for United States Shareholders of Controlled Foreign Corporations.—Paragraph (2) of section 1297(e) (relating to passive foreign investment company) is amended by adding at the end the following flush sentence:

"Such term shall not include any period if the earning of subpart F income by such corporation during such period would result in only a remote likelihood of an inclusion in gross income under section 951(a)(1)(A)(i).".

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to taxable years of controlled foreign corporations beginning after February 13, 2003, and to taxable years of United States shareholders with or within which such taxable years of controlled foreign corporations end.

PART V—PROVISIONS TO DISCOURAGE EXPATRIATION

SEC. 5651. TAX TREATMENT OF INVERTED CORPORATE ENTITIES

(a) In General.—Subchapter C of chapter 80 (relating to provisions affecting more than one subtitle) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 7874. RULES RELATING TO INVERTED CORPORATE ENTITIES.

"(a) Inverted Corporations Treated as Domestic Corporations.—

"(1) In general.—If a foreign incorporated entity is treated as an inverted domestic corporation, then, notwithstanding section 7701(a)(4), such entity shall be treated for purposes of this title as a domestic corporation.

"(2) Inverted domestic corporation.—For purposes of this section, a foreign incorporated entity shall be treated as an inverted domestic corporation if, pursuant to a plan (or a series of related transactions)—

"(A) the entity completes after March 20, 2002, the direct or indirect acquisition of substantially all of the properties held directly or indirectly by a domestic corporation or substantially all of the properties constituting a trade or business of a domestic partnership,

"(B) after the acquisition at least 80 percent of the stock (by vote or value) of the entity is held—

"(i) in the case of an acquisition with respect to a domestic corporation, by former shareholders of the domestic corporation by reason of holding stock in the domestic corporation, or

"(ii) in the case of an acquisition with respect to a domestic partnership, by former partners of the domestic partnership by reason of holding a capital or profits interest in the domestic partnership, and

"(C) the expanded affiliated group which after the acquisition includes the entity does not have substantial business activities in the foreign country in which or under the law of which the entity is created or organized when compared to the total business activities of such expanded affiliated group.

Except as provided in regulations, an acquisition of properties of a domestic corporation shall not be treated as described in subparagraph (A) if none of the corporation's stock was readily tradeable on an established securities market at any time during the 4-year period ending on the date of the acquisition.

"(b) Preservation of Domestic Tax Base in Certain Inversion Transactions to Which Subsection (a) Does Not Apply.—

"(1) In general.—If a foreign incorporated entity would be treated as an inverted domestic corporation with respect to an acquired entity if either—

"(A) subsection (a)(2)(A) were applied by substituting 'after December 31, 1996, and on or before March 20, 2002’ for ‘after March 20, 2002’ and subsection (a)(2)(B) were applied by substituting ‘more than 50 percent’ for ‘at least 80 percent’, or “(B) subsection (a)(2)(B) were applied by substituting ‘more than 50 percent’ for ‘at least 80 percent’, then the rules of subsection (c) shall apply to any inversion gain of the acquired entity during the applicable period and the rules of subsection (d) shall apply to any related party transaction of the acquired entity during the applicable period. This subsection shall not apply for any taxable year if subsection (a) applies to such foreign incorporated entity for such taxable year.

“(2) ACQUIRED ENTITY.—For purposes of this section—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘acquired entity’ means the domestic corporation or partnership substantially all of the properties of which are directly or indirectly acquired in an acquisition described in subsection (a)(2)(A) to which this subsection applies.

“(B) AGGREGATION RULES.—Any domestic person bearing a relationship described in section 267(b) or 707(b) to an acquired entity shall be treated as an acquired entity with respect to the acquisition described in subparagraph (A).

“(3) APPLICABLE PERIOD.—For purposes of this section—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘applicable period’ means the period—

“(i) beginning on the first date properties are acquired as part of the acquisition described in subsection (a)(2)(A) to which this subsection applies, and “(ii) ending on the date which is 10 years after the last date properties are acquired as part of such acquisition.

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR INVERSIONS OCCURRING BEFORE MARCH 21, 2002.—In the case of any acquired entity to which paragraph (1)(A) applies, the applicable period shall be the 10-year period beginning on January 1, 2003.

“(c) TAX ON INVERSION GAINS MAY NOT BE OFFSET.—If subsection (b) applies—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The taxable income of an acquired entity (or any expanded affiliated group which includes such entity) for any taxable year which includes any portion of the applicable period shall in no event be less than the inversion gain of the entity for the taxable year.

“(2) CREDITS NOT ALLOWED AGAINST TAX ON INVERSION GAIN.—Credits shall be allowed against the tax imposed by this chapter on an acquired entity for any taxable year described in paragraph (1) only to the extent such tax exceeds the product of—

“(A) the amount of the inversion gain for the taxable year, and

For purposes of determining the credit allowed by section 901 inversion gain shall be treated as from sources within the United States.

“(3) SPECIAL RULES FOR PARTNERSHIPS.—In the case of an acquired entity which is a partnership—

“(A) the limitations of this subsection shall apply at the partner rather than the partnership level,

“(B) the inversion gain of any partner for any taxable year shall be equal to the sum of—

“(i) the partner’s distributive share of inversion gain of the partnership for such taxable year, plus

“(ii) income or gain required to be recognized for the taxable year by the partner under section 367(a), 741, or 1001, or under any other provision of chapter 1, by reason of the transfer during the applicable period of any partnership interest of the partner in such partnership to the foreign incorporated entity, and

“(C) the highest rate of tax specified in the rate schedule applicable to the partner under chapter 1 shall be substituted for the rate of tax under paragraph (2)(B).

“(4) INVERSION GAIN.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘inversion gain’ means any income or gain required to be recognized under section 304, 311(b), 367, 1001, or 1248, or under any other provision of chapter 1, by reason of the transfer during the applicable period of stock or other properties by an acquired entity—

“(A) as part of the acquisition described in subsection (a)(2)(A) to which subsection (b) applies, or

“(B) after such acquisition to a foreign related person.

The Secretary may provide that income or gain from the sale of inventories or other transactions in the ordinary course of a trade or business shall not be treated as inversion gain under subparagraph (B) to the extent the Secretary determines such treatment would not be inconsistent with the purposes of this section.

“(5) COORDINATION WITH SECTION 172 AND MINIMUM TAX.—Rules similar to the rules of paragraphs (3) and (4) of section 860E(a) shall apply for purposes of this section.

“(6) STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The statutory period for the assessment of any deficiency attributable to the inversion gain of any taxpayer for any pre-inversion year shall not expire before the expiration of 3 years from the date the Secretary is notified by the taxpayer (in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe) of the acquisition described in subsection (a)(2)(A) to which such gain relates and such deficiency may be assessed before the expiration of such 3-year period notwithstanding the provisions of any other law or rule of law which would otherwise prevent such assessment.

“(B) PRE-INVERSION YEAR.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term ‘pre-inversion year’ means any taxable year if—

“(i) any portion of the applicable period is included in such taxable year, and “(ii) such year ends before the taxable year in which the acquisition described in subsection (a)(2)(A) is completed.

“(d) SPECIAL RULES APPLICABLE TO ACQUIRED ENTITIES TO WHICH SUBSECTION (B) APPLIES.—

“(1) INCREASES IN ACCURACY-RELATED PENALTIES.—In the case of any underpayment of tax of an acquired entity to which subsection (b) applies—

“(A) section 6662(a) shall be applied with respect to such underpayment by substituting ‘30 percent’ for ‘20 percent’, and

“(B) if such underpayment is attributable to one or more gross valuation understatements, the increase in the rate of penalty under section 6662(h) shall be to 50 percent rather than 40 percent.

“(2) MODIFICATIONS OF LIMITATION ON INTEREST DEDUCTION.—In the case of an acquired entity to which subsection (b) applies, section 163(j) shall be applied—

“(A) without regard to paragraph (2)(A)(ii) thereof, and “(B) by substituting ‘25 percent’ for ‘50 percent’ each place it appears in paragraph (2)(B) thereof.

“(e) OTHER DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) RULES FOR APPLICATION OF SUBSECTION (a)(2).—In applying subsection (a)(2) for purposes of subsections (a) and (b), the following rules shall apply:

“(A) CERTAIN STOCK DISREGARDED.—There shall not be taken into account in determining ownership for purposes of subsection (a)(2)(B)—

“(i) stock held by members of the expanded affiliated group which includes the foreign incorporated entity, or

“(ii) stock of such entity which is sold in a public offering or private placement related to the acquisition described in subsection (a)(2)(A).

“(B) PLAN DEEMED IN CERTAIN CASES.—If a foreign incorporated entity acquires directly or indirectly substantially all of the properties of a domestic corporation or partnership during the 4-year period beginning on the date which is 2 years before the ownership requirements of subsection (a)(2)(B) are met with respect to such domestic corporation or partnership, such actions shall be treated as pursuant to a plan.

“(C) CERTAIN TRANSFERS DISREGARDED.—The transfer of properties or liabilities (including by contribution or distribution) shall be disregarded if such transfers are part of a plan a principal purpose of which is to avoid the purposes of this section.

“(D) SPECIAL RULE FOR RELATED PARTNERSHIPS.—For purposes of applying subsection (a)(2) to the acquisition of a domestic partnership, except as provided in regulations, all partnerships which are under common control (within the meaning of section 482) shall be treated as 1 partnership.

“(E) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN RIGHTS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary—

“(i) to treat warrants, options, contracts to acquire stock, convertible debt instruments, and other similar interests as stock, and “(ii) to treat stock as not stock.

“(2) EXPANDED AFFILIATED GROUP.—The term ‘expanded affiliated group’ means an affiliated group as defined in section 1504(a) but without regard to section 1504(b)(3), except that section 1504(a) shall be applied by substituting ‘more than 50 percent’ for ‘at least 80 percent’ each place it appears.

“(3) FOREIGN INCORPORATED ENTITY.—The term ‘foreign incorporated entity’ means any entity which is, or but for subsection (a)(1) would be, treated as a foreign corporation for purposes of this title.

“(4) FOREIGN RELATED PERSON.—The term ‘foreign related person’ means, with respect to any acquired entity, a foreign person which—

“(A) bears a relationship to such entity described in section 267(b) or 707(b), or

“(B) is under the same common control (within the meaning of section 482) as such entity.

“(5) SUBSEQUENT ACQUISITIONS BY UNRELATED DOMESTIC CORPORATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to such conditions, limitations, and exceptions as the Secretary may prescribe, if, after an acquisition described in subsection (a)(2)(A) to which subsection (b) applies, a domestic corporation stock of which is traded on an established securities market acquires directly or indirectly any properties of one or more acquired entities in a transaction with respect to which the requirements of subparagraph (B) are met, this section shall cease to apply to any such acquired entity with respect to which such requirements are met.

“(B) REQUIREMENTS.—The requirements of the subparagraph are met with respect to a transaction involving any acquisition described in subparagraph (A) if—

"(i) before such transaction the domestic corporation did not have a relationship described in section 267(b) or 707(b), and was not under common control (within the meaning of section 482), with the acquired entity, or any member of an expanded affiliated group including such entity, and

"(ii) after such transaction, such acquired entity—

"(I) is a member of the same expanded affiliated group which includes the domestic corporation or has such a relationship or is under such common control with any member of such group, and

"(II) is not a member of, and does not have such a relationship and is not under such common control with any member of, the expanded affiliated group which before such acquisition included such entity.

"(f) Regulations.—The Secretary shall provide such regulations as are necessary to carry out this section, including regulations providing for such adjustments to the application of this section as are necessary to prevent the avoidance of the purposes of this section, including the avoidance of such purposes through—

"(1) the use of related persons, pass-thru or other noncorporate entities, or other intermediaries, or

"(2) transactions designed to have persons cease to be (or not become) members of expanded affiliated groups or related persons.".

(b) Information Reporting.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall exercise the Secretary's authority under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to require entities involved in transactions to which section 7874 of such Code (as added by subsection (a)) applies to report to the Secretary, shareholders, partners, and such other persons as the Secretary may prescribe such information as is necessary to ensure the proper tax treatment of such transactions.

(c) Conforming Amendment.—The table of sections for subchapter C of chapter 80 is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"Sec. 7874. Rules relating to inverted corporate entities.".

(d) Transition Rule for Certain Regulated Investment Companies and Unit Investment Trusts.—Notwithstanding section 7874 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)), a regulated investment company, or other pooled fund or trust specified by the Secretary of the Treasury, may elect to recognize gain by reason of section 367(a) of such Code with respect to a transaction under which a foreign incorporated entity is treated as an inverted domestic corporation under section 7874(a) of such Code by reason of an acquisition completed after March 20, 2002, and before January 1, 2004.

SEC. 5652. IMPOSITION OF MARK-TO-MARKET TAX ON INDIVIDUALS WHO EXPATRIATE.

(a) In General.—Subpart A of part II of subchapter N of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after section 877 the following new section:

"SEC. 877A. TAX RESPONSIBILITIES OF EXPATRIATION.

"(a) General Rules.—For purposes of this subtitle—

"(1) Mark to market.—Except as provided in subsections (d) and (f), all property of a covered expatriate to whom this section applies shall be treated as sold on the day before the expatriation date for its fair market value.

"(2) Recognition of gain or loss.—In the case of any sale under paragraph (1)—

"(A) notwithstanding any other provision of this title, any gain arising from such sale shall be taken into account for the taxable year of the sale, and

"(B) any loss arising from such sale shall be taken into account for the taxable year of the sale to the extent otherwise provided by this title, except that section 1091 shall not apply to any such loss.

Proper adjustment shall be made in the amount of any gain or loss subsequently realized for gain or loss taken into account under the preceding sentence.

"(3) Exclusion for certain gain.—

"(A) In general.—The amount which, but for this paragraph, would be includible in the gross income of any individual by reason of this section shall be reduced (but not below zero) by $600,000. For purposes of this paragraph, allocable expatriation gain taken into account under subsection (f)(2) shall be treated in the same manner as an amount required to be includible in gross income.

"(B) Cost-of-living adjustment.—

"(i) In general.—In the case of an expatriation date occurring in any calendar year after 2004, the $600,000 amount under subparagraph (A) shall be increased by an amount equal to—

"(I) such dollar amount, multiplied by

"(II) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for such calendar year, determined by substituting 'calendar year 2003' for 'calendar year 1992' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

"(ii) Rounding rules.—If any amount after adjustment under clause (i) is not a multiple of $1,000, such amount shall be rounded to the next lower multiple of $1,000.

"(4) Election to continue to be taxed as United States citizen.—

"(A) In general.—If a covered expatriate elects the application of this paragraph—

"(i) this section (other than this paragraph and subsection (i)) shall not apply to the expatriate, but

"(ii) in the case of property to which this section would apply but for such election, the expatriate shall be subject to tax under this title in the same manner as if the individual were a United States citizen.

"(B) Requirements.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to an individual unless the individual—

"(i) provides security for payment of tax in such form and manner, and in such amount, as the Secretary may require,

"(ii) consents to the waiver of any right of the individual under any treaty of the United States which would preclude assessment or collection of any tax which may be imposed by reason of this paragraph, and

"(iii) complies with such other requirements as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(C) Election.—An election under subparagraph (A) shall apply to all property to which this section would apply but for the election and, once made, shall be irrevocable. Such election shall also apply to property the basis of which is determined in whole or in part by reference to the property with respect to which the election was made.

"(b) Election To Defer Tax.—

"(1) In general.—If the taxpayer elects the application of this subsection with respect to any property treated as sold by reason of subsection (a), the payment of the additional tax attributable to such property shall be postponed until the due date of the return for the taxable year in which such property is disposed of (or, in the case of property disposed of in a transaction in which gain is not recognized in whole or in part, until such other date as the Secretary may prescribe).

"(2) Determination of tax with respect to property.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the additional tax attributable to any property is an amount which bears the same ratio to the additional tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year solely by reason of subsection (a) as the gain taken into account under subsection (a) with respect to such property bears to the total gain taken into account under subsection (a) with respect to all property to which subsection (a) applies.

"(3) Termination of postponement.—No tax may be postponed under this subsection later than the due date for the return of tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year which includes the date of death of the expatriate (or, if earlier, the time that the security provided with respect to the property fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (4), unless the taxpayer corrects such failure within the time specified by the Secretary).

"(4) Security.—

"(A) In general.—No election may be made under paragraph (1) with respect to any property unless adequate security is provided to the Secretary with respect to such property.

"(B) Adequate security.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), security with respect to any property shall be treated as adequate security if—

"(i) it is a bond in an amount equal to the deferred tax amount under paragraph (2) for the property, or

"(ii) the taxpayer otherwise establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the security is adequate.

"(5) Waiver of certain rights.—No election may be made under paragraph (1) unless the taxpayer consents to the waiver of any right under any treaty of the United States which would preclude assessment or collection of any tax imposed by reason of this section.

"(6) Elections.—An election under paragraph (1) shall only apply to property described in the election and, once made, is irrevocable. An election may be made under paragraph (1) with respect to an interest in a trust with respect to which gain is required to be recognized under subsection (f)(1).

"(7) Interest.—For purposes of section 6601—

"(A) the last date for the payment of tax shall be determined without regard to the election under this subsection, and

"(B) section 6621(a)(2) shall be applied by substituting '5 percentage points' for '3 percentage points' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

"(c) Covered Expatriate.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) In general.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the term 'covered expatriate' means an expatriate.

"(2) Exceptions.—An individual shall not be treated as a covered expatriate if—

"(A) the individual—

"(i) became at birth a citizen of the United States and a citizen of another country and, as of the expatriation date, continues to be a citizen of, and is taxed as a resident of, such other country, and

"(ii) has not been a resident of the United States (as defined in section 7701(b)(1)(A)(ii)) during the 5 taxable years ending with the taxable year during which the expatriation date occurs, or

"(B)(i) the individual's relinquishment of United States citizenship occurs before such individual attains age 18½, and

"(ii) the individual has been a resident of the United States (as so defined) for not more than 5 taxable years before the date of relinquishment.

"(d) EXEMPT PROPERTY; SPECIAL RULES FOR PENSION PLANS.—

"(1) EXEMPT PROPERTY.—This section shall not apply to the following:

"(A) UNITED STATES REAL PROPERTY INTERESTS.—Any United States real property interest (as defined in section 897(c)(1)), other than stock of a United States real property holding corporation which does not, on the day before the expatriation date, meet the requirements of section 897(c)(2).

"(B) SPECIFIED PROPERTY.—Any property or interest in property not described in subparagraph (A) which the Secretary specifies in regulations.

"(2) SPECIAL RULES FOR CERTAIN RETIREMENT PLANS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—If a covered expatriate holds on the day before the expatriation date any interest in a retirement plan to which this paragraph applies—

"(i) such interest shall not be treated as sold for purposes of subsection (a)(1), but

"(ii) an amount equal to the present value of the expatriate's nonforfeitable accrued benefit shall be treated as having been received by such individual on such date as a distribution under the plan.

"(B) TREATMENT OF SUBSEQUENT DISTRIBUTIONS.—In the case of any distribution on or after the expatriation date to or on behalf of the covered expatriate from a plan from which the expatriate was treated as receiving a distribution under subparagraph (A), the amount otherwise includible in gross income by reason of the subsequent distribution shall be reduced by the excess of the amount includible in gross income under subparagraph (A) over any portion of such amount to which this subparagraph previously applied.

"(C) TREATMENT OF SUBSEQUENT DISTRIBUTIONS BY PLAN.—For purposes of this title, a retirement plan to which this paragraph applies, and any person acting on the plan's behalf, shall treat any subsequent distribution described in subparagraph (B) in the same manner as such distribution would be treated without regard to this paragraph.

"(D) APPLICABLE PLANS.—This paragraph shall apply to—

"(i) any qualified retirement plan (as defined in section 4974(c)),

"(ii) an eligible deferred compensation plan (as defined in section 457(b)) of an eligible employer described in section 457(e)(1)(A), and

"(iii) to the extent provided in regulations, any foreign pension plan or similar retirement arrangements or programs.

"(e) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) EXPATRIATE.—The term 'expatriate' means—

"(A) any United States citizen who relinquishes citizenship, and

"(B) any long-term resident of the United States who—

"(i) ceases to be a lawful permanent resident of the United States (within the meaning of section 7701(b)(6)), or

"(ii) commences to be treated as a resident of a foreign country under the provisions of a tax treaty between the United States and the foreign country and who does not waive the benefits of such treaty applicable to residents of the foreign country.

"(2) EXPATRIATION DATE.—The term 'expatriation date' means—

"(A) the date an individual relinquishes United States citizenship, or

"(B) in the case of a long-term resident of the United States, the date of the event described in clause (i) or (ii) of paragraph (1)(B).

"(3) RELINQUISHMENT OF CITIZENSHIP.—A citizen shall be treated as relinquishing United States citizenship on the earliest of—

"(A) the date the individual renounces such individual's United States nationality before a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States pursuant to paragraph (5) of section 349(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1481(a)(5)),

"(B) the date the individual furnishes to the United States Department of State a signed statement of voluntary relinquishment of United States nationality confirming the performance of an act of expatriation specified in paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4) of section 349(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1481(a)(1)–(4)),

"(C) the date the United States Department of State issues to the individual a certificate of loss of nationality, or

"(D) the date a court of the United States cancels a naturalized citizen's certificate of naturalization.

Subparagraph (A) or (B) shall not apply to any individual unless the renunciation or voluntary relinquishment is subsequently approved by the issuance to the individual of a certificate of loss of nationality by the United States Department of State.

"(4) LONG-TERM RESIDENT.—The term 'long-term resident' has the meaning given to such term by section 877(e)(2).

"(f) SPECIAL RULES APPLICABLE TO BENEFICIARIES' INTERESTS IN TRUST.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), if an individual is determined under paragraph (3) to hold an interest in a trust on the day before the expatriation date—

"(A) the individual shall not be treated as having sold such interest,

"(B) such interest shall be treated as a separate share in the trust, and

"(C)(i) such separate share shall be treated as a separate trust consisting of the assets allocable to such share,

"(ii) the separate trust shall be treated as having sold its assets on the day before the expatriation date for their fair market value and as having distributed all of its assets to the individual as of such time, and

"(iii) the individual shall be treated as having recontributed the assets to the separate trust.

Subsection (a)(2) shall apply to any income, gain, or loss of the individual arising from a distribution described in subparagraph (C)(ii). In determining the amount of such distribution, proper adjustments shall be made for liabilities of the trust allocable to an individual's share in the trust.

"(2) SPECIAL RULES FOR INTERESTS IN QUALIFIED TRUSTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—If the trust interest described in paragraph (1) is an interest in a qualified trust—

"(i) paragraph (1) and subsection (a) shall not apply, and

"(ii) in addition to any other tax imposed by this title, there is hereby imposed on each distribution with respect to such interest a tax in the amount determined under subparagraph (B).

"(B) AMOUNT OF TAX.—The amount of tax under subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be equal to the lesser of—

"(i) the highest rate of tax imposed by section 1(e) for the taxable year which includes the day before the expatriation date, multiplied by the amount of the distribution, or

"(ii) the balance in the deferred tax account immediately before the distribution determined without regard to any increases under subparagraph (C)(ii) after the 30th day preceding the distribution.

"(C) DEFERRED TAX ACCOUNT.—For purposes of subparagraph (B)(ii)—

"(i) OPENING BALANCE.—The opening balance in a deferred tax account with respect to any trust interest is an amount equal to the tax which would have been imposed on the allocable expatriation gain with respect to the trust interest if such gain had been included in gross income under subsection (a).

"(ii) INCREASE FOR INTEREST.—The balance in the deferred tax account shall be increased by the amount of interest determined (on the balance in the account at the time the interest accrues), for periods after the 90th day after the expatriation date, by using the rates and method applicable under section 6621 for underpayments of tax for such periods, except that section 6621(a)(2) shall be applied by substituting '5 percentage points' for '3 percentage points' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

"(iii) DECREASE FOR TAXES PREVIOUSLY PAID.—The balance in the tax deferred account shall be reduced—

"(I) by the amount of taxes imposed by subparagraph (A) on any distribution to the person holding the trust interest, and

"(II) in the case of a person holding a nonvested interest, to the extent provided in regulations, by the amount of taxes imposed by subparagraph (A) on distributions from the trust with respect to nonvested interests not held by such person.

"(D) ALLOCABLE EXPATRIATION GAIN.—For purposes of this paragraph, the allocable expatriation gain with respect to any beneficiary's interest in a trust is the amount of gain which would be allocable to such beneficiary's vested and nonvested interests in the trust if the beneficiary held directly all assets allocable to such interests.

"(E) TAX DEDUCTED AND WITHHELD.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The tax imposed by subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be deducted and withheld by the trustees from the distribution to which it relates.

"(ii) EXCEPTION WHERE FAILURE TO WAIVE TREATY RIGHTS.—If an amount may not be deducted and withheld under clause (i) by reason of the distributee failing to waive any treaty right with respect to such distribution—

"(I) the tax imposed by subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be imposed on the trust and each trustee shall be personally liable for the amount of such tax, and

"(II) any other beneficiary of the trust shall be entitled to recover from the distributee the amount of such tax imposed on the other beneficiary.

"(F) DISPOSITION.—If a trust ceases to be a qualified trust at any time, a covered expatriate disposes of an interest in a qualified trust, or a covered expatriate holding an interest in a qualified trust dies, then, in lieu of the tax imposed by subparagraph (A)(ii), there is hereby imposed a tax equal to the lesser of—

"(i) the tax determined under paragraph (1) as if the day before the expatriation date were the date of such cessation, disposition, or death, whichever is applicable, or

"(ii) the balance in the tax deferred account immediately before such date.

Such tax shall be imposed on the trust and each trustee shall be personally liable for the amount of such tax and any other beneficiary of the trust shall be entitled to recover from the covered expatriate or the estate the amount of such tax imposed on the other beneficiary.

"(G) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this paragraph—

"(i) QUALIFIED TRUST.—The term 'qualified trust' means a trust which is described in section 7701(a)(30)(E).

"(ii) VESTED INTEREST.—The term 'vested interest' means any interest which, as of the day before the expatriation date, is vested in the beneficiary.

"(iii) NONVESTED INTEREST.—The term 'nonvested interest' means, with respect to any beneficiary, any interest in a trust which is not a vested interest. Such interest shall be determined by assuming the maximum exercise of discretion in favor of the beneficiary and the occurrence of all contingencies in favor of the beneficiary.

"(iv) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Secretary may provide for such adjustments to the bases of assets in a trust or a deferred tax account, and the timing of such adjustments, in order to ensure that gain is taxed only once.

"(v) COORDINATION WITH RETIREMENT PLAN RULES.—This subsection shall not apply to an interest in a trust which is part of a retirement plan to which subsection (d)(2) applies.

"(3) DETERMINATION OF BENEFICIARIES' INTEREST IN TRUST.—

"(A) DETERMINATIONS UNDER PARAGRAPH (1).—For purposes of paragraph (1), a beneficiary's interest in a trust shall be based upon all relevant facts and circumstances, including the terms of the trust instrument and any letter of wishes or similar document, historical patterns of trust distributions, and the existence of and functions performed by a trust protector or any similar adviser.

"(B) OTHER DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(i) CONSTRUCTIVE OWNERSHIP.—If a beneficiary of a trust is a corporation, partnership, trust, or estate, the shareholders, partners, or beneficiaries shall be deemed to be the trust beneficiaries for purposes of this section.

"(ii) TAXPAYER RETURN POSITION.—A taxpayer shall clearly indicate on its income tax return—

"(I) the methodology used to determine that taxpayer's trust interest under this section, and

"(II) if the taxpayer knows (or has reason to know) that any other beneficiary of such trust is using a different methodology to determine such beneficiary's trust interest under this section.

"(g) TERMINATION OF DEFERRALS, ETC.—In the case of any covered expatriate, notwithstanding any other provision of this title—

"(1) any period during which recognition of income or gain is deferred shall terminate on the day before the expatriation date, and

"(2) any extension of time for payment of tax shall cease to apply on the day before the expatriation date and the unpaid portion of such tax shall be due and payable at the time and in the manner prescribed by the Secretary.

"(h) IMPOSITION OF TENTATIVE TAX.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—If an individual is required to include any amount in gross income under subsection (a) for any taxable year, there is hereby imposed, immediately before the expatriation date, a tax in an amount equal to the amount of tax which would be imposed if the taxable year were a short taxable year ending on the expatriation date.

"(2) DUE DATE.—The due date for any tax imposed by paragraph (1) shall be the 90th day after the expatriation date.

"(3) TREATMENT OF TAX.—Any tax paid under paragraph (1) shall be treated as a payment of the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year to which subsection (a) applies.

"(4) DEFERRAL OF TAX.—The provisions of subsection (b) shall apply to the tax imposed by this subsection to the extent attributable to gain includible in gross income by reason of this section.

"(i) SPECIAL LIENS FOR DEFERRED TAX AMOUNTS.—

"(1) IMPOSITION OF LIEN.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—If a covered expatriate makes an election under subsection (a)(4) or (b) which results in the deferral of any tax imposed by reason of subsection (a), the deferred amount (including any interest, additional amount, addition to tax, assessable penalty, and costs attributable to the deferred amount) shall be a lien in favor of the United States on all property of the expatriate located in the United States (without regard to whether this section applies to the property).

"(B) DEFERRED AMOUNT.—For purposes of this subsection, the deferred amount is the amount of the increase in the covered expatriate's income tax which, but for the election under subsection (a)(4) or (b), would have occurred by reason of this section for the taxable year including the expatriation date.

"(2) PERIOD OF LIEN.—The lien imposed by this subsection shall arise on the expatriation date and continue until—

"(A) the liability for tax by reason of this section is satisfied or has become unenforceable by reason of lapse of time, or

"(B) it is established to the satisfaction of the Secretary that no further tax liability may arise by reason of this section.

"(3) CERTAIN RULES APPLY.—The rules set forth in paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of section 6324A(d) shall apply with respect to the lien imposed by this subsection as if it were a lien imposed by section 6324A.

"(j) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.".

(b) INCLUSION IN INCOME OF GIFTS AND BEQUESTS RECEIVED BY UNITED STATES CITIZENS AND RESIDENTS FROM EXPATRIATES.—Section 102 (relating to gifts, etc. not included in gross income) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d) GIFTS AND INHERITANCES FROM COVERED EXPATRIATES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) shall not exclude from gross income the value of any property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or inheritance from a covered expatriate after the expatriation date. For purposes of this subsection, any term used in this subsection which is also used in section 877A shall have the same meaning as when used in section 877A.

"(2) EXCEPTIONS FOR TRANSFERS OTHERWISE SUBJECT TO ESTATE OR GIFT TAX.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any property if either—

"(A) the gift, bequest, devise, or inheritance is—

"(i) shown on a timely filed return of tax imposed by chapter 12 as a taxable gift by the covered expatriate, or

"(ii) included in the gross estate of the covered expatriate for purposes of chapter 11 and shown on a timely filed return of tax imposed by chapter 11 of the estate of the covered expatriate, or

"(B) no such return was timely filed but no such return would have been required to be filed even if the covered expatriate were a citizen or long-term resident of the United States.".

(c) DEFINITION OF TERMINATION OF UNITED STATES CITIZENSHIP.—Section 7701(a) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(48) TERMINATION OF UNITED STATES CITIZENSHIP.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—An individual shall not cease to be treated as a United States citizen before the date on which the individual's citizenship is treated as relinquished under section 877A(e)(3).

"(B) DUAL CITIZENS.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, subparagraph (A) shall not apply to an individual who became at birth a citizen of the United States and a citizen of another country.".

(d) INELIGIBILITY FOR VISA OR ADMISSION TO UNITED STATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 212(a)(10)(E) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(10)(E)) is amended to read as follows:

"(E) FORMER CITIZENS NOT IN COMPLIANCE WITH EXPATRIATION REVENUE PROVISIONS.—Any alien who is a former citizen of the United States who relinquishes United States citizenship (within the meaning of section 877A(e)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) and who is not in compliance with section 877A of such Code (relating to expatriation).".

(2) AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Section 6103(l) (relating to disclosure of returns and return information for purposes other than tax administration) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(19) DISCLOSURE TO DENY VISA OR ADMISSION TO CERTAIN EXPATRIATES.—Upon written request of the Attorney General or the Attorney General's delegate, the Secretary shall disclose whether an individual is in compliance with section 877A (and if not in compliance, any items of noncompliance) to officers and employees of the Federal agency responsible for administering section 212(a)(10)(E) of the Immigration and Nationality Act solely for the purpose of, and to the extent necessary in, administering such section 212(a)(10)(E).".

(B) SAFEGUARDS.—

(i) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—Paragraph (4) of section 6103(p) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended by section 202(b)(2)(B) of the Trade Act of 2002 (Public Law 107-210; 116 Stat. 961), is amended by striking "or (17)" after "any other person described in subsection (l)(16)" each place it appears and inserting "or (18)".

(ii) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 6103(p)(4) (relating to safeguards), as amended by clause (i), is amended by striking "or (18)" after "any other person described in subsection (l)(16)" each place it appears and inserting "(18), or (19)".

(3) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the amendments made by this subsection shall apply to individuals who relinquish United States citizenship on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(B) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—The amendments made by paragraph (2)(B)(i) shall take effect as if included in the amendments made by section 202(b)(2)(B) of the Trade Act of 2002 (Public Law 107–210; 116 Stat. 961).

(e) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 877 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) APPLICATION.—This section shall not apply to an expatriate (as defined in section 877A(e)) whose expatriation date (as so defined) occurs on or after February 2, 2004.".

(f) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subpart A of part II of subchapter N of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 877 the following new item:

"Sec. 877A. Tax responsibilities of expatriation.".

(g) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this subsection, the amendments made by this section shall apply to expatriates (within the meaning of section 877A(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as added by this section) whose expatriation date (as so defined) occurs on or after February 2, 2004.

(2) GIFTS AND BEQUESTS.—Section 102(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (b)) shall apply to gifts and bequests received on or after February 2, 2004, from an individual or the estate of an individual whose expatriation date (as so defined) occurs after such date.

(3) DUE DATE FOR TENTATIVE TAX.—The due date under section 877A(h)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as added by this section, shall in no event occur before the 90th day after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5653. EXCISE TAX ON STOCK COMPENSATION OF INSIDERS IN INVERTED CORPORATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subtitle D is amended by adding at the end the following new chapter:

"CHAPTER 48—STOCK COMPENSATION OF INSIDERS IN INVERTED CORPORATIONS

"Sec. 5000A. Stock compensation of insiders in inverted corporations entities.

"SEC. 5000A. STOCK COMPENSATION OF INSIDERS IN INVERTED CORPORATIONS.

"(a) IMPOSITION OF TAX.—In the case of an individual who is a disqualified individual with respect to any inverted corporation, there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to 20 percent of the value (determined under subsection (b)) of the specified stock compensation held (directly or indirectly) by or for the benefit of such individual or a member of such individual's family (as defined in section 267) at any time during the 12-month period beginning on the date which is 6 months before the inversion date.

"(b) VALUE.—For purposes of subsection (a)—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The value of specified stock compensation shall be—

"(A) in the case of a stock option (or other similar right) or any stock appreciation right, the fair value of such option or right, and

"(B) in any other case, the fair market value of such compensation.

"(2) DATE FOR DETERMINING VALUE.—The determination of value shall be made—

"(A) in the case of specified stock compensation held on the inversion date, on such date,

"(B) in the case of such compensation which is canceled during the 6 months before the inversion date, on the day before such cancellation, and

"(C) in the case of such compensation which is granted after the inversion date, on the date such compensation is granted.

"(c) TAX TO APPLY ONLY IF SHAREHOLDER GAIN RECOGNIZED.—Subsection (a) shall apply to any disqualified individual with respect to an inverted corporation only if gain (if any) on any stock in such corporation is recognized in whole or part by any shareholder by reason of the acquisition referred to in section 7874(a)(2)(A) (determined by substituting 'July 10, 2002' for 'March 20, 2002') with respect to such corporation.

"(d) EXCEPTION WHERE GAIN RECOGNIZED ON COMPENSATION.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to—

"(1) any stock option which is exercised on the inversion date or during the 6-month period before such date and to the stock acquired in such exercise, if income is recognized under section 83 on or before the inversion date with respect to the stock acquired pursuant to such exercise, and

"(2) any specified stock compensation which is exercised, sold, exchanged, distributed, cashed out, or otherwise paid during such period in a transaction in which gain or loss is recognized in full.

"(e) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) DISQUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL.—The term 'disqualified individual' means, with respect to a corporation, any individual who, at any time during the 12-month period beginning on the date which is 6 months before the inversion date—

"(A) is subject to the requirements of section 16(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 with respect to such corporation, or

"(B) would be subject to such requirements if such corporation were an issuer of equity securities referred to in such section.

"(2) INVERTED CORPORATION; INVERSION DATE.—

"(A) INVERTED CORPORATION.—The term 'inverted corporation' means any corporation to which subsection (a) or (b) of section 7874 applies determined—

"(i) by substituting 'July 10, 2002' for 'March 20, 2002' in section 7874(a)(2)(A), and

"(ii) without regard to subsection (b)(1)(A).

Such term includes any predecessor or successor of such a corporation.

"(B) INVERSION DATE.—The term 'inversion date' means, with respect to a corporation, the date on which the corporation first becomes an inverted corporation.

"(3) SPECIFIED STOCK COMPENSATION.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'specified stock compensation' means payment (or right to payment) granted by the inverted corporation (or by any member of the expanded affiliated group which includes such corporation) to any person in connection with the performance of services by a disqualified individual for such corporation or member if the value of such payment or right is based on (or determined by reference to) the value (or change in value) of stock in such corporation (or any such member).

"(B) EXCEPTIONS.—Such term shall not include—

"(i) any option to which part II of subchapter D of chapter 1 applies, or

"(ii) any payment or right to payment from a plan referred to in section 280G(b)(6).

"(4) EXPANDED AFFILIATED GROUP.—The term 'expanded affiliated group' means an affiliated group (as defined in section 1504(a) without regard to section 1504(b)(3)); except that section 1504(a) shall be applied by substituting 'more than 50 percent' for 'at least 80 percent' each place it appears.

"(f) SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) CANCELLATION OF RESTRICTION.—The cancellation of a restriction which by its terms will never lapse shall be treated as a grant.

"(2) PAYMENT OR REIMBURSEMENT OF TAX BY CORPORATION TREATED AS SPECIFIED STOCK COMPENSATION.—Any payment of the tax imposed by this section directly or indirectly by the inverted corporation or by any member of the expanded affiliated group which includes such corporation—

"(A) shall be treated as specified stock compensation, and

"(B) shall not be allowed as a deduction under any provision of chapter 1.

"(3) CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS IGNORED.—Whether there is specified stock compensation, and the value thereof, shall be determined without regard to any restriction other than a restriction which by its terms will never lapse.

"(4) PROPERTY TRANSFERS.—Any transfer of property shall be treated as a payment and any right to a transfer of property shall be treated as a right to a payment.

"(5) OTHER ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.—For purposes of subtitle F, any tax imposed by this section shall be treated as a tax imposed by subtitle A.

"(g) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section.".

(b) DENIAL OF DEDUCTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (6) of section 275(a) is amended by inserting "48," after "46,".

(2) $1,000,000 LIMIT ON DEDUCTIBLE COMPENSATION REDUCED BY PAYMENT OF EXCISE TAX ON SPECIFIED STOCK COMPENSATION.—Paragraph (4) of section 162(m) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(G) COORDINATION WITH EXCISE TAX ON SPECIFIED STOCK COMPENSATION.—The dollar limitation contained in paragraph (1) with respect to any covered employee shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the amount of any payment (with respect to such employee) of the tax imposed by section 5000A directly or indirectly by the inverted corporation (as defined in such section) or by any member of the expanded affiliated group (as defined in such section) which includes such corporation.".

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) The last sentence of section 3121(v)(2)(A) is amended by inserting before the period "or to any specified stock compensation (as defined in section 5000A) on which tax is imposed by section 5000A".

(2) The table of chapters for subtitle D is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"Chapter 48. Stock compensation of insiders in inverted corporations.".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on July 11, 2002; except that periods before such date shall not be taken into account in applying the periods in subsections (a) and (e)(1) of section 5000A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as added by this section.

SEC. 5654. REINSURANCE OF UNITED STATES RISKS IN FOREIGN JURISDICTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 845(a) (relating to allocation in case of reinsurance agreement involving tax avoidance or evasion) is amended by striking "source and character" and inserting "amount, source, or character".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to any risk reinsured after April 11, 2002.

PART V—PROVISION TO REPLENISH THE GENERAL FUND

SEC. 5661. MODIFICATION TO CORPORATE ESTIMATED TAX REQUIREMENTS.

The amount of any required installment of corporate estimated income tax which is otherwise due under section 6655 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 after June 30, 2009, and before October 1, 2009, shall be 119 percent of such amount.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Governmental Affairs be authorized to meet on Monday, February 9, 2004, at 10 a.m. for a hearing regarding the Department of Homeland Security's budget submission for fiscal year 2005.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the appointments that are at the desk appear separately in the RECORD as if made by the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the unanimous consent request be vitiated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONGRATULATING THE ST. JOHN'S UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL TEAM

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 297 submitted earlier today by Senators DAYTON and COLEMAN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 297) congratulating the Saint John's University, Collegeville, Minnesota, football team for winning the 2003 National Collegiate Athletic Association Division III Football Championship.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution and preamble be agreed to en bloc, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table en bloc, and that any statements relating to the resolution be printed in the RECORD as if read, without any intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 297) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 297

Whereas Saint John's University defeated Mount Union College of Alliance, Ohio, by a score of 24-6 in Stagg Bowl XXXI on Saturday, December 20, 2003;

Whereas Saint John's University finished the season 14-0, with the football program holding the all-time record for victories in Division III at 508-213-24 in 93 seasons;

Whereas the 2003 Championship is the first National Championship won by the Saint John's University football team since 1976 and the fourth in the history of the school;

Whereas the 2003 Championship capped a season in which Coach John Gagliardi of Saint John's University became the winningest football coach in the history of the National Collegiate Athletic Association;

Whereas Blake Elliott, the senior wide receiver of Saint John's University, was the recipient of the 2003 Gagliardi Trophy as the most outstanding Division III football player in the United States in 2003;

Whereas the Saint John's University Johnnies, by winning the championship game, cracked Mount Union's National Collegiate Athletic Association-record winning streak of 55 games in a row;

Whereas loyal fans of Saint John's University, enough to fill 3 chartered planes, were among the crowd of 5,073 who attended the 2003 Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl in the freezing cold of Salem, Virginia, with many more watching the nationally televised game; and

Whereas all of the players of the Saint John's University team showed tremendous dedication throughout the season to realize the goal of winning the National Championship: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) commends the Saint John's University football team for winning the 2003 National Collegiate Athletic Association Division III Football Championship;

(2) recognizes the achievements of all of the players, coaches, and support staff of the team and invites them to the United States Capitol Building to be honored; and

(3) directs the Secretary of the Senate to make available enrolled copies of this resolution to Saint John's University for appropriate display.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 2004

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 9:30 a.m. tomorrow. I further ask unanimous consent that following the prayer and pledge, the morning hour be deemed expired, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then resume consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill. I further ask unanimous consent that the Senate recess from 12:30 until 2:15 p.m. for the weekly party luncheons.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, tomorrow the Senate will resume consideration of S. 1072, the highway bill. The chairman and ranking member have been in the Chamber all day to receive amendments. They will be back here in the morning. We encourage all Members who have amendments to contact the managers as soon as possible. Rollcall votes are expected during tomorrow's session, and Senators will be notified when the first vote is scheduled.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 5:38 p.m. adjourned until Tuesday, February 10, 2004, at 9:30 a.m.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Monday, February 9, 2004 may be found in the Daily Digest of today's RECORD.
